GLEN ROSS WINS LEAGUE CUP

WON THIRD GAME OF FINAL SERIES BY A
14-8 SCORE ON FRIDAY

The Faulkner Cup, emblematic of the Championship of the Hamilton Softball League, will rest in the hands of the Glen Ross Softball team until another season, as a result of their victory over Springbrook in the third and deciding game of the finals on Friday evening last. The game was played on the diamond at the Stirling Fair Grounds and attracted the largest crowd of the season, with close to four hundred fans being present to cheer their favourites on. Broadworth was on the mound for Springbrook and was touched for 10 hits by the winners. He had seven strikeouts to his credit, and gave five walks, while his teammates had five errors behind him. Smith, who handled the pitching duties for Glen Ross, had only two strikeouts to his credit but kept his opponents' thirteen hits well scattered, five of them coming in the last inning when his team had a commanding lead. He was given splendid support by his teammates in the field, only three errors being charged against them, and issued no walks.

Glen Ross took a big lead in the first inning when they gathered five runs off Broadworth and were never headed. Brown started the rally with a single, R. Pyear also singled, A. Fraser walked and when C. Smith got a single two runs came in. A wild throw by Thompson on J. Armstrong's tap to second accounted for two more and the latter scored the fifth run of the inning on a passed ball. They were blanked in the second and third, only seven men facing Broadworth in the two innings, but added five more in the fourth. G. Pyear got on when he swung at a low pitch for his third strike and scored when G. Fraser tripled. Singles by Brown, R. Pyear and Smith, and a double by J. Armstrong accounted for the other runs. A walk to Brooks and a mighty home run drive by G. Pyear over Burkitt's head in centre field, added two more in the fifth, while their final two runs came in the sixth on Burkitt's error on A. Fraser's fly to centre, a hit by Smith and an error by Gibson on J. Armstrong's hit.

Springbrook scored their first run in the second when Thompson singled and Burkitt hit a long drive over Brown's head in centre field for what looked to be a homer, but he was caught at the plate on a fast relay Brown to Fraser to McDonnell. They added three more in the fifth when Bateman got on through G. Pyear's error and McKeown, Heath and D. Broadworth singled in succession. Smith got them in order in the sixth. The first two men to face him in the seventh also went out, but five consecutive singles by D. Broadworth, G. Broadworth, Gibson, Thompson and Burkitt accounted for four more runs. Holland ended the game by hitting to Smith, who threw him out at first.

The teams:

Springbrook — McKeown, c; M. Heath, 3b; D. Broadworth, ss; G. Broadworth, p; M. Gibson, 1b; C. Thompson, 2b; C. Burkitt, cf; Holland lf; H. Bateman, rf.

Glen Ross — G. Fraser, 2b; H. Brown, cf; R. Pyear, 3b; A. Fraser, ss; C. Smith, p; J. Armstrong, lf; A. McDonnell, c; H. Brooks, rf; G. Pyear, 1b.

Score by innings:

Springbrook 0100304 — 8

BOY DROWNED IN RAWDON CREEK

DAVID, SON OF MR. AND
MRS. JOHN WRIGHT, SLIPS
INTO DEEP HOLE

District residents were shocked to learn yesterday of the sudden death, by drowning of David, 15-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Wright, of West Huntingdon. About three o'clock, the young lad, in company with two other chums, Willie Donnan and Frankie Yateman, were enjoying a bathe in Rawdon Creek, just a few yards west of the Madoc-Belleville highway, at West Huntingdon, when the unfortunate incident occurred.

The boys were, it is alleged, jumping from a small wooden platform into the water, when in some manner the victim slipped and fell into a hole which was beyond his depth. He could not swim and it was some time before help arrived. Mrs. John Hagarty, who lives but a short distance from the scene, rushed to the rescue and plunged into the water, but due to its muddy condition, could not locate the body. A general alarm was raised and in a few minutes Harold Thompson brought the body to the shore of the creek. Dr. Robertson, Chief Coroner, of Belleville, and Dr. W. H. Pedley, of Stirling, were called, but all efforts at resuscitation were to no avail.

The young lad, who was of a quiet disposition, was a general favourite among his chums and school mates. He was, last term, a student at the Stirling High School, and had made many friends in the village during his stay here who will join in extending sincere sympathy to those who mourn.

David is survived by his parents, three sisters, Margaret and Lorna, at home, and Mrs. S. Meraw, Tweed, and one brother, John, of Brockville.

The funeral will be held on Friday, leaving the home of his parents at 2 p.m. for West Huntingdon United Church, where service will be held. Interment will be made in Stirling Cemetery.

Centennial Celebration At Wellmans

The Centennial Celebrations for Wellmans Public School were held on Sunday July 31st and Monday, August 1st. The Sunday services were in charge of the minister of Wellmans United Church, Rev. Jas. E. Beckel. Throughout the day there were associated with the minister, Rev. J. O. Totton, of Hornby; Rev. W. E. Honey, Myrtle; Rev. F. G. Joblin, of Scugog Island, and Rev. W. H. Clarke of Deseronto. At 11 a.m. Rev. F. G. Joblin led in prayer; Rev. W. E. Honey read the Psalm and Rev. W. H. Clarke the lesson, and Rev. J. O. Totton preached the sermon. Mr. Totton presented a very optimistic sermon, pointing out that the older folks of today think the youth of today are so much worse than the people of a former generation, and stated that he did not think this was true. Mr. Totton made a stirring challenge to all to make this day more Christian than any other in the history of the world. The choir of other days sang a very helpful hymn and the Wellmans choir under the direction of Mrs. John Heagle, Mr. S. Taylor and Mrs. Carl Clancy sang an appropriate anthem. Mrs. John Heagle also sang a solo. During the morning service the minister welcomed the visiting old boys and girls and read letters of inability to attend from Rev. Henry C. Hoover of the First Congregational Church, Berwyn, Ill.; Rev. J. S. Watson, Winnipeg, Man.; Rev. J. A. McMillan, Burnbrae; Rev. J. G. McKee, Wellington, and Rev. Canoh Swayne, Bonarlaw.

One of the special features of the morning service was the dedication of a beautiful new pulpit that has been presented to the Wellmans Church by relatives and friends in memory of the late Thomas Snarr, George Snarr, John Snarr and Fred Snarr. In the name of the United Church the minister received the gift and dedicated it to the service of the Kingdom of God at Wellmans.

The afternoon session was in the form of a Memorial Service which was held in the Wellmans Community cemetery. The Stirling Citizens' Band led the music, assisted by the Wellmans Church choir. The lesson was read by Rev. J. O. Totton and Rev. W. E. Honey offered prayer. The minister read the names of all those who are buried in Wellmans Cemetery, as well as those who once lived at Wellmans but are buried in other cemeteries. A wreath was placed on the Cenotaph by Mr. John Heagle, chairman of the Centennial Committee in memory of those who had died. Rev. Fred Joblin presented a very timely and inspiring message, speaking especially of the influence of the lives of those who have passed on before, and urged all those present to live their lives in the same unselfish, Christlike way. The service closed with singing "Abide with me", and the Benediction by Rev. W. H. Clarke.

The evening meeting was at 7.30 p.m. and was held in the Wellmans Church. The choir presented three numbers, two being appropriate anthems, and a quartette by Mr. and Mrs. George Watson, Mrs. Fred Thain, Mr. Angus Todd. Rev. J. O. Totton led in prayer and Rev. W. H. Clarke read the lesson. The message of the evening was given by Rev. W. E. Honey, who spoke of "Good Soldiers of Jesus Christ." Mr. Honey's message was a stirring one in which he challenged all to follow Jesus in the same way that Paul did in the days when he exhorted Timothy to be a good soldier of Jesus Christ. The Sunday services were closed with the Benediction by Rev. F. G. Joblin.

On Monday at 10.30 a.m. the old boys and girls met for a session in the School. The building was crowded to the doors. The school was in charge of Miss Hinchcliffe, of Toronto, a former teacher. She was assisted by Mrs. Pidgeon, of Alberta, also a former teacher. For two hours that old

COUNCIL MET ON MONDAY NIGHT

GARBAGE COLLECTOR EN-GAGED FOR VILLAGE —
APPLICATION REJECTED

Commencing next week Stirling Citizens are to have a garbage collection service, according to plans made by the Village Council at its regular monthly session held on Monday evening. This action has been contemplated by the Council for some time in order to overcome the unsatisfactory conditions at the village dump. While all the details of the plan have not been definitely decided upon, it is proposed to have the garbage collected from each home and business places once each week. The cost of the service will be levied for in the general tax rate.

The following accounts were passed for payment on motion of Councillors Anderson and Eggleton:

An application from Mr. Geo. Tullough for a pool room license, which was laid over from last month's meeting, was considered. It was decided that no more licenses for pool rooms within the village limits be granted.

A system of garbage collection for the village was the subject of a lengthy discussion, and on motion of Councillors Anderson and Stapley, A. Keegan was engaged to collect all garbage and ashes from every home and business place in the village each week for the sum of $250 per year. Council adjourned.

Among those who wrote their names were Rosella May Totton, Florence May Jackman, Cynthia Jane Whitton, Lily G. Maybee, Maggie E. Meiklejohn, Minnie E. Totton, Thurya Gullet, Nellie Gullet, Minnie Watson and Hector Whitton, Malcolm Totton, Alex Hume, Bert Potts, George W. Potts, John O. Totton, Will Clancy, Ivan Clancy.

Different members of the school were punished for passing notes, making faces and throwing apples. The building fairly shook with laughter caused by the punishments that were meted out to those offenders. Many took part in the hours of good fun, among them Mr. Ivan Clancy, who

FLOWER SHOW TO BE HELD

Thursday, September 8th, is the date that has been chosen by the Stirling Horticultural Society for the Fourth Annual Flower Show, to be held under its auspices. The show will be held in the Stirling Community Hall and it is hoped and expected that this year's show will excel any that have been held in the past. The officers, under the presidency of Mr. J. B. Belshaw, have been working hard in preparation for this annual event and have prepared a prize list that should appeal to the flower growers of Stirling and district. Last year's show was a decided success and it is expected that this year's show will surpass it. We urge the citizens of Stirling and district to study the prize list, which appears on another page, and plan to become an exhibitor.

A BEAUTY SPOT

While Stirling is noted for its many fine homes with well-kept lawns and attractive surroundings, there is one spot in town which perhaps outdoes any other for real attractiveness. We refer to the Memorial Park, in which stands the cenotaph, erected in memory of those who gave their lives for their country. With the shrubs neatly trimmed, a number of beds of the season's flowers, and the grass cut and trimmed, the park always presents an attractive appearance and cannot fail to impress the visitors to our village. This beauty spot is a result of the efforts of a committee of public-spirited citizens, headed by Mrs. H. H. Alger, and Mr. James Mitchell caretaker, and is a credit to the community. Citizens in general should be grateful to those responsible for the care and management of the park and should take particular care that its immediate surroundings in no way detract from its beauty and attractiveness.

WANTED — EXHIBITS

Don't forget Stirling's Fall Fair is only a few weeks away and now is the time to decide to become an exhibitor. The primary need for any fair is exhibitors, and in order to increase their number the directors have gone over the list and a number of changes have been made, with the prize money in the cattle classes being increased. A drive for new memberships has been meeting with good success as well as the canvas for donations. Each day brings its quota of additional special prizes and it is safe to say that the 1938 prize list will be a most attractive one from the exhibitors' point of view. The directors in charge of the preparation of the list have done a splendid job and it remains for the farmers of the surrounding district to show appreciation of their efforts and exhibit their prize stock or vegetables at the local fair. The lists will be issued shortly and every farmer in the district should make certain to obtain one and take advantage of the prizes offered. Plan now to become an exhibitor at Hastings County's biggest Furl fair. It is your Fair — make certain that you boost it.

ALCOHOL INCREASES HAZARDS

The hazards which drivers and pedestrians take when they drink alcoholic beverages is revealed in a report made by Dr. Thomas A. Gonzales, Chief Medical Examiner for the City of New York, which states that scientific tests carried out by his office indicate that 40 per cent. of the persons killed in New York highway accidents last year had been consuming alcoholic beverages.

Dr. Gonzales reports also that examinations of the brains of 582 pedestrians killed in New York traffic in the last 24-month period show that 34 per cent. definitely were under the influence of alcohol.

Similar tests of the brains of 61 drivers of private cars who met with fatal disaster during the same time show that 44 per cent. were under definite alcoholic influence.

What Others Say

SECRECY DOES NOT PAY

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

Nothing but distrust and suspicion is ever gained when a town council holds a secret or private meeting. Town Councils should not make the same mistake twice. There is much to be gained by taking newspapers into confidence and keeping the public informed at all times.

NEWSPAPER ADVERTISING BEST

(Fergus News-Record)

A Fergus housewife was rather surprised lately to find half-a-dozen posters for a sale in a Fergus store tucked under the cushions of her verandah chairs. The boy who distributed them probably wanted to get rid of his bundle as quickly as possible and decided that the merchant would never know the difference. And that's one more reason why newspaper advertising has its advantages.

SPORT NEEDED IN EVERY COMMUNITY

(Brighton Ensign)

Bargaining this week for a special weekly feature for the Ensign (which we hope will begin with our next issue) and which we trust will find favour with many of our readers, we regretfully mused on the fact that it is a very great pity, when such an otherwise progressive town as ours has no ball team.

Something more than a ball team is lacking. A would-be facetious reader

More than 55 per cent. of the victims of subway accidents examined had been drinking enough to slow their mental reactions.

The Doctor concludes significantly: "While the traffic regulations are very effective in materially reducing highway accidents, they cannot control the action of pedestrian or driver whose reaction time, muscular co-ordination and mental faculties are reduced by the ingestion of alcoholic beverages."

It is worthy of note that the Chief Medical Examiner did not say that the accident victims examined by his department and found to be under the influence of alcohol, were intoxicated in the ordinary meaning of the word. He merely reports that the victims were definitely affected by the drinks they had consumed. This should be ample reason why drivers should abstain from alcohol and pedestrians also, if they have to dodge about in heavy traffic. — Cobourg Sentinel Star.

CURRENT COMMENT

Some of the people who complain because building costs are too high are the same ones who have destroyed valuable timber by carelessness with fire in the woodlands.

The Championship of the Rawdon Softball League has been won by the Glen Ross team after a hard-fought series with Springbrook. Both teams played a good brand of ball and the winners proved themselves worthy champions of the district. Congratulations.

One of our exchanges calls attention to the dangerous practice of two people riding on a bicycle intended for only one. This is often done by the young boys and girls of the village, but fortunately there have not been any accidents. Parents should warn their children against this dangerous practice.

Tuesday, August 2nd, was the last day for payment of the first instalment of the municipal taxes, and the tax collector reports a good response by the property-holders of the village, with a good percentage of the total being received. The Village Council is dependent on the payment of the first instalment to keep interest charges down to a minimum and the prompt payment by the taxpayers will be good news for them.

Twenty-four years ago today, August 4th, the nations of the world plunged into the greatest war of all history. The assassination of an Austrian Grand Duke supplied the match which set off the world conflict at that time, and the world is anxiously watching the situation developing in the Far East, with Japan and China still fighting after a year's conflict and repeated engagements being reported between the Japanese and the Soviet forces. The German-Czechoslovakian situation is also being closely watched, and things in general are not looking any too promising, but it is the hope of all that the spirit of "peace at any price" will prevail.

Motorists who have occasion to use the Stirling-Belleville Highway are complaining of the stretch of road between here and Foxboro, which has become very rough lately. This road carries a very heavy traffic during the summer months and at this time of year is usually rough in spite of the work done by the maintenance man. Apparently this same condition applies to other highways of the district as last week's Tweed News drew attention to the unsatisfactory condition of No. 37 Highway running from Actinolite to Belleville. Highway construction work in this end of the province is far below other years and it begins to look as though motorists using this stretch of road can expect no action from the Department until another year rolls around.

Monday was observed as Civic Holiday in Stirling, and all places of business were closed. No celebration of any kind was held in the Village, but many of the residents attended the Centennial celebration in the neighbouring hamlet of Wellmans, while others went elsewhere for entertainment. There was a time when Stirling held celebrations on the public holidays during the year, but of late years this practice has fallen into disuse, and we think the village has been the loser. Other towns have their reunions and celebrations with varying degrees of success, but Stirling is apparently content to do nothing to attract visitors to the village on public holidays. There is no better way to promote and foster a community spirit than by staging an occasional celebration, and it is hoped that steps are taken along this line another year.

probably says "Yeah — a manager and some players", but it's more than that, and the fact is all the more evident because the majority of our neighbouring communities have teams playing in the county league. And a manager could be found — one who would be an excellent manager, although no is already as busy with his own business affairs as is necessary for any one to be. Players can be rounded up too; perhaps not potential Babe Ruths but chaps who know the rules of the game and would help provide the interest and amusement derived from the ideal Summer sport.

The things that are lacking are pride and selfishness. If enough of us could get our pride touched to the extent of being ashamed that we haven't a ball team and be unselfish enough to share the enthusiasm and time we have for our pet hobbies, we would have a ball team. And given that sort of backing they would likely play good ball.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

No variation in prices was noted on Belleville Saturday Market. Green corn sold at 15¢ per dozen; fine large plump cauliflowers ranged in price from 10¢ to 20¢, according to the size thereof. New potatoes at 20¢ the peck; fresh luscious tomatoes at 10¢ the berry box; wax and green beans; vegetable marrow, saw no change in price, while beets, carrots, onions, radishes and cabbage sold at the conventional price of a nickel per bunch.

Predominating in a lavish fruit display were all varieties of berries, cherries, etc. Long black berries sold at 20¢ the box, while red raspberries brought straight 10¢ with the blue variety selling at 3 boxes for a quarter. Huckleberries sold at 75¢ the eight quart basket and bright red cherries sold at 35¢ a six quart basket. The cherries included Ox Heart, Montmorencies and Richmonds. Red and white currants also found favour at 10¢ a box.

Eggs advanced one cent in price, class "A" selling at 28¢ a dozen, with pullet's eggs bringing 25¢ the dozen. No change marked the price of dairy butter, which sold at 65¢ for a two-pound roll, however. Home cooking featured the inside market and saw a brisk business as summer-tired housewives stocked their pantries with these commodities in preference to baking at home. Chickens were plentiful, broilers selling at 60¢ to 90¢ the pair, with mature chickens bringing anywhere from 70¢ to $1.00 each. Fresh fish was also offered for sale on the outside market.

CHEESE BOARD

A total of 2546 boxes of which and 357 boxes assorted cheese offered on the Belleville Cheese Board on Saturday morning sold at 13 9-16¢ for 300 white and the balance at 13 1-2 cents. One factory, Harold, with 67 white cheese, refused sale after boarding.

Buyers were Messrs Cook, Morton, Murphy, Hart and Taylor. Mr. McCreary registered the high bid for the 300 boxes.

PLANS FOR ERECTION OF CAIRN ARE MADE

Announcement has been made by Fraser Aylesworth of Madoc, speaking on behalf of the Ontario Land Surveyors' Association, of plans for the erection of a cairn in the city of Kingston, seventy feet from the Sir John A. Macdonald monument in the Kingston city park, to mark the beginning of the land survey of the Province of Ontario. The actual start of the surveying operations was made a chain's length from the water's edge at West Street, but it has been decided to place the cairn in the city park as a more suitable location. The cairn will be 9 feet and 7 inches high and four feet wide at the base and will be marked by a plaque.

COVERING THE WORLD OF SPORT

If anyone should be a good judge of a baseball pitcher, it would seem logical that a player famed as one of the greatest hitters of the modern day would be fully qualified to pass judgment. And when his opinion is seconded by a veteran umpire who has been gazing at balls and strikes for years, it would seem to be based on A-1 authority.

Jimmy Foxx, veteran first baseman of the Boston Red Sox is the renowned hitter and Bill McGowan, ace American League umpire is the arbiter in the case. The object of their analytical eyes is none other than Joe Kraskus, young Canadian hurler with Washington Senators. Foxx, whose potent bat helped club Philadelphia Athletics to consecutive championships in 1929-30-31, was asked the other day what he thought of Johnny Vander Meer, sensational Cincinnati rookie who recently hurled two consecutive no-hit, no-run games. This was Jimmy's reply:

"Tell you what, there's a lefty down in Washington who's got him licked in every way except one. And that's control. That kid Kraskus is faster and he's got a better curve, too."

"More stuff than the man who tossed two straight no-hitters?"

"Sure," said Jimmy, "he's one of the fastest fellows who ever threw a baseball."

McGowan, who has gazed at the offerings of some of the greatest pitchers of all time, said in referring to Kraskus: "He's terribly fast. I think he may be faster than Lefty Grove was in his prime, and brother, that's fast."

Lack of control, therefore, seems to be the only thing that's keeping the Canadian lad from reaching the heights in big league ball. When he winds up and burns one in it sure has plenty of steam, but Joe never knows whether it's going over the plate or up into the press box. Here's hoping the major league coaches will be able to teach the former Hamilton boy how to control his great power. If they do, this country will be proud of Joseph some day.

SPORTS ODDITY — The other day at New Hamburg, Ont., with the local nine scoring a 6-5 victory over Woodstock in an Intercounty Intermediate "C" game, everything was hunky-dory except that the management wondered where the crowd was. A freak rainstorm turned out to be the answer. The park, situated at the west end of the town, enjoyed fair weather, but at the east end rain fell heavily, causing fans to assume that the game would be postponed.

As we predicted in this column several weeks ago, Canada's Davis Cup bid didn't get to first base. If we may reach into the baseball realm to borrow a phrase, it was pointed out then that this country is not climatically suited to tennis, and that unless players were able to indulge in year-round practice against capable opponents, the Dominion would never make a mark in international tennis. Only the sons of the rich are financially able to travel south in the winter, and while the Canadian Lawn Tennis Association has made an effort to provide funds to send Canadian lads to other countries, the lack of funds handicaps their efforts. They must choose their players far ahead, whereas Japan who defeated Canada at Montreal last week in the first round of the North American zone matches, picks fifty young players, sends them into camp and carefully weeds them out until only the very best remain. The results are obvious. Only recently, just before Japan announced that it would not stage the 1940 Olympics, fifty young Jap soccer players were selected, sent to a mountain resort under skilled coaches, to prepare for an event two years off — and one comparatively unimportant on the Olympic calendar. This is characteristic of Japanese sincerity of purpose — when the little brown men from the Land of the Rising Sun set out upon a project, they certainly go the limit to ensure its success.

QUESTIONS DEPT. — What is the longest career of any top-ranking boxer? (Answer at foot of column).

ODDS 'N' ENDS — The Royal Canadian Curling Club, of Scotland, at its annual meeting recently, paid high tribute to E. Percy Atkinson of Toronto, by electing the Queen City man a vice-president. This is the first time an Ontario curler has been honoured by the mother club. Marvin "Cyclone" Wentworth, ace defenceman of the Montreal Maroons, proved last week that he slings a driver and a putter almost as well as a hockey shillelagh when he eliminated Ken Black, of Vancouver in the Canadian title golf tournament at London, but Marve went out in the next round. Tony Bonk, former London, Ont., first baseman in Intercounty league warfare, is now a teammate of Schoolboy Rowe, one-time ace pitcher of the Detroit Tigers. Both are on the roster of the Brownsville club of the Texas League, Rowe having been recently shipped back to the minors when he failed to regain the form he displayed in pitching Detroit to a world series over Chicago Cubs in 1935. They have it that the pictures of the Max Schmeling-Joe Louis fight, being shown in Germany have been doctored. Some of the bright spots in their first meeting, in which Max was showing up well, have been injected into the picture. Seems as if the good burghers in Hitlerland will swallow anything. But bad they can't work in a few scenes from "Snowwhite and the Seven Dwarfs." Which leads up to the one about the fellow who says he is going to produce a picture starring Joe Louis and the New York National League baseball club less pitcher and catcher. Says he is going to call it "Coalblack and the Seven Giants!" We'll get 'im, we're nearest!

A YEAR AGO IN SPORT — One year ago, on August 5, 1937, Harold S. Vanderbilt's Ranger defeated T. O. M. Spowith's Endeavour II, British Challenger, crossing the finish line a half mile ahead of the invader to score his fourth and deciding victory in defence of the Americas Cup. Spowith beat the gun and was called back to restart, the American gaining an eighth lead on this technicality. The races took place off Newport, R.I.

It is doubtful if one could search back through the annals of sport and find a more tragic figure than that of Primo Carnera, massive Italian who for a brief period held the world's heavyweight championship. Nature endowed him with a body that made him a freak among ordinary men, a giant who towered over his ring opponents like some being from another world. Power, tremendous power rippled in the tremendous muscles of his broad back, but he lacked knowledge of the first rudiments of the noble and manly art of self-defence, and more important, he lacked a fighting heart — the urge to batter another human being about with thinly-gloved fists.

As a boy he was the object of ogling eyes because of his unnatural size, and at an early age he drifted away from home and into circus life, where he worked as a "strong man". The beady eyes of Leon See, French fight promoter, saw in the giant Italian great prospects and he signed Carnera up and took him to America. See was not long able to keep control of Primo, however, for the fight racket, has many obstacles for an unversed European with a prospect, and before long Carnera had more managers than a farmer has troubles. For six years the Ambling Alp campaigned on this continent and while he won the world's title in that time he also took a great number of terrific beatings. Finally, two years ago, in a bout with Leroy Haynes, the huge Italian reached the end — staggering blindly about under a terrific bombardment of rights and lefts, he put his hands over his gory face and muttered through puffed lips: "I gotta nuff, I gotta nuff."

Many will imagine that Carnera is pretty well fixed, as he earned several fortunes in his checkered career. But the many managers, handlers and hangers-on connived to leech the unfortunate Italian of his huge earnings, most of which was painfully earned on the wrong end of a right hook. A broken, disillusioned shell of the eager young giant who came out in 1930, Primo sailed back to his native shores, but this week comes the payoff, the final, most unkind thrust of all, when reports from Milan, Italy, tell of Carnera appearing in a stage show, in tights, surrounded by five dancing girls. Mounting a pedestal, Primo assumed fighting pose and showed his muscles. But the result failed to enthrall his countrymen, who booed the performance throughout.

ANSWERS DEPT. — Robert L. "Bob" Fitzsimmons had the longest career of any top ranking fighter. Starting his career as an amateur at the age of 17 in 1880 in New Zealand, Ruby Robert fought his last fight 35 years later at 52 when he went six rounds, no decision, against K. O. Sweeney in Philadelphia. During his hectic career he won the middle, light-heavy and heavyweight crowns, never weighed more than 170, yet beat many 200-odd pounders.

"He must be," was the reply. "He's already asked how much I make, what kind of meals we have, and how you and mother are to live with."

A young man, knocked down by an auto, was rushed to a hospital. As a result of shock, he didn't know his identity or where he lived. So they examined his clothes. The socks were marked "N.F."; the belt buckle bore the initial "L" and his underwear had "Ryan" sewn on it.

"Well," said the doctor, "we're making some progress. He's a fraternity man."

Pat was told by his lawyer that his best course was to plead guilty on the charge against him.

The old home known as the Billa Flint McCumber house was burned during a recent electric storm. The late Mr. B. F. McCumber was known far and wide as a great hunter of the pleasant little animal known as the skunk. There was great lamenting about who would kill the skunks when Mr. McCumber passed away. The writer has many pleasant memories of visiting in the old house, watching the pelts being removed and enjoying the odor of Skunks to the right of us, Skunks to the left of us, Skunks on the floor Odors flying thick and fast When pelts were nailed at last, Stretched up for to dry.

Especially when death has come suddenly and brutally in an automobile accident.

Lifeless, mangled bodies, crushed under the wheels of a motor car, strewn about in a tangled mess of crumpled metal and shattered glass, tell grim, horrible tales.

They tell tales of needless death — death that was the result of carelessness, neglect, thoughtlessness or inconsideration, for those human weaknesses are responsible every time traffic on city streets or country highways claims another life.

Few people seem to listen to the tales the dead tell, however. Perhaps it is because of the horror which must necessarily accompany their tales, but more often than not it is because the ego in most people places them above their fellow men.

"It couldn't happen to me," they think, whether they say it or not. But couldn't it? Shove that ego into the background for a while and do some serious thinking. Then you may realize that you can be killed as easily as anyone else and that you also can kill. Of course, it isn't a pleasant thought, but it is true.

Death has no special preferences, when it comes to taking life in automobile accidents. Just give it a chance to strike — lapse into carelessness for a moment, overlook or defy some traffic regulation, or selfishly ignore some driver's or pedestrian's rights — and it will. And it will strike before you realize what is happening, suddenly and cruelly.

If you want to have a normal span of life, if you don't want to become a killer, drive and walk with care, courtesy and common sense.

Take heed of the tales that dead men do tell.

With an attendance of approximately one hundred and fifty, the day was all that could be desired. At noon, when all had gathered and the ladies had laden the tables with good things, Grace was sung and everyone did full justice to a splendid meal. Family History

Following is a copy of the family history, prepared by Mrs. Ethel Hoard and Mrs. Elmer Roy:

Archibald McGee and his wife Katharine Mitchell, who immigrated to Canada in 1839 are originally the covenants of Scotland. Two little boys escaped and got to the North of Ireland, Antrim County, fleeing with other people. The rest of the family were murdered. They settled there and their occupation was linen weaving, and they attended the old Scottish Kirk. The covenants were the people who cut their arms and with the blood wrote their names, for Jesus rather than submit to the persecution of the Roman Governor. Then in later years the generations came to Canada, first of which was Archibald McGee and his wife Catherine, with their family, Thomas, aged 16 years, John 14, Andrew 12, Jennie 10, Sam 8, Betty 2, and Katherine 3 weeks when they left County Antrim, Ireland. Archie was born three years after their arrival in Canada. One boy died in infancy, Thomas, the eldest son, after a number of years, married Winnifred Costello. Eight children were born to this union, five of which grew up and married, namely: Jennie married Fred Ward; Katherine married Wm. Reynolds; Rose Ann married Frank Emerson, Archie married Mary Ann Bell; Thomas who married

The family of John McGee and Jane Thompson are:

Elizabeth married Charlie Demorest, Agnes married Frank Demorest, Mary McGee, not married; Robert McGee married Wilhelmine Luterhan, Susan Susan married Sam Roy, Bertha married Fred Buskard, Kitty married Harry Wheeler.

The family of Andrew McGee and Liza McCann are Archie, who married Mary Lannigan, Daniel married Jessie Cook, Emma married Robert Lannigan, Andrew married Hannah McCaw, John E. married Jennie Roy and Libby married Tom Montgomery.

The family of Jennie McGee and James Montgomery are Archibald who never married, James who married Alice Robinson, Katharine married John Vance, Thomas married Mary Donnan, Phrona married John Hawkins and James Elliott, Lizzie married Robert Duncan, Emma married Joseph Reid, Jennie married Alfred Reid, Maud married Ernest Saries, and Bess. The family of Sam McGee and Isabel Brown are: John J. married Annie Winters and Mary Elliott, Albert married Kate Callan, Archie married Maud Meggison, Deborah married Elgin Jackman, George married Lizzie Lowe, Andy not married, Sam married Hannah Kerr, Thomas marrying Mary Luella Taylor.

The family of Betty McGee and Daniel McGee are Rose marrying Levi Rupert, Thomas marrying Blanche Gordon, Archie not married, Mary Jane marrying Thomas Spry, John M. marrying Agnes Tulloch, Sam marrying Little Spry, Kate not married; three boys, Harry, Andrew and Willie died when young.

The family of Katharine McGee and Archibald Montgomery are Mary Jane, eldest, died when young, James marrying Charlotte Duncan, Jennie marrying David Arthur Martin, Tom marrying Libbie McGee, Lizzie and Thillie marrying Wesley Hawkins, Emma marrying Will Seeley, Kate marrying Van Warren, Aggie marrying Joseph Geary, Alma marrying Dr. Jacoby, and a baby died in infancy.

The family of Archie McGee and Jane McCaw are Mary Ann marrying William Reid, Charles marrying Emma Stewart, Minnie died when 2 years of age, Fred not married, Ethel married Haruch Hoard and Clarence married Rosa Bateman.

The first generation, after coming to Canada, spent the first year in Platon, then moving to Rawdon, 1st concession, residing there the rest of their life. Stirling was then called Rawdon Village. The youngest son, Archie, with his wife and mother, lived with his father and mother on the homestead until they passed away. Later Archie passed away. Then his son, Fred, and his mother, remained on the farm until the year 1819. The Homestead was then disposed of. The old generations of Archibald McGee and his wife, Katherine Mitchell, their sons and daughters, have all passed to the Great Beyond, and many of their descendants, so those that are spared have met today, husbands, wives and children, to pay honour and tribute to the great old name of this pioneer family. This is the history of the 1st, 2nd and 3rd generations, and there are six generations now. We would appreciate any further information given us, concerning the family and anyone desirous of carrying on the history of the later generations would be appreciated. It is expected that there will be a fuller report next year as it will be the Centennial year, 1939, of the arrival of the family in Canada. We are indebted to Mrs. Agnes Demorest for this information.

The foregoing history was written by Mrs. Ethel Hoard and Mrs. Elmer Roy.

IRVIN BLAKELY, 19, OF MADOC, DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Irwin Blakely, well known resident of Huntingdon Township, died suddenly at his home two miles south of Madoc early on Saturday from inflammation of the brain lining. Physicians in attendance stated the young man had a germ in the sinus and as he was an excellent swimmer, extensive diving had caused the germ to be driven into the brain lining.

The young man was taken ill on Wednesday and steadily grew more serious until death resulted on Saturday. He was born in Huntingdon Township, 19 years ago, being the son of Mrs. William Blakely and the late Mr. Blakely, and has resided in that district all his life. He was a member of White Lake United Church and leaves to mourn his loss his mother, two brothers, Leslie and Lawrence, also one sister, Marjorie, all at home. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Eggleton, of Stirling, are the young man's grandparents.

The funeral of the late Irwin Blakely took place on Monday afternoon from the home of his mother, Mrs. William Blakely. The service which was held at his late home, was conducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Delve, ducted by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Delve, of White Lake United Church. The Rev. Mr. Cook, a former pastor and friend of the family, took part in the service also. Rev. Mr. Delve took as his message part of the 23rd Psalm and spoke very comforting words to the mother, brothers and sisters. The White Lake Church choir rendered "Lead, Kindly Light" and two very appropriate hymns, "Safe in the Arms of Jesus" and "Peace, Perfect Peace," were sung.

The pallbearers were Cecil Holland, Burton Holland, Percy Hyde, Bertram Wickens, Stafford Cosway and Elliott Burris. The flower bearers were Leonard Trotter, James Golan, Cecil Woods and Carmen Downey. Interment took place at Lakeview Cemetery.

HISTORY OF ONTARIO ROADS

Throughout history the utilitarian needs of war and commerce have imposed an unending task of road-building upon men. In Ontario there has been no war in a century but last year nearly three million tourists' cars invaded its borders and they left behind $120,000,000 for Ontario business men — a legacy that marked Ontario's road-builders as the leading "business producers" of the province.

A miracle of transit within the last decade has brought swiftly changing advances in road building and Ontario's road-builders have kept pace because it was "good business." They have remained aware of the fact that roads must serve the essential economic needs — and with an infinitely greater efficiency and safety than in the past.

Nor is it enough that Ontario's "Main Street" shall be the super-highway of advanced engineering — the thoroughfares straightaway and broad, divided where density of traffic demands, sweeping across the province from border to border, and withal, safe and comfortable routes of travel. Indeed, they must be no less than that in the new pattern which Ontario's road-builders have applied to the larger task.

But it is more than just "good roads" that bring this wealth of tourist business to Ontario, it is good roads leading somewhere. That "somewhere" may be Callander and the famous Dionne children; Muskoka, Georgian Bay or the Kawartha Lakes; Quinte and the St. Lawrence, or countless other scenes in a far-flung holiday land. But somewhere these "somewhere" scenes have beckoned the tourist or the Ontario holiday-seeker, the road-builders are each year making his way easier and shorter.

That has been part of the increasing task. In the north recent summers have seen the development of a network of byways becoming known as Muskoka Lanes. More than seventy miles of these hard surfaced, all-weather drives through the lakes are in use this season. Similarly into the Georgian Bay area and through the picturesque lake country north and east new tourist roads have been developed.

And too, when engineers mapped the new and greater highways now in the making as main trunk routes across the province, the preservation and development of potential scenic beauty was a factor in location. Thus the road-builders are protecting the rich assets of Ontario's vast tourist industry and anticipating greater dividends in years to come.

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

TWELFTH INSTALMENT

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting tells a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff defends Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceed on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to see the town banker, Mr. Pearson. Mortgage is renewed and Dave decides to get enough money to pay off the mortgage by raising alfalfa and selling it. Following night, the lake is blown up, and Dave inwardly accuses Hammond. The latter blames Dave. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions.

Their ride was checked only once and that was when they had reached a pass that looked as if it would take them across the mountains to the east slope. The pass was narrow, guarded by two natural ramparts of rock.

As they were about to enter it a voice hailed them.

"Don't come no further."

"Shet up, Cassidy," Lew called out. "Where's the red-head?" Cassidy asked.

"Pat's after him," Lew growled.

It was dark when they reached the ranch buildings. Dave could see nothing but several lighted windows in a building tucked in the folds of jagged rocky hills.

The door was immediately opened and Lew called for a lantern. A sandy-haired cowpuncher came out with it and Dave recognized him as the man who had stuck up Quinn on the train.

"Well, Turner, how's the hero now?" He sneered. His face slid into sullen ugliness. "Let's get that hombre off. I'm going to see how far my fist will go down his throat."

"I reckon you won't," a voice drawled from the door. The man who had spoken was lounging against the door. He was so big and tall that his head almost touched the top of the door. His light hair was closely cropped. His features were even and his lazy smile was as winning as a woman's. Was this the Sayres that Fat had mentioned.

Chinch whirled to glare at the speaker. "What's the difference Sayres?"

"Cut it," Sayres snapped. "Step in, Turner."

Dave went in. The inside of the shack showed double-checked wall benches surrounding a large table on which bottles, cards and glasses were scattered.

"Sit down," Sayres said politely. Dave sat, wondering what was in store for him.

"Like a smoke?" he asked Dave. "I would," Dave answered.

Sayres lit a cigarette and put it in Dave's mouth. They sat quietly. Dave, with tense muscles, until the three other men came in.

Sayres turned to Chinch. "Saddle up. You got to take the paper to Crowell."

Chinch glared at Sayres, who laughed softly. "If you're a good boy, Chinch, and don't sulk, I might give you a poke at him."

"Wonderin' what we're talking about Turner?" Sayres said.

Dave shrugged carelessly and watched Sayres take a paper from his shirt pocket, unfold it, and lay it on the table.

"That's a deed to your half of the D Bar T," Sayres said evenly. "You're here to sign it."

"Maybe," Dave said. Sayres laughed easily. "You take a lot of spookin', don't you?" Over his shoulder he said: "Take off your guns, boys, and untie him."

Dave watched them take off their guns, after which they gathered around him and watched Lew untie the knots.

"Turner," Sayres began, "you're goin' to sign your ranch over to a man named Crowell, shall we say? I'm givin' you one chance. I'm askin' you to sign without bein' forced to. Will you?"

"No," Dave answered promptly.

"That's too bad," Sayres said softly. "Maybe I didn't make myself plain enough. We want the ranch. You sign your half away and the paper is produced to your sister. When she sees that you have signed we expect her to sign her half away. We're givin' her quite a reasonable sum, Turner. Much more than the ranch is worth to you and her. Wouldn't it be better if you signed and not forced me to..." he left the finish dangling.

"No."

"Get that hammer, Lew," Sayres said. Lew got a heavy hammer from one of the bunks.

"Now spread his left hand out, palm down, on the table," Sayres ordered.

Sayres drew a ten-penny spike from his shirt pocket and looked at Dave. "Observe this, Turner," Sayres said. "You see, I mean what I say." Placing the spike point on the back of Dave's hand just below the third finger, he drove the nail through the flesh and into the bone.

"Now get the axe," Sayres said. Lew white-faced, disappeared outside and came back with an axe.

"I might as well tell you the rest, Turner," Sayres said. "I'm going to cut your fingers off, one by one. Are you such a fool, Turner, that you think your sister can't be killed? If we wouldn't stop at torturing, do you think we'd stop at killing her?"

Dave's face was parchment-coloured now, partly from the pain which he could endure, but mostly from what Sayres had just told him. He knew now that Sayres was not bluffing and that he could and would kill Mary and Winters after he had tortured him to death.

"I'll sign," Dave said weakly. "Good," Sayres said jovially. He took a pen from a shelf near by along with a bottle of ink. Dave signed his name.

"I reckon there's not much to say to a coyote like, you, Sayres," Dave said, his voice trembling with a suppressed rage. "Except this: If I live long enough, I'll kill you like I would a rattlesnake."

Chinch stepped forward. "What about that promise?"

Sayres shrugged. "Go ahead." Chinch stepped up to Dave, who was still seated, planted his feet firmly and drew back his hand.

Dave lunged out of his chair and drove his bleeding fist into Chinch's face, sending him sprawling across the room and into a bunk where he lay inert.

Sayres laughed. Lunging off the table, he walked over to the bunk and slapped Chinch's face until the unconscious man groaned and sat erect.

"Still feel like curlin' your tail, Chinch?" Sayres asked.

Chinch glared at him. "Now get saddles and hightail it," Sayres ordered. "Crowell's waiting. Get goin'." Chinch slunk out, and Sayres turned to Lew. "Take him out in the back room and put those leg irons on him."

Dave was prodded into a one-room addition at the rear of the shack which served as a storeroom of sorts. He was handcuffed, seated on the floor facing the log wall and his feet were manacled with a logging chain to the drop log of the addition. When they were finished, Sayres came in to look over the job and after granting his approval left with the other two. Lew slammed the door shut after him, but it swung open a couple of inches so that Dave could see them moving in front of the crack occasionally, and a dim shaft of light filtered into the room.

"Get something to eat," Sayres ordered.

Dave could hear the rattle of a fry-pan. His hand throbbed achingly with the pumping of his heart and his fingers were stiff and numb. Lying on his back and staring at the ceiling he tried to read some sense into all that had happened to him. They were trying to get the ranch. Why? Lew's voice broke into his reverie. "When'll the gal be here?"

"Not very long now. We got to get him out of the way," Sayres said. Dave fought down a cold wave of terror and fear. A girl! That would be Mary. They were going to get her, bring her up here, and they were on their way now. More than that, they were going to shoot him like a coyote. And what would they do to Mary when he was gone?

Sayres' voice, a little clogged with food, came to him again.

"When you jaspers get back from this next job, you'll find the girl here; And if one of you mention Crowell's name in front of her, you might just as well give yourself up to the sheriff, because you'll be a dead man. Get that? She's got to be here without ever hearing the name of Crowell."

Laredo set his glass down and eyed the bandage on the head of the bartender.

"Where'd you get that?" he asked. The bartender eyed him sourly.

"I'm tellin' you for the last time. I think you give it to me last night."

Laredo's gaze, a little befuddled, swept up to the mirror and what he saw made him blink. He turned slowly.

Rosy was standing by the swinging doors. He looked around the saloon, saw Laredo come over.

"Oh, Lord! Again," the bartender moaned.

"Hello, Red. Have a drink," Laredo offered.

"You sober?" Rosy asked.

"Some."

"Where's the sheriff? I can't find him."

"Asleep, likely. What's the trouble?"

"Then you'll have to do it," Rosy said. "First thing, do you mind gettin' in a scrap?"

Laredo grinned. "I never turned one down yet."

"All right. Second thing. Can you tell me how I get to Sayres' hang-out?"

Laredo gave him detailed directions and warned him of lookouts.

"All right. Third thing," Rosy said. "There's a hombre here in town by the name of Crowell. Hank Lowe is lookin' for him," Rosy said. "He's connected with the dynamitin. Now get this careful. Crowell will be here at the hotel registered. I want you to pick a scrap with him and fix it up with Hank so that Crowell is arrested and locked in jail. Got that?"

"Sure."

"Now here's what you got to remember, and to tell Hank. Crowell has got to be locked up, but he must not suspect that we know he's connected with the dynamitin. Hank has got to lock him up on a phony charge and hold him till I get back."

"All right," Laredo said soberly.

"but you better write Hank a note explainin' that."

Rosy described Crowell quickly. "Hank around the clerk in the hotel and have him point Crowell out to you. And have Hank hold him till I get back."

Rosy started for the door, stopped in midstride, and hesitated a moment. Then he turned to the bar, picked up the pencil and wrote another note.

It read: Quinn: Mary Winters is in town, and so is Winters. Keep an eye on him.

He handed it to Laredo. "And give this to Quinn over at the Free Throw."

When Rosy left Mary at the Mile High, she wanted to ask him a thousand questions, but his frown stopped her. She didn't even know why he was in such a hurry.

After asking at a store where Hammond lived, she mounted and rode down the street. The house was at the edge of the town and she found it easily.

Mary dismounted at the gate and walked slowly to the door. It was open a few inches. Her knock was unanswered.

"There must be some one here," she thought and swung the door open further.

A table lay squarely in front of the door, a white rectangle of envelope shining on its dark surface. She looked at the envelope lying there as if intended for her. On it was written in bold letters. To you.

NEW TYPE OF BERRY

A Prince Edward County gardener is this year growing a species of hybrid berry known in its natural habitat, the Rocky Mountains, as "boysenberries."

The berries, which measure one inch in length and three quarters of an inch in diameter, are the result of cross pollination between the blackberry, raspberry and blueberry. They are darkish brown in colour, with some nearly black.

A PREACHER'S HARD LOT

A preacher has a hard time. If his hair is white, he is too old. If he is a young man he hasn't had any experience. If he has ten children, he has too many. If he has none, he should have and it isn't showing a good example. If his wife sings in the choir, she is presuming. If she doesn't she dislikes her husband's work. If a preacher reads his notes he is a bore. If he speaks extemporaneously he isn't deep enough. If he stays at home to study, he doesn't mix with the people. If he is seen around the streets he ought to be at home getting up a good sermon. If he calls at the home of the poor he is playing to the grandstand. If he calls at the home of the rich, he is an aristocrat. Whatever he does someone could have told him how to do it better. Next to being an editor, or a school teacher, it is an awful life!

BEAUTY PROBLEMS

DISCUSSED BY

Barbara Lynn

Eminent Beauty Authority and Adviser who writes weekly articles on Beauty Problems for many Canadian Newspapers

ARE YOU OVERWEIGHT?

You can get thin if you want to. There's no doubt about that. But it's not quite as easy as falling off a log! And there is no one way for all of us to reduce. A regimen that will slice pounds off one person will register no effect on another.

What causes overweight? Fifteen per cent of cases of overweight are due to glandular maladjustment, or to disease, or to the natural glandular changes which occur at certain times in the life of a woman.

The other 85 per cent are due simply to over-eating and under-exercising, whether you like to admit it or not — and if you're like us, you probably won't.

Over-eating implies not necessarily eating too much, but eating too much of the wrong things, too. Most of us eat for pleasure, but to the body, food is simply fuel. If you eat so much that the body has more fuel than it needs, then it stores up the excess as fat.

Output Must Exceed Intake Whatever method you use to reduce, the output has to be more than the intake. In other words, you have to dispose of more fat than you are adding to your system by eating.

If you are really obese you should under no circumstances initiate a drastic reducing regimen excepting under your doctor's direction. For if your overweight is due to some disease or glandular maladjustment it is dangerous to tamper ill-advisedly with drastic dieting.

Happily, however, for the vast majority of us, it is simply a question of devising an individual system of reducing that will be personally effective.

Massage alone will not do; exercising by itself will not achieve your purpose either. But dieting will, and it is the only real solution to problems of excess poundage. Dieting, plus a judicious amount of exercise and some proper massaging.

Golf Week in The Canadian Rockies

The Banff Springs Hotel's annual golf week is set for August 22-27, and the contest for the long list of cups and prizes will be waged in a mountain setting so beautiful as to make the old adage, keep your eye on the ball, doubly difficult of fulfillment.

Golf week at the Banff Springs course will see many notable U.S. and Canadian amateurs with a sprinkling of British and European entrants, fighting it out for the Edward Prince of Wales trophy.

put up by former King Edward VIII, and the Willingdon cup for men, Associated Screen News cup and the Brewster trophy and a host of other coveted awards for women.

As much as a social as a golfing event, Banff's golf week is the signal for a round of informal entertainment centred at the baronial Banff Springs hotel, beneath the terrace of which the great golf course winds down over the Spray River for 6,640 yards of unrivalled fairways and greens. A golfer's ball in the big hotel ballroom Saturday night brings the week to a close with presentation of cups and prizes.

The spectacular Banff Springs course has its fairways laid along the valley of the Bow River into which the rushing Spray dumps its green waters beneath the towering first tee. BEHIND THE HEADLINES

OTTAWA

(By Dean Wilson)

It was shown in last week's column that along Parliament Hill there is an indication that well-informed circles believe that Canada cannot remain absolutely neutral in any war which may involve the external trade of this country, nor will it be possible for Canada to ignore any effort on the part of land-hungry nations like Japan, Italy and Germany to invade this country. It was proven that over-populated countries are gazing in this direction for expansion and they are no longer hiding these ambitions for new lands and new fields for trading privileges. Then again, it was pointed out that Canada cannot remain both in and out of the British Commonwealth of Nations, the great progenitor of liberty and justice, and the most powerful promoter of democracy for everyone. In other words, if Canada is to progress morally, intellectually and economically, this country must assume its proper position amongst the nations of the world and this implies a definite foreign policy wherein there is just provision for self-defence and enforcement of purposes.

Every civilized nation has now assumed the slogan that the best means to preserve peace is to prepare for war, though this does not imply that war is inevitable. Consequently, billions and billions of dollars are being spent by these powers for rearmament because it has been found that mere treaties are not a guarantee that peace will prevail, that the League of Nations is at the present time a futile protection against invasion, and that while the other nations are building up land, sea and air forces in a feverish and furious manner, it is impossible for Canada to ignore this blood-thirstiness and a defence programme must be mapped and carried out quickly.

Of course, it is improper for any Government at Ottawa to disclose state secrets, particularly those which relate to national defence and the Canadian Minister has emphasized this fact again and again, but in a diversified place like Canada, this delicate subject cannot be treated in the same manner as in any totalitarian state like Germany or Italy. Therefore, political wrangling has accompanied every pronouncement by the leaders along Parliament Hill.

Those who oppose in a sincere manner any extensive expenditure for defence purposes have definite reasons for this policy. They point out that whatever defence is provided by this country itself would certainly prove inadequate against a foreign power of first rank. They declare that rearmament measures imply martial intentions on the part of this country against some potential enemies and it is really a clear provocation. Then again, they explain that an invasion of Canada is impossible unless these enemies are willing to fight our powerful neighbours to the south. They object to Canada's participation in any war outside the borders of this country and they do not want to meddle in any explosive situation abroad. It is their platform that useless millions are going to be used up in futile efforts at defence, when there is a crying need of this money for the economic and social betterment of many citizens in all sections from Nova Scotia to British Columbia.

On the other side, there are many leaders of political thought in Canada who in equal sincerity demand a strong rearmament policy on the ground that there are many vulnerable points in this country which are a positive danger, that land-hungry nations would not hesitate to attack the property and people of this land by means of aeroplanes brought across the ocean by aircraft-carriers who could evade a blockade by either the British or the American navy, and a certain amount of defence is essential, especially in view of the fact that modern warfare emphasizes ghastly attacks on property and civilians more than on armies, navies and other fighting forces. For example, the followers of this school of thought illustrate their point by showing that a single aircraft-carrier could cripple the whole eastern part of Canada if it manages to get near the gulf of St. Lawrence and they drop bombs and powerful explosives over power plants, bridges, railway centres, waterworks and otherwise bring death to many thousands of our inhabitants and destruction of property that involves millions and millions of dollars, though it would not include any direct clash between the fighting forces of the two sides.

These are the main contentions that one hears along Parliament Hill these days, and while the authorities in the Capital move with extreme caution in all manoeuvres in the Department of National Defence or the Department of External Affairs, which is necessary in a country with so many diversified opinions, it is impossible not to observe that all preparations are being made in order to render an invasion of Canada not only unprofitable for any potential enemy, but almost impossible due to the activities at home and the strong allies abroad. No chances are being taken. Canada is not looking for any trouble, but if any difficulties should arise, the vulnerable centres and resources of this country will not be as vulnerable as they would appear to be at the present time. If one takes seriously the claims that manage to get into the press of this country, Canada is exposed to the invasion of one nation and that is the United States, and such an invasion would only take place for the protection of this country in co-operation with the Motherland and the home forces.

Well-informed military experts will be forced to agree that under such circumstances, no successful invasion of Canada is possible so long as this country retains the ties with the British Commonwealth of Nations and the United States upholds the Monroe Doctrine, both of which appear certain in the opinion of well-informed circles along Parliament Hill. This is the crux of the whole matter of Canada's defence and policy on the international scene. — (Reproduction Prohibited, 1938, Educational Features Syndicate).

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Sanitation for Poultry

Hygiene and sanitation are factors as important to the poultry flock as good stock, clean water, proper feed and range. Failure to maintain clean and sanitary surroundings is frequently the weak spot in poultry management. Cleanliness is essential, as high mortality and reduced egg production follow disease and impaired vitality. To ensure healthy surroundings remove droppings daily and scatter an absorbent such as land plaster over the dropping boards. Renew litter before it becomes too dirty, and supply clean water in clean vessels; disease may spread rapidly through the medium of dirty water or containers.

At least once a year, with a hoe and broom, scrape and sweep clean the floors and walls of the poultry house, removing dust and cobwebs, and if running water is available use the hose at high pressure. Paint roosts and supports with a good coal-tar disinfectant, full strength, and spray frequently with a solution of the same product according to the instructions of the manufacturer. The range also demands its share of precaution. Gravel or sandy loam provide the best sanitary conditions and is easily worked with one-horse plough. All range and yards should be ploughed and cropped yearly and seeded with a quick-growing crop. Sudan grass is palatable and greatly relished. To ensure a good supply, it is well to cut Sudan when about six inches high before allowing the birds access to the yards or range. Ideal sanitary conditions are supplied with a two or three year range rotation; a hoed crop intervening in the three year rotation provides additional protection against parasites that flourish in contaminated soil.

Perennial Weed Control

When the infestation of perennial weeds has spread over a large area, cultural and cropping methods have to be relied upon for their eradication. It is advisable, however, to use sodium chlorate for the eradication of small patches of perennials.

The latter half of the growing season is a good time to make an attack on perennial weeds. There is not quite the same rush of work then as in the spring of the year, and the weather is usually more favourable for the destruction of perennials, particularly couch grass. The roots of this weed are killed by a few days' exposure during dry warm weather and since couch grass is a shallow-rooted weed, a large percentage of its roots can be brought to the surface by cultivation.

Another advantage in favour of killing weeds in the latter half of the growing season, is that it permits the growth of an early crop such as hay or oats cut for green feed, before the treatment commences; or the land may be used for pasture during the time of the year when pasture is most productive.

A partial summer-fallow consists of ploughing in mid-summer followed by cultivation to keep down weed growth during the remainder of the growing season. This treatment should not be commenced later than August 1st, because it takes about three months of cultivation each time any top-growth to exhaust the food reserves stored in the roots of such weeds as perennial sow thistle, Canada thistle and chicory.

There is, however, considerable variation in the number of cultivations required to kill perennial weeds and it should be remembered that an old-established stand of perennials is more difficult to kill than a young growth of the same species.

Keeping down all top growth from July 15 to the end of the growing season will greatly reduce the stand of perennial weeds but for complete eradication of a persistent weed like couch grass, this treatment should be followed up in the next year by a hoed crop, such as corn or potatoes.

The Potato Crop

The early crop is moving in volume from Leamington, Harrow, Dundas, and Burlington. Some growers in the Oakville-Clarkson district are also marketing to a lesser extent. The quality is reported good with no rot in evidence. Size is not so large as in 1937, but the No. 1 grade is being well maintained. Yields are lower on account of lack of sufficient moisture. Supplies are equal to demand and the market is firm at $2.00 to the wholesale dealer. The early crop will be well cleared up in July.

The acreage planted for mid-season marketing is equal to average. The crop is developing well but requires more moisture and flea beetles are plentiful and quite active. This crop will commence moving to market about the last week in July with the yield depending largely on the supply of moisture during the next two weeks.

The planting of main crop potatoes are a little less than in 1937, but were generally planted earlier. Germination was good but growth to date has been uneven and while some fields are knotting for blossoms, the late planting are just well above the ground. It is too early as yet to estimate the prospective yield.

WELLMAN'S CENTENNIAL

read a humorous sketch of Wellman of other days. Mr. Alex Hume, who gave a short sketch of the history of the school and short addresses by Mr. Angus Todd, a former teacher, and Rev. J. O. Totten, who began attending Wellman's school at the age of four. A number gave recitations, among them Will Snarr, Clifford Sharp, Rose-Reid, Hector Whitton and others. Among those who sang songs of other days were Mr. Malcolm Totton; Miss Emma Rennie, Mrs. Johnston and Mrs. Rose Reid. The oldest former pupil present was Mr. James Sharp, with Mr. Alex Hume the next oldest. The school session opened with the Lord's Prayer and was closed with the Benediction.

At the noon hour a cafeteria dinner was served in the church sheds by the ladies of the School Section, assisted by their neighbours and friends. Also at the noon hour the privilege was given to visit the unique exhibition of old relics of other days which was held in the Orange Hall, under the direction of Mrs. Lindsay Pollock. On exhibit were to be seen many things that were a hundred years old. Among the items of interest were some beautiful pieces of silverware that had been loaned to the committee by Mrs. Bowater; spinning wheels that had one time spun cloth in the parlours; green yokes, cradles, quilts, etc. One of the relics of special interest was a snuff box which was used to pass around in church to keep people awake while the minister was preaching those long sermons of other days. A great deal of credit is due Mr. Clifford Sharp, Miss Mary Sharp, Miss Carolyn Johnston, Mrs. Russell Johnston, Mrs. E. Todd and Mrs. L. Pollock for this very fine and interesting collection of old relics.

Lovers of softball witnessed two games during the afternoon with Seymour defeating Glen Ross 5-0 and Mr. Pleasant girls and Crowe Bay girls playing a tie game, the final score being 22-22.

At 3.00 p.m. a platform meeting was held on the school steps. Mr. A. A. Martin, of Brighton, Inspector of Public Schools, acted as chairman and congratulated trustees and teachers on the success of the Centennial Celebration. Dr. McDougall, of Toronto, was the principal speaker. In his address Dr. McDougall compared conditions in our daily life in our public schools with that of a century ago, or even half a century ago. He spoke of the change in the methods of discipline in our schools today compared with that of fifty or sixty years ago. He pointed out that many of the names used in cities and townships here about came from the Old Land and were derived from those who had been great leaders in other days. It was his opinion that the word "Rawdon" comes from Sir Frances Rawdon, who was a distinguished general in the British army. Dr. McDougall urged people to inculcate in their lives the principles of the U. E. Loyals who first settled in this section of Ontario. Mr. Rorke Ferguson, M. P., and Mr. McGuire, also briefly addressed the gathering. Miss Marie Sharpe, the present school teacher, read the history of the Wellman's school as it is found in the school register. Mr. Malcolm Totton contributed a solo and Miss Reta Burwell, Moosejaw, Sask., a reading. This session closed with the singing of the National Anthem.

The activities were closed with a dance in the school grounds.

It is difficult as yet to be certain just how many old boys and girls were actually in attendance, but it is sufficient to say that many came and it was in every sense of the word a decided success. The trustees of the school, Mr. John Heagle, Mr. Carl Clancy and Mr. Victor Taylor are to be congratulated on such a successful centennial gathering. These three men, with the members of the other committees, deserve the thanks of everyone for a task well done.

ROLLINS RE-UNION

Mrs. Geo. Post. It was then decided that for the picnic next year the gathering would go to Coe Hill on the third Wednesday in July.

Harry Rollins, convenor of Sports, took charge of the program. On the suggestion of Hardeus Rollins Sr., a hearty sing song followed, children and adults taking part.

The following races were run off: Children 5 years and under — Fay Rollins, Lois Benedict, Joan Rollins. Boys, 5 years and under — Glen Rollins, Don McCurdy.

Girls, 5 years to 8 — Joan McCurdy, Margaret Harris, Velma Rollins, Donna Rollins.

Boys, 6 to 9 — Ivan Rollins, Kenneth Runnalls.

Girls 10 to 12 — Fay Rollins. Boys, 10 to 12 — Maurice Rollins, Carl Rollins, Douglas Campbell, Donald Runnalls, Alton Robinson, Ralph Woods.

Girls 13 to 18 — Dorothy Rollins, Fern Rollins, Jean Rollins.

Boys 13 to 18 — Harold Rollins, Ross Rollins, Carl Rollins, Colin Rollins.

Boys 19 and over — Kenneth Rollins, J. R. Lucas, John Thompson.

Married men — Jim Jeffrey, Hardeus Rollins Jr., Clarence Rollins. Twelve ladies then took part in a tug of war against six men. As is the usual result, the ladies proved themselves too much for the men. A ball game between the north and the south showed that the men of the north were the best ball players. Supper was then served and the members from the north and south enjoyed an hour of fellowship.

SINE RE-UNION

The ninth annual re-union of the Sine family was held at Crescent Beach, Oak Lake, on Wednesday, July 27th.

After all had partaken of the bounteous lunch prepared by the ladies, the tables were cleared and the meeting was called to order by the president, C. M. Sine, for the disposal of the business.

Correspondence expressing regrets at being unable to attend the reunion had been received from relatives living in Lethbridge, Vancouver and Mount Pleasant, Mich., and was read by the secretary.

Dr. Charles Green and Sherwood Green, New York, were present, and addressed the gathering, each expressing pleasure at being able to attend this year, and the hope that the re-unions would be continued.

Election of officers followed, with the following officers for next year: President — C. M. Sine, Treasurer — Clifford Sine, Corresponding Secretary — Ernest Charles.

Recording Secretary — Josephine Sine.

It was decided to hold the reunion next year on July 26th, at Crescent Beach. All children then were given a treat by the organization.

The remainder of the afternoon was spent in water sports and a game of softball.

BELLEVILLE TRUCKER TAKES HIS OWN LIFE

Just as it was getting dark the body of William Mossman was found hanging from the limb of a tree in Tucker's Woods by a posse of Provincial Police and farmers. Missing from his home since early yesterday morning, the late Mr. Mossman was the object of an all-day search. About 9 o'clock yesterday morning his truck was located parked alongside the Third Concession Road in Sidney, where it cuts through Tucker's Woods, by his brother-in-law. After the family had made a thorough search of the woods, the Provincial Police were called in and a posse organized. Tucker's Woods was combed back and forth by the posse. It was decided to make one last search through the woods on the west side of the road, passing through the swamp one of the men noticed the body.

POLICE LEAD SEARCH FOR BONARLAW MAN

Hugh Jones, a resident of the Coe Hill district for many years and lately residing with his niece, Mrs. Will Prest, in Bonarlaw, is reported missing from his home in Bonarlaw. Mr. Jones left home with the intention of walking to his niece's summer home, some miles up the river, but no trace has been found of him since Saturday. Provincial Constable Diamond, of Madoc, is in charge of an extensive search, the hunt paying particular attention to the river banks. He was wearing a brown hat and blue shirt when he left home, is dark complexioned, 71 years of age, about 5' 7" tall. He was at one time a patient in the mental hospital at Kingston.

ENTERPRISE STORE ROBBED

Safe robbers, who made entrance through a rear window, blew open the safe in the general store of the Fenwick Bros., at Enterprise, early Tuesday morning and stole $400 in cash. Investigations by Provincial Police revealed the robbers had blown open the safe by igniting a charge of gunpowder placed in a container near the safe door handle. Although the discharge aroused villagers and the owners of the general store, who resided nearby, no attempt was made to ascertain the cause of the explosion. Villagers later contended they believed the noise to be a motor backfiring. The explosion occurred about 1.30 a.m. Tuesday, but the robbery was not discovered until the Fenwick Bros. proprietors of the general store at Enterprise, found the door had been blown off their store safe upon opening for business on Tuesday.

LATE H. M. WOOD

Residents of Huntingdon Township were shocked on Sunday afternoon when they learned of the sudden passing of one of the most widely-known and highly respected residents of Huntingdon Township in the person of Hector M. Wood.

The late Mr. Wood, it was thought, was enjoying good health and on Sunday morning was performing his usual duties about the farm, when shortly before noon he was seized with a sudden heart attack and although medical aid was quickly summoned, Mr. Wood passed away after only two hours' illness. The late Mr. Wood was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Hector Wood and was born 59 years ago on the farm on which he died. In religion he was a devoted member of the White Lake United Church and took an active part in the various organizations of his beloved church. At the time of his death he was recording steward of the Ivanhoe Circuit, Sunday School Superintendent of the White-Lake Sunday School and Sec-

HIGH - FIDELITY - SOUND

Secretary-Treasurer of the O.R.E.C. of know there was even a chance of being fooled. And the result was most illuminating, not to say humorous.

From a large number of subjects, not a single individual was able to tell when he was not smoking tobacco. The real smoke and the sham smoke were all the same to him. And this was true of experienced smokers. In fact some of them would make a report somewhat as follows: "Today I came wanting a smoke quite badly, and I enjoyed my twenty minutes very much." This was a response to sucking in and breathing out slightly modified atmosphere. Or again, the actual use of tobacco would be criticized as thin and unsatisfactory, and the subject would express just a shade of suspicion whether he had really been smoking at all. — James L. Mursell, Ph.D., in "Stripline Your Mind," published by J. B. Lippincott Company, Philadelphia.

CUT THIS OUT

If you would save the life of some person who has fallen into the water here is the way to do it:

The victim is quickly removed from the water and placed on the ground or other hard surface. If possible the head is placed slightly lower than the rest of the body so that water and other liquids will drain from the victim. As soon as possible feel with the finger in the victim's mouth and remove any foreign body which might interfere with the breathing. The victim should lie on his stomach with one arm extended directly overhead, the other arm bent at the elbow and with the face turned outward and resting on hand or forearm so that the nose and mouth are free for breathing. Then kneel, straddling the patient's thighs with your knees placed at such a distance from the hip bones as will allow you to work. Place the palms of the hands on the small of the back with fingers resting on the ribs, the little finger just touching the lowest rib, with the thumb and fingers in a natural position and the tips of the fingers just out of sight. With arms held straight, swing forward slowly so that the weight of your body is gradually brought to bear on the patient. The shoulder should be directly over the heel of the hand at the end of the forward swing. Do not bend your elbows. This operation should take about two seconds. Now immediately swing backward so as to completely remove the pressure. After two seconds swing forward again. Thus repeat deliberately 12 to 15 times a minute the double movement of compression and release, a complete respiration in four or five seconds. Continue artificial respiration without interruption until natural breathing is restored or until rigor mortis (body stiffening) sets in. Keep up for three or four hours or more. As soon as this artificial respiration has been started and while it is being continued an assistant should loosen any tight clothing about the neck, chest or waist of the patient. Keep the patient warm. Do not give liquids whatever by mouth until patient is fully conscious. To avoid strain on the heart when the patient revives, he should be kept lying down and not allowed to stand up or sit up. If the doctor has not arrived by the time the patient has revived, he should be given some stimulant such as a teaspoonful of aromatic spirits of ammonia in a small glass of water, or a hot drink of coffee or tea.

Quite a number from the village attended the McKeown picnic on Monday at Oak Lake.

ENJOYING A SMOKE

How much smoking depends upon mental controls and attitudes was demonstrated in a very interesting experiment performed some years ago at the University of Wisconsin. The experimenter built a trick pipe which had in its bowl an electrical heating unit and an appliance for humidification. Thus it was possible for a person to puff on his pipe and "smoke" nothing but warm, moist air. The subjects were brought into a small room, where one or two persons were smoking vigorously so that there was a healthy and full-bodied tobacco odour. Then they were blindfolded and sometimes they were given a pipe with tobacco and sometimes the pipe with the heating and humidifying appliances; in each case they puffed twenty minutes. The secret, of course, was never divulged; that is, they did not

POWER OFF

A broken wire on Victoria St. disrupted the Hydro service in the Village about eleven o'clock this morning. Manager Spentall located the trouble and made temporary repairs as quickly as possible, so as not to inconvenience users of electric ranges during the noon hour. The power was again shut off this afternoon to make the permanent repairs.

FRACTURES BOTH LEGS

Mrs. John Carr, aged 94 years, who resides with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Scott, at the western limits of the Village, suffered a painful injury on Sunday night, when she fell in her room. There were no eye witnesses of the accident, but it is presumed that the aged lady slipped on the floor when getting out of her bed. Medical aid was summoned and upon examination it was found that both her legs had been fractured between the hip and knee. Owing to her advanced age, no attempt was made to reduce the fractures, and it is not expected that she will recover.

FORMER RESIDENT WON FLYING HONOURS

Earl D. Phillips, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Phillips, of Belleville, and formerly of Stirling, was first in an air demonstration and competition held in Kingston during the latter part of last week.

Aviator Phillips was credited with the highest number of points during the demonstration flying period, gaining a total of 795 out of a possible total of 800 in classes of spot landing, bombing and in the proficiency competitions between members of the Kingston Flying Club. He was also awarded the Bishop Trophy given by Vice-Air Marshal Wm. Bishop, V.C. In the proficiency tests Earl gained second place among members and two firsts in spot landing and bombing.

Trousseau Tea Held

Mrs. Mabel Burch was hostess at a trousseau tea on Friday last at her summer cottage, Oak Lake, in honour of her daughter, Miss Betty Burch, whose marriage takes place next week. The many articles of Miss Burch's "hope chest" together with lovely wedding presents and shower gifts were attractively displayed throughout the pretty rooms of the cottage, while the trousseau of the bride-to-be was the last word in charm and daintiness.

A lovely buffet tea was served during the afternoon, the assistants being Mrs. Nina Morton, Mrs. W. H. Pedley, Miss K. Mundy and Mrs. Jas. Lagrow, all of Stirling. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. W. Wiggins, Campbellford; Mrs. Jos. Wilson, Welland; Mrs. A. E. Dobbie, Smith's Falls; Mrs. (Dr.) Wilkinson, Toronto; Mrs. Beauchamp Payne, Mrs. Harry Alford, Mrs. Clara Hill, Mrs. Arthur Hill, Belleville; Miss Leonard and the Mesdames Irwin, Johnson, McCarey and White, of Madoc.

THANK YOU!

This office is indebted to Mr. F. T. Ward for a bouquet of Dahlias grown in his home garden. Mr. Ward is a great lover of flowers and his garden is one of the beauty spots of the Village. We extend our thanks and appreciation to Mr. Ward for the bouquet.

GUESTS OF BELLEVILLE BOWLING CLUB

Sixteen of the members of the Stirling Bowling Club accepted the invitation to a trebles jitney tournament held by the Belleville Club on Monday evening. Two twelve-end games were played, with prizes being given the high winners of two games and one game. Those from the local Club winning prizes were W. J. Whitty and Dr. E. A. Carleton, each receiving a beautiful cup and saucer. Belleville ladies served lunch at the close of the games to bring a very pleasant evening to a close. Those from here who attended were Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Whitty, Mr. and Mrs. R. A. Patterson, Mrs. Geo. Legrow, Mr. and Mrs. E. G. Bailey, Mrs. H. L. Fair, Mr. and Mrs. H. R. Tompkins, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Linn, Mrs. Nora Wescott, Mr. A. Heyworth and Dr. and Mrs. E. A. Carleton.

SUCCESSFUL SOCIAL

The social and chicken supper held by the congregation of St. James' Roman Catholic Church last night at the Stirling Fair Grounds was well attended and was a decided success. The tables, which were set in the main building, were well arranged and artistically decorated with the season's flowers. There was an abundance of chicken, as well as all the many other good things that go to make a delectable repast, and many favourable comments were expressed on its excellence. The service was prompt and courteous, and the members of St. James' are to be congratulated on their efforts. Following the supper, various types of games were offered for the entertainment of the guests, with the Bingo booth proving the most popular. Later in the evening round and square dancing was enjoyed with music being supplied by J. Liston's orchestra, of Kingston.

BIBLE SOCIETY MEETING

On Sabbath morning a union service was conducted in St. Paul's United Church under the direction of the Bible Society, with Rev. Allnut, B.D., of Toronto, being the speaker. Representatives were present from the congregations of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, St. John's Anglican Church and St. Paul's. An appeal for staunch support to this branch of church work was made by the travelling representative. The local official board for the coming year will include Mr. Fred Houchin, president; Mrs. Nora Wescott, treasurer; Mrs. H. Rollins, secretary. With each of the resident ministers forming part of the board of directors, Rev. A. S. McConnell, Rev. W. J. Scott, and Rev. J. E. Beckel. It is the intention of the officers of the local executive to make a canvas of the village in September, at which time they hope to meet with a good response from the citizens.

HIGH SCHOOL TERM WILL OPEN SEPTEMBER 6

STIRLING BOARD OF EDUCATION MAKING FULL PROVISION FOR NEW STUDIES

With the commencement of the School term on Sept. 6th next, former pupils attending the Stirling High School will find that full provision has been made for continuing those studies in which they had been progressing, and which were leading to Junior and Honour Matriculation, to Normal School Entrance, or to the High School Graduation Diploma.

Any new appointments made to the teaching staff have been after careful selection in order that its usual high standard of scholarship might be maintained.

For new pupils, and for perhaps some former ones also, the especially attractive and very practical Course authorized by the Department of Education for Grade IX, will be greatly facilitated by the accommodations now being completed in the new annex, where the subjects of the General Shop for boys and Home Economics for girls are being provided for on the main floor.

All pupils will benefit by the opportunities for Physical Education being arranged on the annex second floor where a gymnasium in keeping with the Departmental requirements is being completed.

The Board of Education has worked many months in co-operation with the Department of Education, and the Municipal Council and citizens in general have given splendid support, in order that the teachers who will present the new practical features of the Course shall have at their disposal for the benefit of the pupils, the very best that can be obtained in Classroom accommodation and special equipment.

It has been arranged, generally speaking, subject to such changes as are found necessary by the Principal, that the subjects shall be taught as follows:

The Principal, Mr. J. L. Good, B.A., will teach Mathematics and Physics. Mr. W. K. Etherington, B.S.A., will teach the Agriculture of Forms I. to

IV., Science and Physical Culture.

Miss Helen Lacy, B. Ho. Sc., will teach Home Economics, Art and History.

Miss Margaret E. Walt, B.A., will teach Latin, French and Ancient History.

Miss Doris Cooper, B.A., will teach English, Music and Girls' Physical Education.

Mr. C. A. Wells, Principal of the Public School, and the holder of the General Shop Certificate, will provide the training for the General Shop Course for boys.

The Board would again remind students that valuable scholarships may be earned by those who are willing to work for them. Some former students have been recipients of one or more of the following, and it is hoped many more of them will come to Stirling.

1. The Hon. J. R. Cooke Scholarship, value $50, awarded to the student of Stirling High School completing at least eight Upper School papers with the highest aggregate mark.

2. The three Carter Scholarships valued at $100, $60 and $40, awarded annually to students of Hastings County High Schools who take the highest aggregate on ten papers of the Upper School Course.

3. Valuable University Matriculation Scholarships, awarded for high standing on the Honour Matriculation papers and good for tuition at the University making the award.

Pupils are advised to take all the subjects offered, unless otherwise advised by the Principal and with the consent of parents.

Before entering upon Upper School studies, students with the ambition to compete for valuable Scholarships should consult the Principal.

Pupils who enter High School for a term of two years, and probably no more, should consult the Principal as to the best use to be made of the time, considering the vocation that will probably be followed.

Parents are reminded that the Practical Courses are meant to equip students of from two to five years attendance to earn a living whether it be in a profession or a vocation.

More Money Required

An additional fifteen hundred dollars will have to be raised by the Council to make the necessary alterations to the High School and to complete the new addition now in the course of construction. This information was presented the members of the Village Council at a special meeting held in the Council Chambers on Monday evening. Reeve Thos. Cranston occupied the chair and Councillors C. B. Rollins, Roy Eggleton and Frank Stapley were in attendance.

Messrs H. C. Martin, J. B. Beishaw and Walter Wright were present from the Board of Education. Mr. Martin, who acted as spokesman for the deputation, submitted a statement to members of Council, showing that the added expenditure was made necessary owing to unforeseen developments in the alterations to the old school, and completion of construction of the new addition. It was the opinion of the deputation that the added expenditure would not materially affect the estimated carrying charges, since the interest had been lowered from five to four per cent.

Members of Council questioned the deputation on the cost of the various phases of the construction work and following a lengthy discussion, a resolution was unanimously passed instructing the Clerk to make application to the Ontario Municipal Board for permission to issue debentures to the amount of fifteen hundred dollars for completion of the addition to the High School.

ANNOUNCEMENT

Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Tyrrell, Oakville, announce the engagement of their daughter, Merrian Edith, to Morley Keegan, of Oakville, formerly of Stirling, Ontario, the marriage to take place on Sept. 3rd, in St. Jude's Church.

Y. P. U. ANNUAL PICNIC

In spite of the inclement rainy weather, one hundred young people met for their annual picnic at Oak Lake on Wednesday, August 10th. The programme of sports was held in the Tabernacle. The sports were in charge of Miss Polly Nelson, of Trenton. The banner for the Union securing the highest number of points was won by Trenton Young People's Union with Eldorado union in second place. The supper was served in the dining hall of the Tabernacle. While the supper was being prepared Rev. S. L. Osborne of Nanapanee led the group in a sing song. After the supper the group gathered for a short worship service conducted by Miss Reta Palliser, Miss Bessie Gordon and Rev. S. L. Osborne. A great deal of credit is due the President, Mr. Greer, of Bloomfield, and his assistants for such a pleasant and profitable picnic.

TOURNAMENT RAINED OUT

The weatherman frowned on the activities on the greens of the Stirling Lawn Bowling Club yesterday afternoon and the Annual Men's Rinks Tournament was washed out by rain. With weather conditions ideal in the morning, eighteen entries had been received by the officers of the local Club, including three from Belleville, two each from Kingston, Campbellford, Cobourg and Stirling; and one each from Brighton, Warwick, Madoc, Deseronto, Norwood, Marmora and Tweed. Play opened shortly after one o'clock, and the first game was almost completed when the rain commenced falling, causing postponement. The bowlers remained until after supper, hoping that the weather would clear, but a steady downpour banished all hopes of completing the play. If suitable arrangements can be made this tournament will be held later in the season, but at present it looks as though the local Club stands to lose out.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Whitehead and Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Clute attended the farewell party for Mr. Chas. Allen, in Campbellford on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Harry Hamilton and Mrs. Robert Mann, of Montreal, and Mrs. Chas. Lott and daughter, Reta, of Oak Lake, were guests of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Green, on Friday last.

Mrs. Robert Patterson and son, of Clayton, N.Y., are holidaying with her (Continued on Page Eight)

ANNIVERSARY IS OBSERVED

WEST HUNTINGDON CIRCUIT CELEBRATE — REV. C. S. REDDICK IS SPEAKER

The members of the West Huntingdon United Circuit observed the 50th Anniversary of the present arrangement of the Circuit, namely the West Huntingdon, Moira, Fuller and Eggleton appointments on Sunday and Monday.

The theme of the anniversary seemed to resolve itself into these words: "Honouring our Forefathers." Special mention was made at all of the three services of the untiring efforts of those who in bygone days sacrificed and toiled amid serious handicaps that they and their children might have suitable places in which to worship.

Rev. Dr. C. S. Reddick, of Campbellford, a former pastor of twenty years ago, was the special minister for the two Sunday services. Dr. Reddick's theme for both morning and evening services was "The Wealth of the Church." "I do not want to speak about churches in particular, but to you people, and I want to leave a message with you that you will want to think about during the coming days," stated the speaker. And judging by the favourable comments heard this was accomplished. The burden of Dr. Reddick's thoughts was that church people today might be filled with the same spirit that the disciples of old were filled with after the Resurrection and Ascension of Our Lord. At the crucifixion they were dismayed but after the Resurrection they were changed men.

These two outstanding sermons left a lasting impression on the large audiences that attended the both services.

The choir at West Huntingdon in the morning were members of the former choirs of Eggleton and West Huntingdon appointments. Mrs. Arthur Andrews, of Stirling, who so willingly helped for many years at Eggleton, contributed a solo.

At Moira in the evening the choir was assisted by members from the Fuller appointment.

On Monday evening a lawn social was held on the Church lawn at West Huntingdon. There was a good attendance from all over the circuit, also a large number from St. Andrew's congregation and other points.

The Salvation Army Band, from Campbellford, assisted by members of the Band at Trenton, furnished excellent music during the entire evening. Both sacred music and band marches were played. Rev. W. R. Tristram was chairman for the evening's entertainment. The programme consisted of the singing of the Doxology and several gospel songs, led by the band; piano duet, Mrs. Jas. Vanderwater and Mrs. Joe Williams, Moira; instrumental selection by the Misses Irene and Margaret Elliott; duet by Mrs. W. J. Fitchett and Frank Palmer; song by the Fuller Quartette, composed of Messrs Geo. and Arthur Brough, Lloyd McCauley and Frank Palmer. Piano duet by Mrs. Pidgeon and Dorothy of Eggleton. An orchestra composed of Mrs. Russell Stapley, Kenneth and Ralph, and Mr. Elvin Carr supplied music while lunch was being served.

The special speaker for the evening was Mr. Geo. A. Kingston, of Toronto, who gave a very instructive and amusing address on "Happenings of 50 years ago around West Huntingdon." The lawn for the social was lighted by seven large electric light bulbs, which were erected by our popular electricians, Messrs Greande, Murray and Moss Cormick.

THE MEANING OF HANDSHAKES?

Nothing so eloquently reveals character as the hand-clasp, claims The Picton Times. One may train his voice to express courage and a cordiality unpossessed; one may acquire a poker-face; one may feign pleasure at meeting and displeasure at parting; but the offered hand neither conceals nor deceives. A blind man, deaf and dumb from birth, can read this message of the hand.

Is it a strong hand that functions with the irresistible determination of a vise? If it is, it belongs to a he-man — a go-getter — or to a true friend. Its warm and sturdy clasp belongs to a frank countenance and a feeling heart.

Is it a hand that gives a quick, slight pressure and at once liberates itself? That sort belongs to the busy man and is born of independence and individualism.

Is it a limp hand? Then it belongs to a limp man, to one who is too tired to be interested in persons and things. To him hand shaking is an unnecessary formality in which no energy should be wasted.

Is it a lingering hand which caresses rather than clasps and which refuses to liberate its prey until it has accomplished its purpose? This is the practiced hand-clasp of the politician, the swindler and the cheat. It belongs to the man with a "mission" or a "message."

HORSESHOE PITCHING ANCIENT PASTIME

While Stirling Horseshoe Pitching Club is not functioning as such this summer, there are still many enthusiasts of this ancient game in and around the village who will be interested in an account of the history of the game, which appeared in a recent editorial in the Lindsay Post. The Lindsay paper says:

"Men, and some women, who indulge in at very pleasant pastime of horseshoe pitching need have no hesitation in admitting the fact that they seek reaction in this particular game because it has an honorable history. When in the company of persons discussing birdies, approach shots, niblicks, etc., it is not necessary for them to keep their own counsel and refrain from mention of "ringers", "leaners", one and one-quarter turns and other terms of horseshoe pitching because the game of their hearts dates back long before the first golf club was swung on the pebbles which first served as balls.

Horseshoe pitching is a game which has occupied leisure hours of noblemen and kings, courtiers and princes in days gone by. The grand old game of barnyard golf, popular through the years when other lesser activities have risen, flourished and died, still goes on and is enjoyed by thousands throughout the world.

According to Frank G. Menke, in his All Sports Record Book, the horseshoe pitchers can trace the origin of their sport back to the time immediately following the invention of horseshoe — a mere lapse of 2,500 to 3,000 years.

"When Rome and Greece were world powers, the soldiers found exercise and sport in throwing the discus," Mr. Menke writes. "The camp followers could not indulge in such contests because they lacked both the money to buy a discus, or the means to manufacture one. But, when horseshoes were invented to protect hoofs of animals travelling over mountains or through rock-strewn passes, the followers picked up the discarded shoes, and fashioned them into discus form, the pioneer quoit."

Only haphazard rules governed the game until as late as 1869 and at that time the English brought up a set of rules. Since that time the game has met with increasing popularity throughout the world and at the present time there are many countries in which National Champions are widely feted.

It is indeed a proud history that this game has, and don't you horseshoe pitchers forget it.

IMPORTANT HEALTH STUDY

An investigation into bovine tuberculosis in children was begun in March 1926, under the auspices of the National Research Council of Canada and is still being continued. Writing of this important health study in the June issue of the Canadian Public Health Journal, Dr. R.

M. Price, of the Department of Pathology and Bacteriology, University of Toronto, says in part:—

"The purpose of this study was to determine (1) the incidence of bovine tuberculosis in children, (2) the role played by milk in the transmission of this disease, and (3) the effect of preventative measures, namely, the eradication of tuberculosis in cattle by tuberculin testing and slaughter of reacting animals, and the more widespread use of pasteurization of milk upon the incidence of this disease in children.

"This investigation is being carried out in the City of Toronto, when pasteurization of milk is compulsory, and where it has been rigidly enforced since 1915, thus affording us an excellent opportunity for study of the efficacy of such a procedure in controlling milk-borne infections.

"At this time of writing, in a series of 500 tuberculous children, investigated over a period of thirteen years, in 9.6 per cent. of extra-pulmonary tuberculosis the infecting organism has proved to be of bovine type. Bovine tubercle bacilli have been recovered from bones, joints, glands, kidney, meninges, serous surfaces, tonsils, adenoid tissue and skin. Thus with the exception of primary tuberculosis of the lung, no organ or tissue of the human body is immune to infection with the bovine type of the tubercle bacillus.

"The youngest patient in this group was an infant six and one-half months old, suffering from bilateral tuberculous adenitis and tonsillitis, the oldest, a girl of fourteen years of age, suffering from renal tuberculosis which necessitated the removal of one kidney.

"Without exception, the children harbouring infection with the bovine type of the tubercle bacillus have come to Toronto for treatment from different parts of the Province of Ontario, other provinces and other countries, where the milk supply is not pasteurized. History invariably revealed the fact that the child had been fed raw milk for some time, or had always been fed it. Wherever possible, we endeavoured to obtain milk for examination and guinea-pig inoculation. Thus, in three instances in this series it was possible not only to demonstrate tubercle bacilli in the milk consumed by the child, but to actually trace the infection to the animal responsible for the transmission of the disease to the human host."

CURRENT COMMENT

"If you have plenty of push and can also command a little "pull" you might get somewhere", opines an exchange. In these days it is mostly "pull" that counts.

Campbellford officials are making a determined effort to collect the dog taxes and a number of the owners neglecting to pay up on time have been summoned to court. There are some dog owners in Stirling in the same class. The remedy lies with the Village Council.

The lowering of the Stirling Tax Rate to the extent of five mills over last year's rate, will be more appreciated by the taxpayers in view of the fact that there has been a slight increase in the tax rate of many of the surrounding villages and towns. These are trying times for municipal legislators and the local Council has done well to keep local expenses at a minimum.

Although it is long past the time when all noxious weeds should have been destroyed, there are a number of lots within the village limits where the owners have failed to comply with the provisions of the Weed Control Act. There are also a number of sideroads in the surrounding townships where the weeds are being allowed to flourish. If the weeds are to be overcome they should be cut at once and should continue to be cut whenever the need arises.

Remember Stirling Fair on September 20th and 21st, and plan to become an exhibitor. The Board of Directors have arranged an attractive prize list and are hoping that there will be a large increase in the number of exhibitors, particularly from Stirling and the surrounding community. The primary object of the Society is the improvement of the Agricultural industry in this district and if the farmers fail to embrace the opportunity of showing their cattle and produce, and leave the competition open to foreign exhibitors, the desired effect is not obtained.

If you are one of the many to whom driving is no longer a pleasure, here is a hint that may be helpful. Next time you start out on a trip, take that chip off your shoulder! And take your sense of humor along. Promise yourself that you won't let little things disturb you, and see what happens. If someone attempts to steal your right of way, let him have it. Don't yell at him, but smile instead. Be indulgent, as you would be with the small boy who reaches for the largest piece of cake on the plate. A safe journey — and a surprisingly pleasant journey — will be your reward.

It is such by making it universal, as he has the bathtub, a stationary, unassuming menace to the careless-sleeping bather.

This is a discomfiting thought, if we forget that life is entirely a hazardous occupation. When man left the jungle for the city, they escaped old dangers, but they found new ones, largely of their own contrivance. For death must come, if not in one way, then in another. All the engineering and scientific ingenuity cannot protect man finally from his own mortality or steel his soft and puny body against the larger blow.

HIGHWAYS GOOD AND BAD

(Marmora Herald)

One who has an opportunity to compare the Highways in this part of Ontario with those west or north of Toronto cannot help but wonder why such discrimination has been shown in favour of other parts of the Province. In Hastings County only a small portion of the Highways are surfaced and No. 2 is the only concrete Highway. West of Belleville it is in fair condition, but east of that city it has been in bad shape all season and many complaints have gone in to the Department of Highways. No. 7 is in poor condition just now and most of No. 14 has been in bad shape for over a year. Last week's issue of The Tweed News refers to "the disgraceful condition of No. 37 Highway to Belleville." The fault does not rest with overseers or foremen, as the amount allowed for maintenance is cut down so much that it is impossible to keep the roads in good condition. In fact only a surfaced road will stand up under heavy motor traffic unless grading is kept up continuously and fresh gravel or crushed stone added frequently.

West and north of Toronto, the country is criss-crossed with concrete Highways and nearly every place of any size has one or more paved roads running through it. Hundreds of miles of surfaced roads have been built for every one in this part of Ontario and when a road is taken over as a Provincial Highway it is surfaced within a reasonable time.

There has not been nearly as much expended in cutting down grades on most of the roads, but it is a question whether there is any advantage in cutting down every little hill and filling up every little hollow, except on main Highways where there is very heavy traffic. Highways such as No. 10 and No. 6, over rolling country, where the road runs up and down hill, give some wonderful views and an exhilaration which are not found where the roads cut through the hills instead of over them. In any case, if the money spent on reducing grades on roads in Hastings County had been spent in surfacing them there would be a lot less dissatisfaction with present road conditions.

THE VILLAGE MERCHANTS

(Brockville Recorder)

The rapid spread of the good roads movement has undoubtedly conferred marked benefits upon rural residents. They are now able to move more freely, to travel more widely and to market their products with greater ease. But it has also meant losses for village merchants, many of whom have been forced out of business because the trade upon which they were dependent has moved to the larger centres.

Before paved surfaces arrived, villagers and farmers roundabout paid only occasional visits to the county town or city. It was an event in their lives to which they looked forward with considerable anticipation, and if they saved up for such occasions their special shopping needs which could not be met at their own general stores, the great bulk of their trade went to those establishments, the proprietors of which usually stood ready to extend them the credit they needed. Owning and operating a general store in a village those days was a profitable business and quite substantial fortunes were made by many of the people engaged in it. The general store was the great rallying-point of the community. It was there that gossip of the community was exchanged and that national and international problems were discussed and settled. But the general store was also the place where most people did their buying and if it also happened to be the post office (to which people repaired daily and incidentally bought an article or two), the storekeeper made money.

Today, much of that is changed. Because of the urban competition made possible by better roads and universal use of motor vehicles, the village merchant has found in numerous instances that his business has dwindled and dwindled. The business sections of many villages are only shadows of what they used to be. Store after store has been forced out of business and some of those remaining are just managing to carry on. The people who formerly gave them the greater part of their trade now take it to the town or city and pay cash for their needs. The village storekeeper gets what is left and often has to carry it on his books for an indefinite period. When there is agrarian distress and these debts cannot be paid, he simply goes to the wall. That, and not the mail-order house about which there used to be so much complaint, is the chief reason why one or two general stores now suffice to serve communities which used to have half a dozen of them.

Good roads passing through our rural districts have undoubtedly meant a great deal more for urban business houses than they have meant for village shop-keepers and we feel that many of the latter are entitled to greater consideration than they are so often in the habit of receiving.

MITCH GETS ALL THE CREDIT

There is a story going the rounds at present which, whether true or not, should be good for a laugh. It was up in Northern Ontario, where the Grits had a special stronghold. The teacher said: "Who gave us our wonderful highways?" Johnny's hand went up, "Mitch Hepburn". "Who gave us our fine bridges?" Again Johnny answered, "Mitch Hepburn". "Who gave us cheaper license plates so that we all might drive a car?" and Johnny piped up "Mitch Hepburn". Changing the theme the teacher asked, "Who gave us the beautiful green trees and lovely spring flowers?" This time the minister's son answered, "God." Johnny turned in his seat, gave the youngster a nasty look and said "Gwan, ye dirty Tory." — Havelock Standard.

COVERING THE WORLD OF SPORT

In Canada the boys are just beginning to realize that rugby football is only a few weeks off, but across the well-known herring pond England is preparing for another hockey season. Seems a little anomalous but in the old land whose Rudyard Kipling dubbed Canada "Our Lady of the Snows" hockey campaigns get under way in mid-September while citizens of this frigid land are thinking more of baseball playoffs, world series, pre-season rugby skirmishes and such.

However, the English National Hockey League believes in running off a lengthy schedule and about a month from now the opening face-off will be made, with several Canadians booked to pack their duffel bags and join fellow-countrymen on various clubs in John Bull's major hockey loop. Wembley Lions have announced the signing of Doug Bentley of Saskatoon, who will be playing his first season on the frozen aqua of the Old Country. The other Wembley entry, the Lions, former champions of Europe, have filled every position on their roster except the centre position on the second line which will be filled either by Jo-Jo Graboski, Oshawa boy who starred with the Hershey (Pa.) B's, last semester, or Bobby Kirkpatrick, of the stellar Lethbridge, Alta., Maple Leafs. Both these lads have played in England before, Kirkpatrick with Earls Court Royals and Jo with Wembley Lions, so neither one should have any difficulty figuring out the Canadian equivalents to the pounds, shillings, and pence, they will draw as expense money in the so-called "amateur" English League.

Incidentally, Graboski scintillates in the hectic ice game despite the fact that he is handicapped by the loss of an eye early in his hockey career, and is believed to be the only one-eyed puck chaser at the present time. In fact, the only other such performer we can recall was on the line-up of the Hamilton Tigers some twelve or fifteen years ago, Johnny Brackenborough, if our memory hasn't gone rusty with the years.

Another sports item of interest from England is the fine record being hung up by Mike Martyk who learned the manly art of self-defence in St. Catharines, Ont., and was such an apt pupil that he won the Canadian amateur featherweight title at the age of 19 years. Born in Sherbrooke, Que., only 26 summers ago, Mike is of Rumanian-Canadian parentage. Three years ago he took the first step up the fistic ladder of success by winning the flyweight (112 lb.) title of the Niagara district. The following year he won the bantam (118 lb.) championship of the same district. The next year, in 1937, he completely splattered the opeday by beating Baby Yack of Toronto in the final of the Dominion featherweight (126 lb.) championships although still under the bantam limit. After that he turned pro and went to England last January in search of action and some of the Bank of England's pretty green negotiable scrip. His record since consists of one win by a knockout over Billy Please, decisions over Pat Palmer and Goff Williams and a draw with Billy Walker. Mike likes England, he says, that is everything but the cooking. But if he can maintain an unbeaten record on his present diet he should be a serious contender for world honors in a year or two, possibly a successor to Jimmy McLarnin of Vancouver who won the world's welterweight crown for Canada back in 1933.

SPORTS QUESTION — How fast does a thrown baseball travel? (Answer at the foot of column).

Harold Wilson, of Ingersoll, Ont., well known to Ontario sports fans for his sensational performances at the Canadian National Exhibition speed boat races, climaxed last year when he drove his Little Miss Canada VI, (225 hydroplane class) over a equivalent mile in 49.6 seconds, equivalent to 77.58 miles per hour, will again challenge for the American Gold Cup for power boats at Detroit on Labour Day. His new boat, Miss Canada III, built by Tom Greavette of Graven-hurst, embodies further developments of ideas in hull construction and when tested recently on Lake Muskoka, was declared to be most radical in design. Last year young Wilson's Miss Canada II, was eliminated by hull trouble and he hopes that this fault has been corrected in the new craft. Another change from his challenge of 1937 will be the fact that his mechanic this try will be Mrs. Harold Wilson instead of Miss Lorna Reid. However, this change is merely a point of law, for Miss Reid is now the wife of the popular young speed demon.

With his improved craft, Wilson's chances of bringing the Gold Cup, emblematic of the United States supremacy, to Canada this year seem to be excellent, but sport fans of this country have come to hold small hopes of a Canadian or British driver capturing either this or the Harmsworth International trophy. Several times Britishers have proven that they possessed the speedier boats, but each time some technicality, engine trouble or such has prevented them from taking the coveted trophies from the American defenders. Miss Marion Cartwright, of England, tried in 1928-29-30 to wrest the Harmsworth prize from the veteran Gar Wood of Detroit. Kaye Don took up the torch in 1931 but although he won the first two heats, setting two new records, the third heat saw him tricked by the canny Wood into crossing the starting line ahead of the starting gun, bringing immediate disqualification. Don's boat cracked up and sank soon after the start. In 1932 Don was back but his boat developed engine trouble after he had taken the lead in each of the two heats. Wood finished each alone to triumph. Hubert Scott-Payne's Miss Britain III, came close in 1933, losing the first heat to Wood by 1 minute, 31 seconds, and the deciding race by a margin of 22 seconds, closest finish in the history of the competition.

In the Gold Cup event, several Canadians have endeavoured to send the Union Jack across the finish line in first place—Commodore Harry Greening, of Hamilton, being one who spent a small fortune in numerous attempts—but the jinx against all Britishers in international speedboat racing seems to hold good against Canucks as well as citizens of the home land.

SPORTS ODDITY — Pitcher Jake Slaughter of the Zion, Tenn., Hill Billies, went into his wind-up preparatory to burning one in a game against Webb Farmers the other day. His whirling flopper struck his head and Jake suffered a broken arm.

That last paragraph reminds us that we have jotted down a number of baseball tidbits lately and we might as well let you have them now: The fans cheered when first baseman Ed Hartnett of the Amerious, Georgia, club, hit a long home run over the wall of the new baseball park there last week, but the club officials groaned. They had offered a season's pass to the person naming the American player who might perform the feat of slamming the old apple over the wall in that particular game. Two hundred fans picked Hartnett Charlie Grimm, recently deposed as boss of the Chicago Cubs of the National Baseball League, has his chance to get in a few knocks at his successor if he is so inclined. He signed as a sports commentator with a Chicago radio station shortly after getting his walking papers, and will broadcast games from the Cubs' park. A team down in North Carolina has a player who is 50 per cent. cross-eyed. One eye looks straight ahead and the other points off at a complete right angle. The fellow, a right-hander, can stare the batter right in the pan and keep a glimmer on first base at the same time. It would take a Solomon to decide whether he had committed a balk or not if he threw to first to pick off a runner while his eye was focussed on the batter.

A YEAR AGO IN SPORT — One year ago, on Thursday, August 12th, 1937, Shirley Hanover, from the Hanover, Pa., stables, of Lawrence B. Shepherd, whipped 11 3-year-olds in straight heats to win the Hambletonian stakes, blue ribbon event of light harness racing. The daughter of Mr. McElwain-Bertha Hanover, driven by Henry Thomas, trotted the first mile in 2:01½ and the second in 2:01¾ for the fastest total time record for a winner of the rich stakes.

ANSWERS DEPT. — Mark Koenig, a second baseman with New York Yankees, threw a baseball official pitching distance, 60 ft. 6 inches against testing machine at West Point in 1930, in 1-3 second, or 127 miles per hour.

SULPHIDE YOUTH GORED BY BULL

Thomas Cassidy, thirteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Cassidy, residing near Sulphide, is suffering from a shaking-up, the result of being gored by a bull in the yard at his home on Thursday evening. Young Cassidy was driving the cattle from the barn back to the fields and when he attempted to prevent a thoroughbred Holstein bull from entering another part of the premises the animal turned on him, inflicting rather serious injuries. His two fingers were mangled, he suffered a fractured rib and his neck was lacerated slightly.

MAN IS KILLED, WOMAN HURT, IN MADOC CRASH

G. M. Morris of Massawassa, near Pictou, was arrested Sunday and charged with criminal negligence after an accident in which another Massawassa man was killed and Mrs. G. Murphy of Madoc slightly injured.

Police said a car driven by Morris hit Mrs. Murphy, who was walking along the highway with four children, and then left the road, hitting a telephone pole and coming to rest in a field. Lancelot Vader, 38, was killed in the accident. Mrs. Murphy was knocked down but not badly injured. Police said they were told Mrs. Murphy ran in front of the car to assist one of the children. Vader was hurled through the windshield and suffered fractured skull and broken neck.

NEWS OF INTEREST FOR BUSY FARMERS

Bruce County reports its wheat sample generally poor to fair with an occasional field yielding well with good quality. In Dufferin the crop is badly affected with rust and in Grey a similar condition has made the yield disappointing. Barley and oats prospects in that district are exceptionally good. Rust also did much damage in Wellington County, likewise in North Simcoe. In the latter county the crop of oats promised to be the best in five years, but a general outbreak of smut and army worm inroads have reduced prospects to average. Wheat is running up to 40 bushels per acre in Brant, depending on the winter killing and rust. Haldimand also has a wheat crop running 40 bushels to the acre of better. The market for new grain in Lambton is very low, prices quoted being: New wheat 64c; barley 42c and oats 32c. Field corn for silage purposes is looking splendid in Lincoln and has made tremendous growth recently. Some crops in Middlesex have been badly lodged by storms, but early threshing returns of wheat and barley indicate good yields of satisfactory quality. Rust has damaged wheat and oats in Oxford county.

Fruit Crop Report

Total cherry production this season is estimated at 123,600 bushels as compared with 101,600 in 1937. A 3 per cent. decline in production of pears is indicated, with conditions so far very favourable for good sizing and clean fruit production. Tree and fruit development of peaches is excellent, with minimum of fungus or insect injury apparent. While some early varieties have shown split-pits, the condition is not expected to be more serious than usual. The preliminary forecast of yield places the crop at 515,200 bushels, as compared with 525,700 bushels last year. While the set of plums is very irregular, the existing crop is now developing well, with only normal drop having taken place. Pests are well under control. Production is expected to be about the same as a year ago. Condition of grapes is excellent for good development of berries and vine growth with hopper and other pests well controlled.

Summer Care of Brood Sows

An abundance of good pasture during the summer greatly reduces the cost of maintaining brood sows. Crops such as rape or clover supply needed minerals, vitamins and other nutrients. The exercise obtained in grazing also contributes in no small measure to the general health of the breeding stock, with consequent beneficial results at farrowing time.

Sows raising only one litter per year need but little grain after the pigs are weaned, if good pastures are provided. While it is a mistake to allow sows to become too fat, it is equally unwise to allow them to become too thin. Enough grain should be given to keep the sows in thrifty condition, and in any event they should get some grain such as a mixture of ground oats, ground barley and middlings, supplemented with skim-milk or fish meal, for two or three weeks before breeding time in the fall. Sows raising two litters per year naturally require more feed than those raising only one, but if early spring and fall litters can be accommodated, the average cost of rearing pigs to weaning age will be lower if two litters per year are raised.

Market hogs make faster gains when confined to a pen, but sow pigs which are to be reserved for breeding, should be given good pasture to ensure good vigorous breeders. They should be fed liberally to ensure satisfactory growth when they are on pasture but if their yard is small and the gilts get only a limited amount of exercise, heavy feeding should be avoided.

Bladder Camplion

Bladder Camplion is considered one of the most serious weed pests in Ontario by the Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

It is difficult to kill owing to its deep fleshy rootstalks and the numbers of stems growing from one crown. The crown is often down six to twelve inches in the soil and this explains the difficulty in cutting it off with the plow and the need of deep plowing followed by a stiff toothed cultivator with wide shares which overlap. Roots and root stalks brought to the surface will not survive but any portion left in the soil with a bud attached, will produce a new plant. Thorough cultivation will eradicate Bladder Camplion in cultivated areas. Chemical weed killers is the only practical solution if the weed is prevalent and cultivation impossible.

The first plant found on your property is a danger signal, says the Department. Eradicate it and save trouble later. The Crops, Seeds and Weeds Branch, Ontario Department of Agriculture, Toronto, will gladly forward you free of charge a pamphlet on how to get rid of this dangerous pest. Write for it immediately.

Bladder Camplion is sometimes misnamed "White Cockle" or "Catchfly". Camplion, however, can be easily identified by its freely branching stems, smooth leaves in pairs which meet around the stem, its white flowers found in loose clusters often drooping and its inflated bell-shaped calyx or pod. It is from this the plant sometimes gets the name of Bladder Weed or Cow Bell. It is adapted to high land and soon becomes established if neglected.

Get after it now, is the best advice of the Ontario Department of Agriculture.

To Visit Plowing Match
An official visit by His Excellency, Lord Tweedsmuir, Governor-General of Canada, to the International Plowing Match at Mineosha, near Barrie, Ont., on Thursday, October 13th, is announced by J. A. Carroll, Manager of this annual agricultural event, the greatest plowing match not only in the British Empire, but in the entire world.

Last year the attendance was over 100,000 at the four-day event and this record, it is expected, will be shattered this year. The dates are October 11th to 14th inclusive.

"There is no doubt," states Mr. Carroll, "that the invitation of the Ontario Plowmen's Association was accepted by His Excellency because of his genuine interest in all phases of agriculture and particularly good plowing and fine horses."

Scotland, the birthplace of Lord Tweedsmuir, is rich in plowing lore, and her sons, well-skilled in the art have transplanted a desire for good cultivation in every part of the British Empire, particularly Canada, where for over 100 years plowing matches have been held.

"While there may be 70 or more modern and powerful tractors in operation on a busy day, double that number, about 140 competitors, will use strong, reliable and well-groomed horses, the cream of the plowing teams in Canada. "A Horse Show is a special feature of the Match," states Mr. Carroll.

LATE DAVID ALLEN WRIGHT

A large number of friends from the surrounding community attended the funeral of the late David Allen Wright, who lost his life in the waters of Rawdon Creek on Wednesday afternoon at about 4 p.m.

Although only a lad of 15 years, he had won for himself a host of friends; his genial disposition was admired by all who knew him; he was a good student, having been admitted to the second form in Stirling High School; he was also a member of St. Andrew's Church and Sunday School.

The funeral service was held on Friday afternoon from the residence of his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wright of North Front Street, to the United Church, West Huntingdon, the service being conducted by Rev. W. R. Tristram, who gave a very comforting message from the text "I am the Good Shepherd." Rev. Hunter of Madoc, and Rev. Delve, of Ivanhoe, also assisted with the service. St. Andrew's choir led the singing and gave an anthem.

The pall-bearers, chums of the deceased, were: Harold Thompson, Carl Rollins, Geo. McLeaming, Fred Benson, Don Francis and Charles Jandrew.

Left to mourn his loss, and to whom the sympathy of a large circle of friends is extended, are: the father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. John Wright; three sisters, Margaret, principal of West Huntingdon public school; Mrs. S. Meraw, of Tweed, and Laura at home; and one brother, John, of Brookville.

MISSING RAWDON MAN FOUND AFTER SIX DAYS IN BOG

For six days and nights, Hugh Jones, 44, of Rawdon Township, fought for his life in a bog which trapped him Saturday, July 30th, and when rescuers stumbled on him Friday, only his head was visible above the mud and water near Crowe River, five miles south of Marmora. Stuck in the bog, unable to move, he kept from slipping to his death by hooking his arm over a log that was submerged two inches when he was found. Day merged into night and into day again for what seemed an eternity to the weakening man. He was unable to speak when rescued by Constable Arthur Dymond of Madoc and Chief Constable Percy Gray of Marmora.

A posse organized Saturday when he disappeared from the home of his niece, Mrs. Wm. Prest, gave up the search Thursday night. But Constable Dymond, Chief Gray and Charles Jones, brother of the missing man, continued to comb the area for him. While passing a point on the river they heard a moan. Rowing and dragging the boat over the bank they came to a spot where a hat seemingly rested on the water. Constable Dymond forged ahead and found Jones up to his shoulders in the muddy bog.

Seeing the help he had looked for in vain approaching, the trapped man became excited that he almost lost his grip on the log. In an effort to reach him before he sank, Dymond found himself bogged and only after a desperate struggle was he able to free himself and reach Jones.

Too weak even to speak, the exhausted man, emaciated and only semi-conscious, showed his gratitude with his eyes as he was pulled from his prison and taken to safety. When his brother reached him he recognized him and tried to raise his arms.

On Sunday a boy was supposed to have seen a man in the bog, but thought he was the Game Warden sitting in a boat. At that time his shoulders would be well above the water and through the rushes it might be thought that he was sitting in a boat. This was not reported to the police.

The posse searched the bog on Wednesday, but was unsuccessful. It is thought that during the heavy rain storm that swept the district the men passed within a few yards of the missing man, but he was too weak to shout to them, or the rain had deadened the sound of his voice.

His hands and legs are badly lacerated by the long stay in the water.

Constable Dymond stated last night that Jones was probably returning home along the river bank Saturday night and stumbled into the bog.

"In the dark he probably stumbled into the mudhole and was unable to struggle out. Fortunately there was a log there for him to grasp," said the Constable, who led the search party for five days and continued on Friday, although the remainder of the posse gave up the search.

He is a native of Marmora township, but in the past few years has resided with his aged father, Robert Jones in Marmora village and latterly at the Prest home in Rawdon Township.

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT

By Luke Short

THIRTEENTH INSTALLMENT

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting foils a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff defends Dave but Dave, Dave's sister, and proceed on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Next morning, after breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to see the town banker, Mr. Pearson. Mortgage is renewed and Dave decides to get enough money to pay off the mortgage by raising alfalfa and selling it. Following night, the lake is blown up and Dave inwardly accuses Hammond. The latter blames Dave. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions.

She picked it up, turned it over, then opened it. The note inside read: To Back Hammond

You will never see yer dawter agen until you pay 50,000$.

If you want to see her agen follow thees dreckshuns — we will give you a day to get the munny on Friday morning send sumwun with it on the east bound trane, the munny must be in wun hundred doler bills. rap them in a wite sock and so it up, giv the man carying the munny a wach and hav him sit on the north sid of the car. after the trane has pulled over the graif at wagen wheel pass he will see a hors which will be yor gurils puled clout to the side of the trax. hav him count two minutes by the wach from the time he pases the hors, when the two minuts is up hav him thro the sock owt the windo.

If the trane slos up or ennywun gets of yur girl will be put to death. If we get the munny she will be hom saturday or sunday. It was unsigned. Mary read it twice before she realized the import.

At Dr. Fullerton's the housekeeper answered her knock and took her to Hammond.

"I'm Mary Winters," she said breathlessly. "I just called at your house and found this note on the table."

"Sit down, please," Hammond said, wondering at her anxious manner. He unfolded the note leisurely and read.

"What can any of us do?" Hammond asked thickly. "They knew I was in bed and helpless. They knew she'd be home alone. I reckon you better tell Hank Lowe."

She mounted and rode swiftly down to the sheriff's office.

"Dorsey Hammond has been kidnapped!" Mary told him bluntly, of fanning him the letter. The sheriff merely blinked and took it, opening it and reading it slowly.

Finished, he called: "Van!"

A sleepy-eyed deputy walked in. "Git a possee up," the sheriff said. "Meet me at Buck Hammond's place. His girl has been kidnapped."

The sheriff waddled out of the office, leaving Mary alone. She shook herself. The only thing left to do was to go to the hotel and wait for Rosy or Dave.

After Rosy left him, Laredo finished his drink and started his search for the sheriff. He tried the office four times at five-minute intervals and found the door locked.

At the fourth try, finding the door still locked, he remembered the note Rosy had given him for Quinn. He went over to the Free Throw, delivered the note, bought a couple of drinks and went back.

This time the door was open. The sheriff had come and gone.

Laredo made himself at home. An idea came to him and he sat down in the sheriff's chair, reached down and pulled out a bottom drawer where he remembered the sheriff kept the reward notices.

There was a drawerful of them and Laredo dumped them all out on top of the desk, then set about looking through them. He kept Rosy's description of Crowell in mind. Laredo could not read, but the picture was what he was after. Presently, he paused in his work and held up a card with a picture of a man on it. The printed matter might have been in Greek, but the face suited him.

He walked to the door, where he waited until a woman turned down the street.

Laredo greeted her: "Howdy, ma'am." He held the picture out. "Can you tell me the name of that Jasper?"

The woman looked again at the card. "It says: 'This is the face that has terrified a thousand criminals and has trained a thousand detectives — J. J. Johns, Master Detective, The Continental Detective Bureau. He can teach you.'"

"Detective Bureau? What's that?" "Some one's learning to be a detective from him — I guess," the woman said.

"Hank Lowe astudyin' to be a detective," he muttered. "Well, I'll be damned."

He shook his head soberly and then began to laugh. Returning to the desk, he leafed through the cards again until he found the same type of face.

The next passer-by he stopped was Pearson the banker.

"Howdy, Mr. Pearson," Laredo drawled from the doorway. "Reckon you can tell me what this poster says?"

Pearson, stiff and unbending, looked briefly at the placard Laredo held out for him to read. "Wanted for murder," he read aloud, "in El Paso Texas. Simon Henry. Reward: five thousand dollars. Last seen—do you want me to go on?"

"Nope, that's enough. Much obliged," Laredo said.

He kept this placard out, put the rest in the desk and sat down, cocking his feet up on the desk when Sheriff Lowe entered, a scowl on his face.

"What do you want?" he growled at Laredo.

"Detective Lowe," Laredo observed dryly.

A slow flush suffused the sheriff's face. "So you been lookin' through my stuff huh?"

"Me? Why, Detective Lowe! I wouldn't be that low-down!"

He reached in his pocket for the note Rosy had given him.

"That's from young Rand, and he give me some instructions to you to go with it."

Laredo told the sheriff what Rosy had told him. As he progressed, the sheriff sank into a chair, his mouth open.

"And he wants me to arrest Crowell — the Jasper that's behind all this grief, and not even tell the danged coyote what I'm arrestin' him for. Darned if I will! I'm double, ring-tailed damned if I will!"

"Yes, you will," Laredo said gently. "You don't know what Rand knows. Neither do I, but he knows enough to know what he's talkin' about."

"All right," he said finally, "but how we goin' to do it?"

Laredo explained his plan, showing Hank the placard he had saved out. "This looks considerably like Crowell, from what Rand said. I'll go over to the hotel and throw a gun on him, and bring him over here and tell you his name is Simon Henry, and that he murdered some Jasper in El Paso. You bring out the card." He grinned.

"It can't help but work."

"But," the sheriff objected. "He'll want a lawyer."

"I've thought of that, too," Laredo drawled. "How many lawyers is there?"

"Two, I reckon. Hartwick and Scoggins," the sheriff said.

"All right. You go to Benning and tell him to hire Hartwig and Scoggins to help prosecute the Henry case that's comin' up. Pay 'em enough and they'll side in with you. Then arrest Crowell and there won't be any lawyers in town to hire."

The sheriff thought a moment. "Plenty. Only who's goin' to pay for all the advice they don't give?"

"Let them argue that out between themselves," Laredo said calmly. "That's what lawyers is for."

The sheriff shook his head wearily. "Danged if it might not work at that. I'll go see Benning."

When the arrangements were completed with the lawyers to the sheriff's satisfaction, Laredo went over to the hotel. The same old man was back of the desk.

"Gent by the name of Crowell registered here?" "Come in a couple of hours ago. Want to see him?"

"I'd sure admire to," Laredo said. "Someone want to see me?" Crowell asked.

"This gent," the clerk said, indicating Laredo.

"I been lookin' for you a considerable while," Laredo said. "So you're registerin' under the name of Crowell now?"

"Who are you?" Crowell asked. "Jackson's the name," Laredo drawled. "You're Simon Henry." He paused. "Are you goin' over to the sheriff's office without a fight?"

"Who do you think you're talking to?" Crowell asked quietly. "My name is Crowell, A. J. Crowell. I'm here on business."

"Your name is Henry, Simon Henry," Laredo repeated flatly. "Wanted for murder in El Paso. Are you comin' to the sheriff's office or am I goin' to have to take you?"

Crowell turned. "You heard this, didn't you, clerk?"

The clerk nodded. Crowell turned to Laredo. "I'm not going."

"I reckon you are," Laredo said. Laredo's gun blurred up from his hip to settle in Crowell's midriff. He reached up and took the gun from Crowell.

"I got a prisoner for you, Sheriff," Laredo said. "Name of Simon Henry. Wanted in El Paso for murder."

"Look here, Sheriff," Crowell said heatedly. "What's it all about?"

"I dunno," the sheriff said heavily. "Just keep your shirt on. I'll see if we have anything about a Jasper named Henry." His slowness was maddening as he shuffled through the notices finally extracting a card which he viewed critically for a full minute, then looked at Crowell.

"He's a picture of Henry. It looks mighty like you. This here says you murdered a cattle-buyer for Lynch's, name of Louis Peyton, on the night of August seventh, last year. Where was you then?"

"How should I know?" Crowell replied heatedly. "I don't keep a diary. Where were you?"

"He was courtin' a old maid by the name of Lizzie May," Laredo said. "Ain't that so, Sheriff?"

Sheriff Lowe squirmed. "I reckon, Well, Henry. What about it?"

"I'm not saying a thing," Crowell retorted. "I want a lawyer."

The sheriff turned to Laredo. "You git 'em."

Laredo shook his head. "And let this desprit criminal out of my sight? I'm stayin' here."

Suddenly, he stopped short and snapped his fingers. "I know where I was August seventh last year. I was in North Dakota, Aspen Wells."

"Well, we'll have to lock you up until we can hear from the marshal or sheriff there. Who seen you there?"

"Moore, a storekeeper," Crowell growled. "Look here, Sheriff. Do you mean I have to stay in town until you can get word?"

"I reckon that's it," the sheriff said. The deputy entered.

"Well?" Crowell asked.

"They won't take the case," the deputy answered. "They say they been engaged by the prosecutin' attorney to help put Henry in jail."

Crowell stared. "I want a hearing and I want it right now," he stormed.

The sheriff shook his head sorrowfully. "The judge is in Walpais. Won't be back until tomorrow night."

"And I've got to stay in jail until then?"

"I don't see no other way," the sheriff explained.

Crowell cursed savagely.

"Now, now," the sheriff said soothingly. "We got a right nice jail. I'll get a telegram off to the nearest railroad town to Aspen Wells. I reckon when the judge comes, you can get out on bail." He reached into a drawer and drew out a pair of handcuffs which he handed to the waiting deputy. "Take him over to the courthouse, Van, and turn him over to King."

BELLEVILLE MARKET

Trading was seemingly slow with no variation in the prices of farm produce to open Saturday's Belleville market. A bountiful array of the products of the soil was offered, however, with the vegetable market proving the more productive of general business.

One vendor at the inside market increased the price of butter to straight 35c a pound, but the general selling saw butter sold at the conventional price of 65c for a 2-lb. roll. Eggs brought 28c for Grade A, and 25c for Grade B, with pullet's eggs selling slightly lower. A goodly display of chickens and young broilers was seen on the inside market, fine milk-fattened chickens selling as high as $1.10 each, with broilers sold from 50c to $1 per pair, according to their size and weight.

To brighten the market a goodly offering of cut flowers and other floral displays added a touch of beauty to the market.

Fine, luscious apples made their first appearance. Harvesters selling at $1 a bushel and Astracans at $2 a bushel. Long black berries were offered at 20c the box, while red raspberries sold at 15c a box and red currants at 3 boxes for 25c. Blue raspberries, cherries and gooseberries saw no change in the prevailing price of last week.

Bright, tempting tomatoes were displayed and sold at 40c the peck measure, while potatoes sold for 20c a peck. Green corn, 15c dozen ears, celery 10c bunch and vegetable marrow at a nickel were also offered. Plump, inviting cauliflower ranged in price anywhere from 10c to 20c, according to the size, white wax and green beans saw no variation in price. Beets, carrots, onions, radishes and cabbage all sold at the conventional price.

During a financial panic a farmer went to the bank for some money. He was told the bank was not paying out money but was using cashier's checks. He could not understand this and insisted on money.

The officers took him in hand, one after another, with little effect. At last the president tried his hand, and after a long and minute explanation some inkling of the situation seemed to be dawning on the farmer's mind.

BEAUTY PROBLEMS

DISCUSSED BY

Barbara Lynn

THE FACE — AND ITS CARE

Some women think it is a waste of time, or just sheer vanity, to devote too much time to their faces. I have even heard a woman say: "If we'd been intended to be beautiful, we'd have been made so!"

How mistaken they are! Surely there is enough ugliness around us without adding to it? And a beautiful woman is one of the fairest jewels on earth.

No women would hesitate to use modern invention to simplify and ease the household drudgery, so why not call on the modern aids to beauty to enhance the loveliness of your face?

Cosmetics will never take the place of regular washing. They are not to hide blemishes that can be eradicated by care, but should be used to enhance the natural beauty that is already there, and to conserve it.

You'll be surprised when I tell you that I have found an astonishingly large number of women who do not know how to wash their face! Incredible, perhaps, but true. There are a lot of fallacious ideas on the subject.

Neither Hot Nor Hard Water

The water you use may seem perfectly all right, and yet it may be conducting to skin imperfections. Hard water is too harsh. If the only water available is hard, a good idea would be to soften it by using a bran mixture. There is nothing difficult about it, and bran is excellent. Boil a pound of bran in a gallon of water and strain it. Add enough of this mixture to your washing water to make it look milky.

Extremely hot water should never be used on the face. See that the water is just tepid. Remember that the facial muscles are very sensitive, and hot water tends to relax them and gives a flabby appearance to the face.

Every face needs a good morning and evening routine. Don't be haphazard about it. Regular care becomes a habit and will pay enormous dividends in face loveliness.

I have prepared a special leaflet on "The Face — and Its Care," which deals exhaustively with the subject, giving treatments and much helpful advice on blemishes and general care. I should be glad to send you a copy and any of the following special leaflets if you will send a 3c stamp for each one required: How to Slim; Underweight; Superfluous Hair; Reducing in Spots — Thighs, Arms, Hips, Legs, etc.; Hand Beauty; Bust Development; Care of the Feet; Your Hair; Bye Beauty.

Don't hesitate to ask my help in your personal beauty worries. I'll be delighted to help you and every letter is confidential. When writing, please mention name of this paper, and address all letters to Barbara Lynn, P.O. Box 75, Station B, Montreal, Que.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES OTTAWA

(By Dean Wilson)

Amongst the well-informed circles along Parliament Hill, there is much discussion about the possibility that the Dominion Government may engage in a scheme to encourage a "Back to the Land" movement as still another way to reduce the continually growing dole lists of this country. It is now pointed out that such a movement of the population would not be made in a carefree manner, nor without scientific and economic management, and it would be under the guidance and protection of the Federal Government with the co-operation of the local authorities throughout Canada. Of course, it is not a new scheme in the Government's campaign against the scourges of national unemployment troubles, but everything indicates that new tactics and new ideas will prevail in trying to induce certain desirable types of Canadian citizens to settle and cultivate the waste lands of this huge country, and to curb the city-ward trend of our times.

During the past seventy years, the trend of the population movements in Canada have been towards the city.

The men and the women from the farm, who have tasted the so-called turmoil, temptations, pleasures and pains of existence in a city of large towns, have been reluctant to return to the routine of farm life, with its usually long hours of labour, its comparative isolation and its currently small recompensation. In 1871, only 19.58 per cent of the population of Canada lived in cities and towns. In 1901, the rate was only 37 per cent. In 1928, the rural population almost equalled the urban population in this country, and today there is close to a million citizens more in the cities and towns of Canada than on the farms. It is obvious that the trend is city-ward, and all scientific investigations disclose that it is not likely to change, unless something happens to bring about a complete reversal of the trend of population.

Now and again, during the past seventy years of Canada's history, various Governments at Ottawa, with the co-operation of the local authorities in all sections of Canada, have endeavoured to encourage people to settle on the farms in this country, but it is tragic and true that most of these efforts have resulted in some sad experiences for the Governments and settlers involved, even in very recent years when "Back to the Land" movements were being tried as a means to reduce the burdens of relief officials in the towns and cities. Large groups of individuals and families were shipped out in certain territories, but it is not hard to discover that many distressing stories relate the experiences of these Canadians. Before these people could adjust themselves to their new life, they suffered inhumanly from cold and hunger; many of them had been given land that was thoroughly unsuitable for any of their farming operations; they could not obtain lumber with which to build proper homes; there were cases where families did not even receive aid that had been promised to them prior to their departure from the cities and towns where they were receiving adequate relief; they could not possibly earn enough money to maintain any kind of moderate standard of living to which they had become accustomed in the city of TOWN. In other words, the whole object of the movement was thus defeated because these people had to depend entirely upon relief for their existence under far worse conditions. It is clear that the schemes were failures in their objects and results.

In the Government's efforts to aid the economic conditions of the land, every recent action has emphasized that the rural population must be given greater assistance than in the past. This explains why more beneficial aid was provided for the rural sections in the recent $100,000,000 housing plan and why there is now a discussion of a "Back to the Land" movement, if it is considered at the present time. However, any such scheme will not be carried out now in the same manner as in the past. Only desirable Canadians will be settled on the farms. The nature of this life requires that person to be a law-abiding and God-fearing citizen, who is inclined to be a lover of the soil upon which he lives and toils, contented with the fruits of his work, and who can find sufficient recreation in his occupation and immediate friends and neighbours, without seeking the so-called allurements of the city. He must not be of the kind that resort to sit-down strikes in order to increase his wages by cessation of production, nor carry into practise the foreign preachings of Fascism or Communism.

There is a very strong possibility that Federal aid will be given in a proper measure in the immediate future to the farmer in this country since prosperity amongst the agricultural community means prosperity amongst the city and town dwellers. It means increased purchasing power in the country. It means that there is a possibility of reducing the heavy dole lists. It means that sooner or later "Back to the Land" movements may indirectly be one of the main methods whereby a better economic balance is brought to the commercial life of Canada.

BARN AND CONTENTS ARE DESTROYED BY FIRE

Igniting from the sparks of a threshing outfit which was in operation on his farm, the barn and contents on the farm of Melson Conkwright, fourth concession of Hungerford were completely destroyed by fire late Monday morning. William Vance, owner of the threshing apparatus, and his son, Horace, sustained minor burns from the blaze in their successful attempts to save the threshing separator, that was facing the raging inferno at close proximity. Threshing activities started at the Conkwright farm on Monday, with Mr. Vance's threshing machine in operation. Shortly after 10 a.m. sparks were seen emerging from the separator and before even the warning of fire could be issued, the light straw was a raging inferno. Fanned by a light breeze the blaze made rapid progress and it was only with difficulty that the workmen managed to haul the threshing separator to safety. The barn and contents were a complete loss, with no insurance, Mr. Conkwright stated.

A nomination meeting will be held in the C.M.B.A. Hall, Maynooth, on Tuesday, Aug. 16, and in case a poll is demanded, an election will be held on August 23 to fill the vacancy caused by Reeve Anderson's resignation.

ELECTORAL POSTS TO BE FILLED SOON

Two hundred and forty-five returning officers, one for each Federal district in Canada, will be appointed soon by the Government.

Those who have held these positions since 1930 are now out in consequence of the new Election Act, but they are eligible for re-appointment, and, in some cases, will likely be chosen anew.

Part of the new act is now in force and other parts of it will be operative by proclamation when the chief electoral office has prepared the great number of forms and documents called for by the act. Eight different kinds of books and 16 different forms of enumerators and other members of the staffs are to be printed. The cost of such supplies when fully stocked up will be $250,000.

Under the new statute the work of the returning officers will be materially increased inasmuch as they will have charge of the preparation of the voters' lists, previously directed by officers under the Franchise Commission. The position of chief electoral officer is to be abolished when the act is brought fully into force. It is believed that another post will be found for Colonel John Thompson, the present chief electoral officer, now holds it while the small staff will be absorbed into the civil service.

One of the effects of the new act will be reversion in the old methods of having lists printed in local printing offices. As revision of them will be completed only 10 days before the election it will be impossible for them to be printed at the Government bureau in Ottawa.

Another new feature, in place of a voter being notified by post card where his or her voting place is located, provides for sending each voter a list of all voters in the polling subdivision.

The theory is that voters know their neighbours and will detect any names which are improperly on the list. The expense will be slightly larger than by the postcard method.

While ballots will be printed locally, a special kind of paper will be used, and each sheet of it must be accounted for.

NEW TORY LEADER FAVOURS FEDERAL RELIEF

Breaking new ground in national Conservative policies, Hon. Dr. R. J. Manion on Wednesday declared for the removal from municipalities of their share of total local relief costs and placing the entire costs upon the Federal Government. Ontario municipalities are paying 30 per cent.

Dr. Manion's statement was regarded as of great economic and political importance because municipal leaders all over Canada have long been protesting their local relief burdens and demanding that the entire relief costs be borne by the Federal Government as a national responsibility.

It was only in June of this year that Ontario municipalities were advised that for the balance of 1938 the apportionment of local relief costs was to be: municipality, 30 per cent; Provincial Government, 45 per cent; Dominion Government, 25 per cent. The new Leader of the National Conservative Party accompanied his declaration of policy with a warning that unless the Federal Administration acted quickly to solve such problems as unemployment, taxation, and the distribution of the nation's products, then the economic system would be wrecked, revolution would follow and there would be a throw-back to barbarism.

WE NEED YOUR HELP— THIS YEAR! EVERY YEAR!

Needy children from all over the Province are treated regardless of race, creed or financial circumstance.

This policy has been continued for over 60 years in the firm belief that everyone who understands the facts would want this great work to continue . . . would agree that no Ontario child should be denied a chance for health or escape from deformity if mere money makes the difference.

Over 95% of our beds are in Public Wards.

The Hospital receives no support from the Toronto Federation for Community Service because patients are accepted from all parts of the Province.

We must therefore appeal to a humane and generous public to take care of an annual deficit . . . this year it is $68,000.00.

Please mail a donation to the Appeal Secretary, 67 College Street, Toronto.

The thanks of little children will be your reward.

The Hospital for Sick Children

Every morning in the year famous surgeons come to our operating rooms to donate their services. More than 8,100 operations are performed annually. But there are many extra involved and the maintenance of this necessary service is very costly.

Since 1928 the service rendered by the always-overcrowded Out-Patient Department has more than doubled. Last year 86,416 individual treatments were given. This service yields a small return—but not nearly enough.

Three Stirling residents suffered injuries when a Chevrolet roadster, owned by Cecil Conley, of Glen Ross, and in which Misses Ruby Wannamaker, Pearl Pidgeon and Ernest Lake were passengers, took the ditch and turned turtle about a quarter of a mile south of Springbrook, on Highway No. 14, on Sunday afternoon. Misses Wannamaker and Pidgeon received severe cuts to the head from flying glass as well as numerous bruises, while Lake suffered a broken rib. The accident is said to have been caused by a tire blowing out. The car was badly damaged.

Walking east on Highway No. 2 within sight of his home a half-mile east of Deseronto Sunday afternoon, Billie Bowen, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bowen, was instantly killed when struck by a car driven by Walker Anderson of Hamilton. Dr. W. C. Blackwell, of Deseronto, was called and the child was found to have suffered a fractured skull and fractured leg. He was accompanied by his 4-year-old sister, Helen, but she escaped uninjured. The car was owned by Herman W. Harpest of Maybee, Mich., a passenger, and father-in-law of Anderson. Provincial Traffic Officer Henry Jillings placed Anderson under arrest but he was later released on bail.

According to Provincial Constable Dymond, of Marmora, Jackson had been raking gravel dumped from trucks when a car, allegedly driven by Leo Cleary, 26, of Hastings, struck him. The victim is survived by his wife and several children.

Four persons were injured and rushed to Belleville General Hospital on Saturday night as a result of a head-on collision two miles east of Marmora. He is at a loss to account for the injury, but finding his foot painful on Saturday, had it examined by Dr. W. H. Pedley, who discovered the bone leading to his small toe fractured.

GLEN ROSS WINS

In an exhibition game of softball played on the diamond at Stirling Agricultural Grounds, on Friday evening, Glen Ross, Champions of Rawdon League, defeated the Minto nine, champions of Hastings League, by the score of 14 to 6. Owing to a delayed start only four innings were played and there was only a small crowd in attendance.

SUMMER SCHOOL BEING HELD

SECOND SESSION OPENS WITH ATTENDANCE OF FIFTY-FIVE

The second Summer School to be held this season is at present in session at Oak Lake, with approximately fifty-five students and leaders in attendance. The school is under the direction of Mr. Stephen Saywell, Oshawa, with Rev. Roy Rickard, of Colborne, as Camp Director. A long and varied programme is used daily, beginning at 6.45 a.m. and closing at 11.15 p.m. The day is spent in study, quiet meditation, lectures, swimming, recreation and fun. One of the outstanding facts about this group is that these young people can change from the ridiculous to the religious and from the silly to the sober aspects of things in such a short period of time.

The lectures for each day are given by a group of United Church ministers from different parts of the Conference. Rev. D. M. Stinson, of Oakwood is giving a series of lectures on Missions. Rev. M. A. Bury, of Janetville, speaks on "Recreation". Rev. R. N. Wylie, of Columbus speaks on the Prophets and Rev. G. W. Porter on "Social Aspects of Religion." The Vespers service addresses are given by Rev. D. M. Stinson, Rev. Russell O'Brien of Whitby, and Rev. W. C. Smith, of Courville. The campfire addresses are being given by Rev. W. G. Fletcher, of Arden; Rev. Fred Ridling, of Pontypool, and Rev. M. A. Bury. At the Sunday service on Aug. 14th, the morning sermon was preached by Mr. Don Baxter, of Bloomfield, and the evening preacher was Rev. G. W. Porter. Services will be held again this Sunday, August 21st.

Special features of the Camp are the Camp Inspector's report, a corn roast one night, an amateur and a stunt programme another night, and programme another night. To one listening in, the singing of the group is amusing and entertaining. The teaching of group games and the contests in baseball and volleyball add to the interest of the afternoon's programme.

The School Registrar is Miss Susie VanCamp, of Burketon, while Mrs. (Rev.) Roy Rickard, of Colborne acts as Camp Mother. Mrs. Currie, of Oakwood, has charge of the dining room.

One part of the Summer School grounds is known as the Outdoor Chapel. One who has experienced the value of worship in that outdoor chapel has written this poem:

Oak Lake Chapel calls to worship,
Come and know that God is near.
Feel His all-pervading Presence
And His lovely whisper near.
For the walls, stand stately pine trees
Straight and tall, with branches spread,
In a canopy of verdure
For a roof tree overhead.
And the richest carpet graces
Oak Lake Chapel's earthly floors,
Brown of leaves and green of grasses,
Choicest gifts of out-of-doors.
Feathered songsters sing the anthems,
Joyful notes from joyful choir!
And for tapers, golden sunbeams
Hold aloft their flaming fire.
Garlands, too, are in abundance,
Blossoms beauteous to behold,
Daisies tall and pale and stately,
Dandelions blazing gold.
Oak Lake Chapel calls us, calls us,
Bids us join in praise and prayer,
If at all our God existeth
Surely we shall find Him there.

COVERING THE WORLD OF SPORT

The ring has abounded in smart fighters. Men like Gene Tunney and Kid McCoy who held a mental advantage over their opponents and were able to figure out just how to beat them before lifting a glove. But they would have to get up early and think fast to put anything over on Tommy Burns, the only Canadian ever to hold the heavyweight championship of the world.

Hanover, Ont., was the birthplace of Noah Brusso on June 17, 1881, but when Noah decided to chase the pot of gold that lies behind the rainbow of fistiana, he chose the cognomen "Tommy Burns" as his ring name. And it is one that will never be forgotten so long as old-timers gather round to reminisce on clever men of the ring. It was Tommy's clever ring strategy that enabled him to win the heavyweight crown although really only a middleweight, and it was the same strategy that enabled him to defend it when he was physically unable to do so. The chain of events leading up to Burns getting a crack at the title read like bad luck but it turned out to be good luck for the stocky Canuck.

When Jim Jeffries retired from the ring he announced that his crown would pass to the winner of a bout between Marvin Hart and Jack Root, which Jeff refereed. Hart was the winner, and immediately began to capitalize. Burns, a mere middleweight, looked like a pushover and some easy money, so he was offered the match. It has been said that Tommy would have refused but for the fact that he was in financial difficulties, but once he signed he immediately began figuring ways and means of winning ... and taking home the 75 per cent. of the purse that went to the winner. He sent his trainer to Hart's camp and learned that the champion was big, strong and game, but notoriously short-tempered. That gave Tommy an idea. On the night of the fight the two men set an extreme contrast as they entered the ring. Hart was huge, towering, bulky. Burns was shorter and seemed no match for the titheholder, although he had a phenomenal reach for a man of his size.

The Canadian had purposely wrapped a great deal too much bandage on his hands, and Hart immediately demanded that he take it off. Burns protested that it was the amount he always used against middleweights, but the champion insisted that he remove the excess. Burns kept talking mildly to his opponent in the middle of the ring until the attention of every fan in the arena was centred on the two. Then, when he sensed that the right moment had arrived, Tommy pushed Hart away from him and then ducked, as if Marvin was threatening to take a punch at him. The "act" had the desired effect, everyone being convinced that Hart was bullying his little opponent before the fight started. They booed and hissed the bewildered champion, who took one look at the grinning Burns and blew sky-high. Tommy had his goat at the beginning which was the main point in his plan.

Hart rushed out wildly, and the canny Canadian kept him angry with a continual barrage of taunts and jibes. He closed the champion's right eye in the fifth round, and by dancing around to the blind side landed some blows that nearly put Hart out in the fourteenth. For the rest of the 20-round go he boxed for a decision and won — the heavyweight championship of the world.

Two victories over Bill Squires, champion of Australia, were won solely on ring craft. In the first meeting Squires rushed out from his corner at the bell and nailed Burns with a terrific smash. Tommy took it without blinking and said: "What's the matter, Squires, can't you fight, or won't you?" The husky Aussie was so dumfounded that he stepped back, gave Tommy an opening and it was all over. In their second meeting, in Australia, Burns was fighting against the orders of physicians due to an attack of influenza. Early in the brawl he muttered to his rival: "Take it easy Bill, I'm going to carry you for a while." Squires, remembering his previous beating and knowing nothing of Burns' illness, mumbled a word of thanks and his chances for the title were gone. They sparred for thirteen rounds and then Tommy caught his opponent wide open and let him have it. Down went Squires, down and out — beaten by a man whose physical condition was such that he had no right in the ring, but whose mentality made him the better man.

QUESTIONS DEPT. — How fast does a golf ball, driven by an expert, travel in m.p.h.? (Answer at foot of column.)

Canada's national winter pastime, it seems, is going back where it belongs. True, the prospects are that this coming season the Dominion will have only two representatives in the National Hockey League and none at all in the International League (why do they still call it that?). But nevertheless, the glittering ice game is heading back home, for it does not really belong in mammoth arenas before dense throngs of patrons, but on the open-air rinks and small arenas of Canada's towns and villages where it was born and thrived until the promotional moguls made it into big business.

Going back to the genesis of hockey, in 1879 when a group of McGill University students took the rules of European field hockey, shook them up a bit and staged the first game of "ice" hockey, we find that the game was for many years after entirely amateur. The original National Hockey League, after several unsuccessful seasons, disbanded in 1916, but was re-organized in 1917, with two Montreal teams, one from Ottawa and the Toronto Arenas. Quebec replaced one of the Montreal squads in the following year, only to be in turn replaced by Hamilton in 1919. In 1924 Boston became the first American entry, and when New York Americans and Pittsburgh Pirates came in the following year, the death knell of the professional game in Canada was sounded. New York Rangers, Detroit and Chicago joined in 1926 and the pro sport went definitely American. Hamilton went out in 1925. Ottawa took the count in 1934 after a lengthy struggle to make ends meet.

The International League, once all-Canadian, was similarly a modern version of the old story of the Arab and the Camel. One by one the Canuck entrants were forced to withdraw as the more affluent U. S. clubs, with their much greater populations, forced the Canadians to become the poor relations of the circuit.

It now seems certain that Montreal Maroons will switch their N. H. L. franchise across the line before the commencement of the coming campaign, leaving Montreal Canadiens and Toronto Maple Leafs as the only pro clubs in the Dominion, barring the Pacific Coast League. To the casual observer it would seem that hockey was in reverse gear in its native land. But such is not the case. The formation a few years ago of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association, free from the influence of commercialization and professionalism, has boomed the sport in the rural districts of this province, over 200 clubs participating in its various leagues last winter. Under the energetic leadership of Secretary Lorne Johannes, of Galt, the O.R.H.A. is sponsoring the game for the game's sake. No ballyhoo, no palatial, heated arenas jammed with half-interested spectators. Just hockey, plenty of intertown rivalry, and healthy exercise for a couple of thousand red-blooded Ontario youths.

Hockey will never die out in Canada so long as Old Man Winter continues to make his annual visit to the land of the maple leaf.

Jack Stover, of Chatham, Ont., is a young Canadian boy whose all-round athletic prowess is enabling him to see a fair share of the world. Given a trial by Washington Senators of the American Baseball League, Stover was "farmed" out for further seasoning. A leg injury forced him to the sidelines, but he is now on his way to Scotland, where he will play hockey this winter. In the spring, however, he will be back for another trial with Washington.

A YEAR AGO IN SPORT — On August 17th, 1937, Stan Horne, of Ottawa, retained his Canadian Professional Golfers' Association championship over the 7,000 yards of the Ottawa Hunt Club course. Horne turned back the belated challenge of Bob Gray, Jr., of Windsor, whose 290 strokes placed him in second place, two behind the winner.

ANSWERS DEPT. — Gene Sarazen, noted U. S. golf professional, once drove a ball at a tested speed of 120 miles an hour. Some of the heavy hitters may even surpass this, although the average, of course, is considerably below this.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

Price tones were fairly firm on the Belleville Market on Saturday, in spite of the fact that heavy quantities of produce augmented the abundant early morning display.

Home-grown tomatoes, scarlet and luscious, fairly flooded the market in varying quantities. Prices were quoted at 50 cents per bushel lot with other quantities offered at commensurate prices. Vendors prophesied no further decrease in price in view of the fact that canning factories of the district are opening next week.

Potatoes were plentiful and were offered at 50 and 60 cents per bushel. Sweet corn, mostly of the Yellow Bantam variety, struck a popular note with Saturday morning shoppers, selling at 15 cents a dozen ears with some vendors selling two dozen for 25 cents.

Giant cabbage and cauliflower selling at from 10 cents per head stood out in a colorful vegetable display in which was noted white "puff balls" that sold quickly to lovers of this unique food. Large onions, in fact some that were of mammoth proportions, beets of exceptionally large size, red carrots, and other seasonal vegetables made up a display that stood out for its quality and price.

A few boxes of fresh red strawberries, product of the kind known as "Everbearing" were offered to lovers of this fruit at 25c per box. Only a few boxes of blue raspberries offered at 15 cents each were noted. Heavy offerings of early apples were a feature of the fruit display, with an abundance of the popular "Yellow Harvest" selling at from 35 cents per peck. "Duchess", a popular cooking variety, moved to a briskly buying market, selling at 25 cents per basket lot. Pippins were offered for sale at the same prices. Huckleberries, still plentiful, were available in varying quantities with six-quart baskets proving the best seller at 50 cents each. Imported Burbank plums at 40 and 45 cents per basket, and peaches at 45 and 50 cents per six-quart, rounded out a fine display.

Eggs were fairly abundant in the inside market where "A" selects were offered at 27 and 28 cents per dozen. Mediums and pullets eggs were quoted at 24 and 25 cents per dozen respectively.

Farmers' butter was offered at 55 cents per two-pound rolls although in some places it was available at 30 cents per pound.

Chickens were quoted at little change from last week-end prices, choice birds selling at from 80 cents up.

Fresh lake trout at 25 cents per pound and whitefish at 20 cents attracted lovers of this form of food.

SCRAPED APPLE IN SUMMER COMPLAINT

The late Dr. A. —, an old family practitioner in Iredell County, North Carolina, lost his first baby of cholera infantum. Two summers later his second child became desperately ill of the same complaint. Then the baby began to improve and the doctor was dismayed when he discovered the old negro mammy feeding it scraped apple. He scolded her soundly asking why she wanted to kill the child. "Well, doctor," she replied, when he paused for breath, "your baby is gettin' well, isn't she?"

When the doctor admitted that she was, she continued, "That's because I've been feeding it scraped apple. If you want her to get well, let me keep on." Within a few days the baby was well and thereafter the doctor used scraped apple successfully in cases of diarrhoea and dysentery.

This was 40 years before Birnberg published his first report in America of this famous method of treatment, thus forestalling Dr. A. — in the practical application of the best known of Scriptural commands, namely: "Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, etc."

Scraped apple is one of the best methods of treating infantile diarrhoea, just as apple juice is the best "pick-me-up" after severe exertion. The reason for the latter is that exertion causes a loss of potassium for the muscular tissues and since a pint of apple juice contains approximately 9 grains of potassium, this homely article is an effective remedy. Apply growers should profit by this knowledge. Mothers of families whose babies have diarrhoea, may use scraped apple with good effect before calling the doctor.

...by a Telephone CALL

Neighbours could have saved this barn. But they did not know about the fire — there was no telephone to call them. No farmer should be without a telephone. One single fire would pay ten years' telephone cost for a whole county. Every farmer should consider at least the safety of his home, family and chattels. The telephone banishes isolation, calls aid whenever needed.

BEAUTY PROBLEMS

DISCUSSED BY

Barbara Lynn

Eminent Beauty Authority and Adviser, who writes weekly articles on Beauty Problems for many Canadian Newspapers.

BLEMISHES TO BEAUTY

There are few women who haven't some blemish which worries them. Quite often they dwell on it to such an extent that it becomes an obsession. They imagine other people's pitying glances when, in most cases, the fear is mostly in their own minds. However, most blemishes are susceptible to treatment, and in this article I am going to deal with one or two of the most common beauty worries; those which crop up so frequently in your letters to me.

Blackheads are a plague, and there is no method of eliminating them permanently. You can do much to prevent their appearance, though, by properly cleansing your face, and by using a good tissue cream, as well as by tabooring rich foods and eating, instead, lots of vegetables and fruit.

To Remove Blackheads

To remove blackheads, wash your face thoroughly with soap and water. Next cover the affected area with a flannel wrung in hot water. This opens the pores. Soften your fingertips with small pads of cotton-wool and gently squeeze out the blackhead. Don't neglect to dab the spot where it has been with peroxide of hydrogen to disinfect and close the pores.

Tiny red veins on the cheeks worry quite a lot of women. They can be cured by electrical treatment, but this costs quite a lot of money. The remedy for most people is to wear a fairly heavy make-up.

Avoid washing in either very cold or very hot water if you wish to prevent the veins getting worse. Don't use violent friction on the face.

Birthmarks and scars are the source of untold misery to people at all sensitive. These, again, can be removed, but the treatment entailed is so expensive that it is beyond the purse of most people.

However, don't despair. Clever make-up will minimize, if it does not entirely obscure, the blemishes.

I shall be delighted to send you more detailed information on the treatment of blemishes, as on any other problem. Write me and enclose a 3c stamp for confidential reply.

WEST HUNTINGDON

The lovely warm weather has enabled a large number of the farmers to complete their harvest in record time. Some have finished threshing; the grain is yielding well and the quality is extra good, some oats yielding at 44 pounds per bushel. Those who have grain to sell are finding that the prices offered are very small, and seven cents per pound is the ruling price. The second crop of alfalfa is being cut this week and in some fields it is nearly as good as the first. A large acreage is held over for seed. The corn crop is the best seen in years in this vicinity. Looking from all angles, 1938 so far has been an outstanding year for bumper crops.

Birthday Surprise Party

On Monday evening a large number of the members of Beulah L.O.L. No. 435, gathered at the home of Mr. Alex McInroy, to celebrate with him his 75th birthday. A number were detained from attending, due to the electric storm passing over at that time. Mr. McInroy's many friends wish for him many more happy birthdays.

The FEUD at SINGLE SHOT By Luke Short

FOURTEENTH INSTALMENT

With his partner, Rosy Rand, Dave Turner is on his way to his ranch at Single Shot. Both are returning from prison where they have served sentences for unjust convictions. On the train which is carrying a large sum of money, Rosy's quick action and straight shooting fells a hold-up while Dave saves the life of Martin Quinn, a gambler, who is being threatened by a desperado. Stopping at Single Shot, the sheriff defends Dave but Dave and Rand go to Soledad to meet Mary, Dave's sister, and proceed on horseback to the ranch. Mary reveals she is married and tells Dave that the ranch is doing poorly, being beset by nesters and involved in a claim dispute. Next morning, at breakfast, Dave and Rosy discover that Mary is now cooking for the ranch hands—a bad sign. After discussing financial matters with Mary, Dave and Rosy saddle horses and leave for Single Shot to see the town banker, Mr. Pearson. Mortgage is renewed and Dave decides to get enough money to pay off the mortgage by raising alfalfa and selling it. Following night, the lake is blown up, and Dave inwardly accuses Hammond. The latter blames Dave. A chance meeting of the two gives them an opportunity to clear away this false impression. The hunt now turns to Crowell, the mysterious man of means and ambitions.

Quinn was dealing faro when Laredo rode handed him Rosy's note.

He got his hat and left the Free Throw, heading for Sam's place, the only place in town where a man could get a bath in hot water. He entered the shop and found Winters stretched out in the single barber chair getting a shave.

Winters saw him and raised a careless hand in greeting. "Hullo, Quinn. How'd they pry you away from the faro table?"

"I took the afternoon off," Quinn replied.

Winters laughed easily. "I was hoping you'd be there this afternoon. I was coming in and take a heap of money away from you."

Something in Quinn's mind told him to be cautious. "I never turn down a game," he said quietly.

Quinn went into the hardware store, one corner of which was walled up into a large room which was the post office. Murphy was behind the wicket.

"Hello, Murph," Quinn greeted him. "Has the mail for the Turner spread been called for yet?"

"No, Winters got his, but he never took the rest of it."

On the street again, he headed for the bank. He had come to a decision about Winters at last. According to Murphy, Mary Winters had not received the money he had mailed to her anonymously the night before, so she had not given Winters the money he now had.

He entered the bank, swung open the gate and strode past the clerk to the office door marked "Private." He swung it open brusquely. Pearson was seated at a flat desk, pencil in hand.

Quinn reached in his bill-fold and drew out a card which he flipped carelessly on the desk in front of Pearson. The banker studied the card and his rather stern features settled into more genial lines.

"What can I do for you, Mr. Quinn?"

"I want to know about Winters, Mr. Theodore Winters," Quinn said.

"Does he bank here? I'd like to take a look at his account if he does."

"Certainly," Pearson rang a bell and the clerk entered.

"See if we have a Mr. Theodore Winters banking here," Pearson ordered. "Bring me his account."

The clerk disappeared and returned with a sheet of loose-leaf paper. Pearson handed it to Quinn.

The gambler scanned it swiftly.

"He banked twenty-five a week for three months, then stopped. That was two years ago. He was married about that time, wasn't he?"

"Some time around there," the banker said.

Quinn rose. "Much obliged, Pearson. I'd appreciate it if this—" he tapped the billfold—"didn't get around."

"I understand perfectly," Pearson said.

Outside again, Quinn hesitated a moment, then walked across to the Free Throw.

He strolled through the main room to the dance-hall beyond. He strolled behind the dance-hall bar and gossiped with the bartender.

He had idled away a half hour this way before he saw Winters come in and walk over to the faro table. Quinn caught the eye of one of the house men.

"Mix around at Joe's table and see how big Winters' roll is, will you, Tom?"

The house man nodded and left. In five minutes he was back.

"He's got a wad so big he can't get it in his billfold."

Quinn left and walked down toward the station. At a shoe shop a few doors below the bank, he entered and was waited upon by a near-sighted and be-aproned old German.

"Anybody called for a pair of riding boots during the last hour, Dad?"

he asked him. "I mean riding boots, army boots."

The old German shook his head.

"Is there another shoe store in town?"

"Dere iss a man from me four dors down who sess he repairs boots."

Quinn thanked him, suppressing a smile, and went down the street to the other boot shop. He asked the same question of an old Mexican who assured him fluently that he had not seen such a pair.

Outside again, Quinn rolled a cigarette and crossed the street to the barber-shop where he had seen Winters. Sam, the negro, was seated in an empty chair. He got up immediately, a broad grin on his face.

"No. I don't want anything, Sam," Quinn assured him. "Where's Winters' room?"

A slight change came over the negro's face.

"He lives on a ranch, don't he?" Sam asked.

"He lives here," Quinn said quietly.

The negro's mouth gaped open. "Here? He don't live here, boss. No one lives here but me an' the missus upstairs."

"He had slippers on, Sam."

"Yassuh. Them's mine Ah give him to wear. His boots was pretty thin and he ast me to send 'em out an' get fixed while Ah was barberin' him."

"Where'd you send them?"

"That old Dutchman fella," Sam replied glibly.

"I asked there, Sam," Quinn said patiently.

"Ah sent 'em out by that littlest kid of mine. Mebbe he took 'em over to Garcia's."

"I asked there, too. He hasn't seen them either."

The negro fidgeted nervously. Quinn regarded the negro dreamily. "Sam, where did you come from?"

"Texas, Boss."

"Then you've seen hard-cases hurrah the town, haven't you?"

"Yassuh. Too many times."

"Did you ever see one hurrah a coloured man's barber shop, Sam?" Quinn regarded the black man with a slow smile, extending in his other hand a ten-dollar bill. "What about it?"

Sam's hand reached slowly for the bill. "You go upstairs and turn to the right. It's the back room. Ah ain't got no key."

Quinn found the stairs to his left and mounted them. The door to the room was locked. He put his shoulder to the door and broke the lock.

His experienced eye noted a Shoebox that was used as a wastebasket. It was full.

He dumped the contents on the floor near a window and began to sort out and smooth the crumpled pieces of paper. Half way through, he rose with a paper in his hand and went closer to the window.

The letter was sent from a well-known smelting company in Tucson dated two days ago.

Enclosed are banknotes as you always direct with your shipments, $893.00, in payment for twenty-seven ounces of gold quoted at the current market, refining costs deducted.

Quinn let the paper slip from his hands. "So that's it. Gold," he muttered.

Putting the paper in his pocket, he glanced around the room. Cigarettes littered the floor and rug, even the dresser top. Quinn lighted a match, touched off the paper in the shoebox and waited for it to burn down. Finished, he closed the door behind him and went downstairs.

Sam was waiting, his face sweating. "Boss, what am Ah goin' to tell Mistuh Wintuhls when he comes in?"

Tell Winters you smelled smoke and had to break down the door to put out the fire."

He gave Sam another ten. "Buy a new mirror Sam. And just forget that I was ever in here."

When they awoke Dave it was by sticking a gun in his midriff.

"You got the hobbles off you. Come on," Reilly grunted.

"You're goin' to take a trip, Turner."

Dave extended his hands to be bound.

As Sayres reached out, Dave lunged for his throat, wrapping his long fingers around it, his thumbs at the windpipe. Sayres slid off the table, clutching with his big hands at Dave's wrists as Dave felt a skull shattering blow on his head. He held on doggedly feeling another blow on the side of his head, and yet another, as he sank into unconsciousness.

It was daylight when he regained his senses, brought back by the steady joggling of his horse. He realized his head was lolling from side to side, in the mane of his horse. His head throbbed maddeningly. About to look up, he suddenly checked himself. Around the saddle-horn his wrists were laced tightly.

Relaxing, he let his body sway, as if he were still unconscious. He dimly realized that he was mounted on his own horse.

He knew the horse had not been unsaddled since yesterday, for it quivered its skin continually. Hanging his head a little, Dave looked beneath his arm and saw that his slicker, with the sheriff's gun inside, was still behind the cantle.

Reilly's thin whistling stopped suddenly and he called to Lew. The leader drew up and Dave's horse stopped willingly.

"Give us a drink," Reilly called.

Dave heard him dismount.

"Reckon that jasper is alive?" Lew asked.

"I dunno. I been watchin' him and he acts just like he was dead."

"Take a look," Lew said.

Reilly walked back and, seizing Dave's forelock, yanked his head up off the horse's neck. He felt his chest.

"He's alive, all right," Reilly grunted.

"Damned if I know why, though. I slugged that skull of his till my arm was tired and he still hung on to Sayres."

Lew laughed shortly. "That kick-in' Sayres give him didn't help much."

A high, jagged-edged hogback rose between them and Lew nosed his horse into the trail that ascended its side. The trail was narrow; to the left there was a sheer wall, to the right a long talus or windrift that sloped abruptly to the canyon bottom three hundred feet below. Lew looked back and hauled up the rope a little, so as to bring Dave's horse closer to him.

"Wonder now, is that hoss spooky?" Lew asked. "If he is I reckon I'll let this rope go and you drive him up."

"Now. He's dead on his feet," Reilly replied.

Lew said: "I hope so," and swung up into the sharply ascending rocky trail.

He sagged loosely in the saddle, head bent down as his horse swung into the ascent. The steepness of the hill raised the horse's fore-quarters, letting Dave's sagging head slip down on the shoulders. He rode low this way for perhaps three minutes.

He steeled himself. "Here goes, old horse. Sorry." And he sunk his teeth into the horse's withers, ripping away a large piece of skin. Electrified by the searing pain in its neck, the horse lunged and let out a shrieking whinny. Dave bit again, savagely.

On that narrow ledge, the horse, frantic with fright and pain, started to pitch. Lew's efforts to snub him with the rope were savage but fruitless.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES OTTAWA

(By Dean Wilson)

There seems to be an opinion that the Rowell Commission of Enquiry on the Dominion-Provincial Relations has been created to change the British North America Act, but along Parliament Hill that idea is readily rejected on the ground that any changes in the constitution of Canada would have to be discussed and decided upon by a conference which would represent all the ten parliaments of Canada.

The real object of this extremely important body of enquiry is to prepare the basic work of a national constitutional conference which may be held in the very near future. During the past year there has been a deluge of requests for such a gathering, and wherever one encounters any group or any prominent individual interested in this subject the opinion prevails that national unity in this country is at a very low ebb. Leading Canadians, regardless of their political faiths and convictions, have been clamouring for legislation that would amend the constitution of Canada in order to put to an end the continually rising tide of disunity which is now sweeping across this country.

But what is the root of all this trouble? How will the Rowell Commission endeavour to establish a foundation for a constitutional change in Canada?

The realities are that democratic government in this country costs far too much and all the troubles can be traced to questions of money. This Royal Commission will try to obtain information of a concrete kind which will disclose what are the economic conditions in Canada today and how these can be considered with a view to a better adjustment of government revenues and taxation burdens. In other words, Ottawa is determined to continue acting as a collection agency for the provinces or municipalities and likewise, it is obvious that the Federal authorities, regardless what political party is in power, do not want to be the object of adverse criticism year after year on account of money matters which they do not control or spend directly. It is a system which has developed from the working of the constitution of this country and it contains features which required a change as early as the beginning of the twentieth century.

If the ship of state is to weather the financial storms of our times, it must throw overboard many unnecessary cargoes. That is the opinion of the vast majority of the citizens of this country, regardless what their political doctrines may be on other national issues, and it is not hard to discover this opinion along Parliament Hill.

The representatives of the people of Canada want to adjust the financial system of this young country in such a way that the Dominion would be able to continue on the road of progress and natural growth without the serious hindrance of disunity and decentralization of the government, a trend that is only too manifest to any experienced observer of national affairs as viewed along Parliament Hill. Relief and unemployment are problems which must be solved in a lasting and definite fashion. Various public ownership enterprises must be studied and treated in a manner that will remove the almost unbearable loads from the shoulders of the Canadian taxpayer who is slowly breaking down under the strain, with the strong possibility that business progress in this country is retarded by a set-up of ruinous taxes. Duplicated public services must be discontinued. Overlapping governmental authorities must be adjusted with money-saving plans. If the country is to be administered in a prudent and honest manner like any private business that wants to avoid bankruptcy proceedings and its likely effects on Canadians abroad, investigations must be made to discover how Federal, Provincial and Municipal taxes may be lightened though without adverse results in governmental services of an essential kind, how taxes may be collected with less costs for legions of civil servants and expensive overheads, how these taxes can be shared by all entitled to them in a manner where justice and fairness would be the dominating tone and where obligations would balance with rights, and finally, how can the taxpayer be relieved of a large number of superfluities and almost intolerable situations brought about by a constitution that permits duplicated governmental activities.

The Rowell Commission of Enquiry into the Dominion-Provincial Relations is establishing a solid foundation for a constitutional conference in Canada which will aim to bring about a better adjustment between revenues and taxes, and as a result it is quite likely that Confederation will be reborn, with the seed rising from the current constitutional trends of the country in order to provide all modern improvements to the national form of government.

What is the constitutional trend in Canada today? What are behind the many headlines on this subject of paramount importance to every citizen of this young country? These extremely significant questions will be answered in a detailed manner in next week's column.

NOTED AUTHOR GIVES DRIVING TIP TO SON

J. P. McEvoy, noted satirist, novelist and feature writer, recently wrote a book called "Father Meets Son," published by J. B. Lippincott Co., in which a modern father, patterned after the famed Lord Chesterfield, wrote a series of letters to his son who had just entered the business world after a rather hectic college career. The letters discussed every aspect of the young man's future life — questions of employment, marriage, social responsibilities, and so on.

On one occasion the lad, who was working at the time as a private chauffeur, took his employer's car out one night without permission and "wrapped it around a lamp-post."

Father McEvoy, when he heard about the accident, sat down and wrote his son a letter containing a great deal of food for thought which should be thoroughly digested by everyone who drives a car. Here is what he wrote:

Dear Son:
You used up a lot of paper explaining how the accident was not your fault, and I can believe you. But you are going to continue to drive cars, and a few words on the subject won't do any harm. In the 25 years that I have been driving automobiles, I have never seen anyone who had an accident through his own fault — it was always the car, the road, or the other fellow. Mostly, the Other Fellow.

This Other Fellow is worth some study. There seems to be no escaping him. To look at him, you would think he was harmless, but last year he killed a great many people, and injured many, many more. I have seen the Other Fellow, and certainly he doesn't look like a killer. Sometimes he is a young, nice-looking kid like you. Sometimes he is a mild-looking, middle-aged fellow like me. Sometimes he is a gentle sweet little woman like your mother, but that only goes to show you can't judge by appearances. He's a killer, and no mistake, and something is going to be done about it — or is it?

Some time ago, the champion safety driver of one of the largest bus companies in the world was given a banquet and a medal. He had completed half a million miles without an accident. When they called on him for a speech, he rose and said: "I ain't much of a hand at making speeches. I suppose you want to know how I got away so long without an accident? I just got one rule. I drive like the other fellow was crazy."

So that seems to explain it. The Other Fellow is crazy. If you cut out of line on a two-lane road, don't expect him to let you push him into the ditch, so you can cut in again. If you pass a car on a blind curve, don't expect the fellow coming the other way to be sensible about and go off the road and out into a field to let you by. He's just crazy enough to run right into you because you are on his side of the road. If you speed through a main intersection, you will meet a lot of people who are crazy enough to think they have the right of way just because they are on a through street and you are coming in off a side street. If you like to pass on a hill, don't be surprised if a car comes over the crest and the driver doesn't leap over you or run under you. That would be the sane thing to do, of course — but, you see, he's crazy.

Yes, he's crazy, but you are rude — and that's what makes him crazy. It doesn't matter so much if you are walking down the street and you are rude enough to push someone aside, but if you are rude enough to push him aside with a three-ton automobile going 60 miles an hour, you'll kill him. You can elbow your way through a crowd, if you are that impolite, and do no damage at all. But when you elbow your way through traffic with your bad manners stepped up to a hundred horsepower, you're bound to do a lot of damage to a lot of innocent people.

For every accident caused by high speeding, there are a thousand caused by low breeding. Is it a coincidence that the continent which leads in fatalities lags in formalities? We may not be the most uncivil people on two feet, but we certainly are the prize terrorists on four wheels. My boy, you may think it is silly to be polite, but a kiss on a warm cheek is worth two on a cold brow.

Today we put a premium on agility rather than civility. Each year our manners become cruder as our gasoline becomes more refined. Wide roads won't prevent accidents, so long as they continue to fill up with narrow people. Good brakes on cars are no protection against bad breaks in behaviour. The growing problem of automobile fatalities will not be solved around the drafting board but around the family table. Then we can have a monster under the hood, because there will be a gentleman at the wheel.

BUSHEL OF WHEAT WINS $2500

A $190 bushel of Coronation wheat, sent to Brockville, Ont., last spring by Patrick O'Keefe, 26-year-old native of Winnipeg and Federal Agriculture Department Inspector, resulted on Monday in his being $2,500 richer.

O'Keefe won second prize of $2,500 in the Dominion Rifle Association's associate members draw. First prize of $5,000 went to W. McKeever, of Edmonton, Alta., and third prize of $1,000 to Mrs. Nickson of Victoria. "That's the best news I've ever received," said O'Keefe when informed he won second prize. "I never bought the ticket which one. Last spring one of the department's inspectors at Brockville asked me to send him a bushel of Coronation wheat, worth $1.90, which he wanted to distribute in his district. "It was a private transaction. The inspector did not have the money to pay me, but he was selling draw tickets, and gave me two in payment for the wheat. Little did I know that one of them would win me $2,500. Saturday I went to Montreal to see the Davis Cup matches and had forgotten entirely about the tickets."

CROOKSTON FARMER HAS COWS POISONED

Discovery of a mixture of Paris Green and salt found spread on the grass on the property of Herbert Kellar, Crookston farmer, and which is given as the cause of the mysterious death of Kellar's two cows on Saturday, is the cause of a rigid investigation on the part of police officers. Looking for his cattle on Saturday, Kellar discovered the body of one lying in a small quarry on his farm. Spread on the grass near the dead cow was a mixture of Paris Green and salt. The dead animal's mouth was heavily coated with the mixture. Kellar notified Provincial Police. Constable Arthur Dymond responded and discovered the remaining cow a short distance away in a dying condition. Efforts to save the animal's life were fruitless as it died a few minutes after its discovery.

FARMER LOSES BARN STRUCK BY LIGHTNING

As owner and neighbours stood by helplessly to aid, a large frame barn of Sydenham Lawrence Morgan on his farm on the 9th Concession of Huntingdon Township, one mile west of Ivanhoe Station, was completely destroyed by fire shortly before six o'clock on Monday evening, after a lightning bolt had struck the gable, igniting the structure. The season's crop of grain, 100 hens and a milk house were destroyed by the fire. Hurrying to get in the last load of grain before the threatening rain arrived, Lawrence and his brother had just reached the barn when the bolt struck. Instantly, as it completely dried by the lightning, the upper section of the barn burst into flames.

EVERY CHILD SHOULD HAVE A DOG — LEADING MEDICAL MAN TELLS WHY

Why do I state a dog? Because in most cases that animal is capable of greater response to human attention than any other pet. True, there are plenty of companionable cats and horses, but in the greater majority of cases the dog fits into the scheme of human relationship to the greatest degree.

The possession of a dog is one of the greatest developments of a child's character and social instincts. There is nothing like a pet to bring the overcast, quiet child out of himself into the open. In his daily relationship with his dog he learns to get along with his fellow beings, for he gradually realizes that the same policies as apply to animals apply to humans.

In the case of his pet he develops self-reliance because he must prepare the animal's meals. He learns regularity, because pets must be fed and walked at rather stated intervals. He learns that life is full of responsibilities because his pet is dependent upon him for every necessity. Through it all he develops a sense of service. The importance of being of service is much overlooked. Too frequently our every act is dominated by selfishness and the pleasure of "just doing" for the other fellow is forgotten. I have noticed that in caring for his pet our little boy has become desirous of performing little errands and duties we require of him simply for the pleasure of doing something for us. This brings us to the matter of self-esteem which we have learned is so important to the normal child. By seeing his pet respond to his care and affection he feels that he really is of some importance in this world.

We often hear from those who do not like animals that the dog is a menace to health. Nothing is farther from the truth. In but very rare instances is the dog a carrier of any human disease element, and because the dog must have fresh air and sunshine it becomes an added incentive for the youngster to play outdoors. Furthermore, the importance of cleanliness is made apparent because the dog must be brushed and combed and occasionally bathed.

When adversity comes, as it does to all of us, the child learns to overcome it. If his pet becomes ill he learns to nurse it, and if the worst comes to pass and death takes his friend away he learns to view it stoically. Our five-year-old son used to take the passing of any living thing very hard. If we tried to dodge the issue he knew that something serious had occurred and would become quite upset about it. After the death of some of his canine acquaintances he has learned to take it, not without sorrow, but calmly and wisely, as we all must do.

The mutual love and faithfulness of a child and his dog is a pleasure to behold. We learn to be just indeed when we scold his pet, for if we are not, we soon hear about it. Nor can we afford to be hasty and harsh if we would hold the esteem of our child.

By giving his love to his dog his life is made more complete, for what an empty world is that without love!

The child learns the virtue of charity in forgiving his pet its little transgressions, and virtue of patience as he attempts to teach his dog the little tricks which are a pleasure for him and which the dog loves to exhibit.

A properly natural attitude is furthered by the gradual awareness of various bodily functions as exhibited by the dog. Although the dog is like a child which in many ways never grows up, its whole life span is untroubled in comparatively few years before the eyes of the child. As the various questions of life, of which sex is one, are asked, we find a ready and sensible example for his education.

The child learns that all living things are his friends if properly approached. My little boy knows that he can neither tease nor maltreat his pet without its retaliating with a proper scolding. He is not afraid of any dog, nor need he, for all animals, no matter how contrary, like him. They sense in him the proper approach.

The dog, being descended from the wolf and jackal, still carries over many of the customs of the wild. When attacked by another of superior size, it twists on its back and holds up its legs in submission; a confession of helplessness. It still turns around several times before lying down, because at one time it was necessary to discover whether enemies were crouched in the long grass. It gulps its food since, running with the pack in former times, it either snatched and gulped or went unfed.

The citizens of Stirling and surrounding community had an opportunity to see a modern display of Home Improvement products and equipment when the big "Fashion Show on Wheels" was in town on Tuesday.

The demonstration car is a huge showroom mounted on a chassis similar to those used for fire engines. The exhibit was open to the public and many of the citizens availed themselves of the chance to inspect the display which included bathroom equipment, heating boilers, new styles in brass fixtures, pumps, air conditioning, concealed radiators and new methods of piping, all the products of thirteen leading Canadian manufacturers. The "Fashion Show" is owned and operated by the plumbing and heating trade journal "Sanitary Age", and is on a 20-week tour of Ontario and Quebec provinces.

FAIR PROGRAM ANNOUNCED

LENGTHY LIST OF EVENTS WILL FEATURE SECOND DAY'S ACTIVITIES

With Stirling's Annual Fall Fair only a few weeks away the Committee in charge of the various attractions to be presented in front of the grandstand have lined up a program which should appeal to all, and indications point to its being one of the best ever seen locally. In preparing the program the committee has taken cognizance of the fact that the Fair is primarily for the agriculturists of the community and has endeavoured to make it of particular interest to the farmers and their families. However, the urban dwellers have not been overlooked and there are many events which should appeal to them as well. It is the hope of the committee that the farmers will show their appreciation of its efforts by giving their whole-hearted support by competing in as many events as possible. Tuesday and Wednesday, September 20 and 21 are the dates, and everyone is urged to plan to attend.

The Wednesday afternoon program will be highlighted by a ladies' softball match between two of the leading teams in the Toronto Major Softball Leagues. These teams are well known throughout the province as exponents of fast and clever softball, and their performances are always greeted with large attendances. In securing these teams the members of the committee feel that they have secured an outstanding feature which should appeal to the hundreds of softball enthusiasts of the district.

An Indian pony race, with $25.00 in prizes, will also be an added feature to this year's programme. This race is to be the best out of three heats, with trained horses being ridden by Indian girls from the Mohawk Reserve near Deseronto. This event has been billed as one of the main attractions at some of the larger fairs and the committee has been fortunate in securing it for Stirling. Add to these Bicycle races for boys and girls fifteen years and under, within a radius of ten miles; Running races for farmers' horses, 1200 lbs. and over; Quick Hitch and race once around the track, which consists of hitching a horse to a buggy and racing around the track; Running Race for horses, with each rider dismounting one hundred yards from the wire and finishing in a sack, leading his horse; Sod Busters' Race, for farmers and farmers' sons, and the Potato Race on horseback.

There will also be a number of novelty contests to provide amusement for the patrons of the Fair, including a Drinking Contest, in which a bottle of Coca Cola is to be fed to a consumer by an assistant; a Weight-Lifting competition, in which contestants will stand on scales and pull; a milking contest, wherein contestants will furnish their own cows, which are to be milked without being held by an attendant, the winner to receive five dollars; and a Car Teeter Contest for farmers only, consisting of driving a car on a platform, stopping and balancing car. Music will be provided. Altogether this should be enough activity for one afternoon for even the most fastidious.

In the Inter-Club Competition, on Thursday, two teams composed of Bruce Prindle, Thomasburg and John Mitts, Ivanhoe, and Geo. Sutherland and Arthur McDonnell, of Stirling, won third and fourth places, respectively.

The demonstration was both oral and objective, the subjects ranging from treatment of warble flies to the feeding and fitting of dairy cattle. Not only was knowledge of the subject essential, but also the ability to present it to an audience.

A record for operators of threshing outfits in this district to shoot at was established last week by Bruce Stapley, of Stirling, when two thousand and three bushels of grain were threshed in nine hours, at the farm of Clarence Sutherland, in Rawdon township. Stook threshing operations were being engaged in at the time and thirteen hundred and fifty bushels were threshed during the afternoon.

MEN'S DOUBLES TOURNEY

KINGSTON RINKS RUN ONE-TWO IN COMPETITION — SEVENTEEN RINKS

The greens of the Stirling Lawn Bowling Club were the scene on Monday afternoon and evening of a successful event, when the local club held its annual Men's Doubles Tournament. Seventeen rinks participated and three 14-end games were played.

The draw was made up of three rinks from Kingston, five from Campbellford, two from Belleville, one from Madoc, one from Deseronto and five from Stirling. A new system was inaugurated, allowing one point for a win, and worked out to the satisfaction of all.

A Kingston rink comprising J. Newman and Jos. Topping, skip, captured the high honours of the day, with three wins and a plus of 42. Two of their club-mates, J. Lyman and Harry Heagle, were second, with three wins and a plus of 11 points. For two wins two Stirling rinks, R. A. Patterson and J. S. Morton, skip, and Walter Wright, and W. J. Whitty, skip, were tied with a score of 36 points. In the playoff, Whitty and his partner were victors. No winner was declared for one win. Bastedo and Heyworth, of Stirling, and Diamond and Wragg, of Campbellford, were tied with a score of 28 points, but neglected to decide a winner.

ILL WITH TYPHOID

Everett, son of Mr. Joseph Gills, Town Line, is ill at his home suffering from para-typoid fever. He is believed to have contracted the disease from drinking impure water while on a recent trip.

HALF-INCH HAILSTONES

Hailstones, many of them measuring half an inch in diameter, fell in Picton district for a short time late Tuesday afternoon. Accompanied by rain, the hail quickly disappeared but at times the streets of the town were white with them. Bloomfield district reported a similar downfall earlier in the afternoon with damage being done to tomatoes. Other districts in Prince Edward County reported practically no rain and no hail. The temperature registered 65 degrees at the time.

HAD NARROW ESCAPE

Ellen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Chambers, of this village, had a narrow escape from drowning while swimming in Rawdon Creek, a short distance west of the Henry Street bridge, on Tuesday afternoon. She had swam across the creek and back and was making the second trip when she is said to have become tired and started to sink. Fortunately her young brother, Billie, saw her predicament, and although not a strong swimmer, managed to grasp the back of her swimming suit and pull her to safety. She was taken to her home, and beyond being badly scared, is fully recovered.

SIXTY YEARS OLD

With this issue the News-Argus is celebrating its sixtieth birthday. Established in 1879 by the late John Thompson, it has served the interests of Stirling Village and the surrounding community in the intervening years. This has only been made possible through the loyalty and co-operation of advertisers, correspondents, subscribers and friends, and to them we wish to express our sincerest thanks and appreciation. A small town weekly newspaper can be only as interesting as those who are its subscribers will assist in making it, and in opening a new year, we earnestly ask for a continuance of the loyal support and patronage of all, and trust that we may fully merit the same.

SWIMMING AND BODY BUILDING

Increase in swimming ability during the past decade — in the last ten years the swimming public in America is estimated to have increased 450 per cent. — is not entirely prompted by life-saving desires. True, from a standpoint of human safety, a knowledge of swimming is most important; but aside from this, no other exercise approaches swimming for all-round development of the body.

This is brought out effectively in an article "Learn How To Swim" in the Summer issue of "Health". It is contributed by John D. Devlin, Swimming director of the Central Y.M.C.A., Toronto, who says in part:

"Swimming exercises the large fundamental muscles of the trunk and limbs. The leg kicks develop the lower back and abdomen muscles along with the leg musculature. The arm strokes develop the chest and upper back muscles. The muscles of respiration are developed to an unusual degree. The upward lifting and stretching of the arms acts to lift and broaden the chest. Suppleness is promoted generally in all the joints and much is done to equalize the unbalanced muscle pull associated with poor posture. Swimming is one of the very few exercises that promotes a symmetrical development of the arms and legs, of antero-posterior posture, and of lateral symmetry. Swimming permits free and unobstructed movements in the full range of joint action without sudden or violent jars, due to contact with apparatus or to the ground."

RURAL TEACHERS' SALARIES

On several occasions the News-Argus has drawn attention to the fact that the rural public school teacher is sadly underpaid, and that even in sections where the country teachers' salaries are the highest, they average only about one-half of what the city teacher is paid. We know of rural teachers in this section getting as low as four or five hundred dollars for a year's work, while teachers in the urban centres are getting twice or three times as much. In a recent editorial the Fergus News-Record had the following to say on the expenses incurred by the average rural school teacher:

"A letter written by a rural school teacher to the Midland Free Press is interesting, because it tells something of the expenses that a teacher has and proves pretty certainly that $500 a year is not sufficient salary. That is the amount the writer of the letter was getting, and may be regarded as the usual minimum in many parts of Ontario.

"First of all, three per cent is deducted for the superannuation fund before the teacher gets her pay. She then receives $485 a year. She works for ten months, receiving $48.50 a month. Out of that she pays $20.00 a month for board; $1 a month for papers needed for extension courses; $2 bus fare; newspapers and magazines, $1; insurance, $4; clothes, etc., $10. This leaves $10.50 for all other purposes. Some of it may be needed to help out at home, but very little is available for that or any other purpose, because the teacher must take a summer course under certain circumstances. The summer course requires a fee of $10; text books, $5; examination fees, $2; and board, which is not less than $7 a week in the cities, besides other city expenses such as car fare.

"How any girl can save enough out of that $105 a year not accounted for by bare necessities is more than we can figure, but apparently they are expected to do so. This teacher explains that after four years' teaching time on her interim certificate, the teacher must pass two subjects a year at the university to extend her teaching time. She must have eight subjects for a second class certificate, then two more years spent in summer courses. It is obvious that a girl clerking in a store at $10 a week is far better off than the teacher at $500 a year, and she hasn't had to spend money on an expensive education either."

CURRENT COMMENT

Remember, Stirling's Fall Fair is only a few weeks away, and plan to be an exhibitor. An attractive prize list has been prepared by the directors, and a good programme of events is being prepared by the Programme Committee.

We doubt if those people responsible for the rumour that Hon. G. Howard Ferguson may be in the field for the leadership of the Conservative party in Ontario when the Convention takes place in October can even hope for any such thing. "Fergy" had his day as leader in the provincial field and we don't think he would again accept the leadership even if it were offered him.

No longer will it be necessary to fumble for the lock before entering the house on a dark night. A leading lock designer has introduced to the market a lock ringed with a clear plastic material known as "Lucite", and according to a writer in the current issue of Canadian Industries magazine, the inner side of the ring is coated with a luminous compound which provides an easily-found keyhole on the very darkest night.

One week from next Tuesday, September 6th, schools open throughout the province and thousands of school children will go back to their studies. Labour Day comes on September 5th, and the last public holiday of the summer will be over. Autumn will be just around the corner, with its beauty and glory, and many tasks in preparation for winter. It won't be long now.

With the publishing of lists of successful students on the Upper School Examinations this week, the results of all the Departmental Examinations tried at the local school have been announced. The results in the different grades have been very encouraging, with some of the pupils making an excellent showing. Not only do they tell the story of the efficient pupils, but they reflect credit on the school and its staff. To those who have been successful we extend congratulations.

The attention of the farmers in Stirling district is drawn to the announcement by Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Federal Minister of Agriculture, of the Feeder Purchase Policy, to become effective September 1st. Extending until December 31st, the policy embodies a refund to Ontario farmers or their agents of one-way travelling expenses in order to aid them in making personal selections of feeder stock in Western Canada. The policy applies to carload shipments made during the specified time, but trips may be made in August. With crops good in this section there may be farmers who can make the purchase of these cattle a profitable venture.

The season for that distressing ailment, hay fever, is here, and countless thousands of people will be miserable from now until the frosts level the weeds of the countryside. Health authorities now generally agree that the rag weed, which flies its pollen from every direction, is the chief cause. Apparently there is no cure, except escape to some favoured spot where there is no vegetable growth. In numerous places war has been declared on the ragweed and it has been found that cutting this weed twice a year in order to prevent its flowering, has resulted in less suffering. There are many places in and around Stirling where this weed is allowed to flourish but it should not be very difficult to have it destroyed once the value of its destruction is understood.

Provincial police will use their own judgment in closing down games at Ontario Fall Fairs, according to an announcement by Hon. F. M. Dewar, Ontario Minister of Agriculture. In the past, the management of the Fair has always been consulted before action was taken but this year the decision rests entirely with the police. As long as these attractions are allowed at Fall Fairs, there will always be the "suckers" who are willing to take a chance at beating the operator at his own game and then complaining if they lose their money. If people would stop and think for a moment they would come to the conclusion that games of chance are not operated for the benefit of the public. No one would want to operate a game of chance at a Fair unless he was sure of making some money. However, it can be expected that the police will only weed out those which are too heavily and surely loaded against the public, and those who gain entertainment from playing the "Bingo" games are assured by the Minister of Agriculture that this type of game will not be bothered by the officers of the law.

Identified by R. A. Dean, clerk of the village of Norwood in the hope of identifying the remains of a young man drowned in the mill pond there on July 28, were the means of solving the drowning. The young man is Gordon Cady, aged 19, son of Mrs. Barbara Cady, 87 Fifth Avenue, St. Thomas, whom she had last seen four days before the drowning.

Mrs. Cady read the verses describing the dead youth and the contents of his pack. Mention of a silver wire found in a stiffened arm convinced her that she was reading about her own son. She wrote at once to Mr. Dean and received further description of a flowered shawl, a large affair, which Mrs. Cady had given her son when he left home and which definitely confirmed her suspicions.

What Others Say

FALL WILL SOON BE HERE

(Trenton Courier-Advocate)

The swallows and the purple martins are lining up on the telephone and hydro wires, the wild ducks are flying and the softball teams are playing their final games. Fall is but a couple of weeks away.

TOUGH LUCK

(Hanover Post)

For a man who was "fired from his post as superintendent of penitentiaries, General D. M. Ormond has not been thrown out on the street to starve. He is being given a lump sum of $4,750, being one month's pay at $475 for each of his six years' service, and will also draw a militia pension of about $3,000 a year by reason of the 25 years he served with the permanent force. We're not sure whether he is the object of sympathy or congratulations on losing his position.

WHAT PLACE IS THIS

(Wlarton Echo)

Motoring through Ontario one is struck by the lack of signs on public buildings to tell what they are. We have frequently spoken of this and having just returned from another ramble through our wonderful Province we will speak of it again. Many towns have no signs at all to tell what they are and if you are curious enough you must look up your road map to find just where you are. Then public buildings, we think, should have a name over the door or on a neat sign outside. Churches have usually a black and gold lettered sign to tell of what denomination they are, the minister and the time of the services. Surely our Government could do the same.

CHANCE FOR FORTUNE

(Financial Post)

A small fortune awaits the inventor who can add two more years to the life of a rubber tire for farm tractors. At present the life of the average tractor is estimated at 10 years, the tire at 8 years. The lag assumes vital importance, when one realizes that retreading would cost at least $250, and an eight-year-old tractor is worth considerably less.

Only recently have Canadian farmers been demanding rubber instead of steel treads on their tractors, but already the bulk of sales call for that sort of equipment. Even subsidiary machines, such as combines, binders, and mowers, are now being mounted on rubber.

Advantages appear overwhelming. In addition to more comfort and less dust, saving in fuel through better traction is placed at twenty per cent. Even if they won't wear as long as the machine carried, rubber tires are here to stay. In the meantime manufacturers are confident that some enterprising country lad will rise to the occasion and solve their present difficulty.

THE CABIN BY THE LAKE

The Canadian people may not think they are very prosperous just now. If some visitor came from other continents where living conditions are far below ours, he would see many evidences of well being the worth of which our folks do not realize. One of these evidences is the vast number of people who maintain some kind of summer cottage, bungalow, or shack in some pleasant summer resort, or in some secluded location where they can enjoy sports and wild nature.

These summer homes vary from elaborate residences of the most cultivated beauty, down through the scale of more simple dwellings. Many of them are little shacks which give a shelter from the rain and a chance to cook and sleep, but not much else. The cabin in the woods is restful after the clash and clang of modern life. The whisper of the wind in the pine trees is better than the grind of automobiles on pavements, and the sight of the shimmering lake is more comforting than brick walls.

HOW THE LEFT-HANDED CHILD MAY BE HELPED

Every left-handed child must be treated as a separate problem. Your child may be so young that as yet you need not consider the problem of writing, but rather the problem of trying to urge him to use his right hand. If he enjoys scribbling you can either give him little prizes for good right-hand scribbling, or let him use scented chalks for his right hand only.

Games like bouncing balls and catching them in each hand alternately are of value. As he grows older you may find that he will be able to write with his right hand. But when he starts, watch him carefully, and if he shows signs of becoming nervous or worried, stuttering or sleeping badly, is being unhappy when he thinks of writing lessons, then all you can do is to let him use his left hand.

Life Worth Living

Of course life is worth living. The suicide's fallacy lies in a temporary or permanent defect of the imagination. He cannot picture the beautiful things that can happen to anyone; a majestic sunset or moonrise; the stars on a clear night; the sound of rain on a roof; the perfection of a flower; a song, a story, a vibrant human voice; the making or doing of a useful thing; an understanding look in another person's eyes; the grip of a friendly hand; the sense of a destiny shared with others; the certainty of not being utterly alone, even in the loneliest of worlds. Men have kept their courage and cheerfulness to the last, even in the grip of painful and incurable diseases.

Risking one's life deliberately because one wishes to extract the last drop of flavour from it is another thing. But such men do not mean to die, though sometimes they do die. They mean to conquer death. And that, in one form or another, is the whole trend of courageous human endeavour; not to run from life but to run toward it; not to despise it but to enrich it, for one's self and others; not to fear it, but to accept it with open arms. — New York Times.

COVERING THE WORLD OF SPORT

Psychologists agree that every man should have a hobby. It provides an outlet for our emotions; an opportunity to lift ourselves out of the ruck of our workaday world and rest our minds in pleasurable pastime. Perhaps the most widespread hobby is stamp-collecting — its followers are known as philatelists. Another large group finds enjoyment in collecting old and rare coins, being known as numismatists. Then there are the chaplains who save match boxes, bits of string, miniatures, first editions, antique furniture and so on, call 'em what you will.

But there is one lad whose hobby is unique. He goes in for the recreation of collecting world's boxing crowns, and while this pastime is not given a definition in Noah Webster's bulky brochure the only disciple of the hobby is known as Hammering Henry. Armstrong is the family name of this terrific piece of fighting machinery who last week added Lou Ambers' lightweight diadem to the feather and welterweight headpieces he already possessed. Merely a ranking featherweight a year ago Henry Armstrong has in the past ten months blasted three world's champions from their respective thrones and become the first man ever to rule three box-fight divisions at the same time.

If Hurricane Henry makes any further additions to his little collection of crowns, he will have to take a lease on the Tower of London in which to store the coronets.

Two or three years ago Henry was just a little "cullud" boy in St. Louis. Deciding to try for fame and fortune in the prize ring, he rode the rods to Los Angeles, kicked about a bit, finally hooked up with Manager Eddie Meade and made his professional debut. Since then he has hung up 39 straight victories, most of them by kayos, but the way has not been all milk and honey. In fact, the going was mighty tough at first as Meade struggled to find bouts for his boy, and at the same time meet the grocer's and butcher's bills.

One day Al Jolson, the "mammy" singer of the stage, screen and radio, happened to see Armstrong in action. Perhaps the memory of his days as a black-faced comedian stirred Jolson but in any event he became "angel" to the Meade-Armstrong duo, spending thousands that they might have proper training facilities and at the same time meet their expenses as they fought about the small clubs in an effort to gain recognition.

Now the pair are "made", but all Jolson asks is a chance to see his "baby" every time he goes into action and several times he has flown across the continent to see the Brown Buzzsaw scrap. He must get great personal satisfaction from the knowledge that without his help Armstrong may never have become the first triple champion.

By the way, with Armstrong ruling three divisions, John Henry Lewis bossing the light-heavyweights and Joe Louis kingfish of the big boys, the fight game has a decidedly "dark" outlook. These three Negroes completely dominate the ring today, while Sixto Escobar, a native of Puerto Rico, is bantamweight titleholder. This leaves but the flyweight and middleweight championships in the hands of the white race, certainly not a strong talking point for those who profess to be convinced of Aryan superiority. Undoubtedly it is this mistaken idea of superiority, resulting in a harder, more rugged, unsheltered existence that has given the coloured race at present what would appear to be a physical edge on the white folks.

In any event, there is a wide open field for anyone with an inclination to promote a "White Hope" tournament.

QUESTIONS DEPT. — What man has probably seen more action in the ring than any other man alive? (Answer at foot of column).

They staged an Oldtimers Baseball Show at Windsor last week, and, of course, Robert Emslie was on hand. For what would an Oldtimers Baseball Show anywhere in Canada be without the venerable "Bob", 79-year-old veteran of the National League umpiring staff. Dean of the "Jesse James" brigade in the major leagues for many years, Emslie retired from active service behind the plate in 1924 but he has continued in an advisory capacity on the board of arbiters of the elder of the two major leagues.

Born in Guelph, Ontario, Emslie moved to St. Thomas as a young man and that city has been his home between seasons of one of the longest careers in organized baseball. Records reveal that Bob started out on his baseball career as an amateur pitcher at Harrison, Ont., in 1878. Later he played for Guelph, London and St. Thomas before making the jump to the moneyed ranks. As a salaried performer he played for Camden, N.J., Baltimore, Md., Philadelphia, Toronto and Memphis, Tenn. By 1887 he had reached the end of his career as a player, his throwing arm having gone "dead" on him. One day that year he hopped over from St. Thomas to Toronto to see an inter-league game. The regular umpire failed to show up and Emslie was called out of the stands to handle the contest. That was the start of a new venture in baseball for him. Time came when he graduated to the National League, and then as the years rolled by, he was listed as the "Dean of Umpires."

Baseball chroniclers have frequently related the story of Bob's early days as an umpire. It is claimed that he originated the chest protector for "umps", by placing an hotel register under his shirt, but later purchased a padded protector which he stuck to even after the invention of the inflated "belly-pads" of the modern era.

Once, many years ago, a newspaper writer misquoted Emslie and involved him in an embarrassing situation, and even since the veteran arbiter has been close-mouthed in interviews. In one of his infrequent moments of loquacity, however, he declared that Christy Mathewson was the greatest pitcher of all time. Thousands of others have said the same thing in the past quarter century, but few spoke with the authority of Emslie, who watched the slants of the immortal Christie zoom up to the plate from the closest possible vantage point, barring that of the catcher.

Almost a decade past the allotted three score and ten, Bob is still active, still alert, and still interested in baseball, but in St. Thomas he is known also as a keen curler and bowler. Trapshooting has been another of his pastimes and the manner in which he can still knock off the little clay birds is ample proof that the eyes that sorted out balls and strikes for almost 40 years are still in A-1 working order.

SPORTS ODDITY — In Gaelic football, played mainly in Ireland, the ball may be kicked as in soccer, dribbled as in basketball, punted as in rugby or punched like a punching bag. About the only way a player may not advance the ball is by carrying it.

CANADIANA — Bill Fritz, of Toronto and Johnny Loaring, of Windsor, are touring Europe with an United States track and field squad. Joe Krakauskas, Hamilton, Ont., boy with the Washington Senators, struck out ten New York Yankees in a game recently but lost the decision. If United States defeats Australia in the Davis Cup final, Canada will have the "honor" of being the team that was eliminated by the team that was eliminated from the finals of the world's tennis premier tourney. Japan licked Canada, Australia knocked off the Japs and then took Germany. The Fenian Raiders had nothing on Canada's rugby football solons. Herbie Hendrie, snapback for Balmy Beach for several seasons, is that latest to do a shift, going over to the new Peterborough Senior O.R.F.U. club. Teddy Manorek and Clem Faust of Hamilton Tigers even the scale by switching to the Beaches. Manorek is the sensational rookie of last fall, while Faust is an American import who as yet has not shown enough to be worth the head-tax in two years in this country. Montreal Cubs, formerly the Indians, alias the Winged Wheelers, are banking on a squad of promoted intermediates and juniors to fill the vacancies left by the raids on the Montreal C.N.R.'s new O.R.F.U. entry, Toronto Argonauts, with Big Bob Isabister back to do the booting, look like a clinch in the Big Four with the other clubs all going through a rebuilding process.

A YEAR AGO IN SPORT — On Thursday, August 26th, 1937, rain forced postponement of the Joe Louis-Tommy Farr title scrap in New York. The pair met the following Monday, August 30, and Farr amazed the boxing world by not only staying the full 15 rounds, but actually outgunning, out-roughing and out-rushing the negro champion in the final round to drop a close decision.

ANSWERS DEPT. — John McNell, who retired a few years ago as deputy boxing commissioner for the state of New York, witnessed 30,000 bouts, totalling 75,000 rounds of action, in 12 years.

BELLEVILLE MARKET

Ripe red tomatoes shot to a new seasonal low at the Belleville market on Saturday as vendors offered abundant stocks to a slightly sluggish buying reaction at 10 and 15 cents per basket lots and 40 and 50 cents per bushel.

Sweet corn, featuring in the main the Yellow Bantam variety was plentiful and sold in the later hours to a briskly buying public at 10 cents per dozen ears. In some quarters it was available at three dozen ears for 25 cents.

New potatoes offered in bushel and peck lots were offered at 50 and 60 cents each for the former, while pecks were quoted at 15 cents each. Giant cabbage and cauliflowers reacted to the buying public and moved sharply at 10 cents per head. New pumpkin was offered in spots selling at 15 to 25 cents. Vegetable marrow was quoted at 10 cents each. Onions, beets, carrots and other stock seasonal vegetables moved well at all week prices.

Cucumbers in all sizes and shapes were plentiful with pickling "cukes" offered at 35 and 40 cents per basket with the table variety selling at 12 and 15 cents per dozen. Pickling onions were quoted at 15 cents per quart.

Imported peaches and plums were fairly plentiful with the former selling at 45 and 50 cents for good quality fruit while the Burbanks were offered at 45 cents per basket.

Watermelons in varying sizes were offered in spots with varying sizes demanding different prices. High and low quotations were made at 25 and 50 cents. Canteloupe was offered and could be purchased at from 10 cents each to three for 25 cents.

Duchess apples were quoted at 80 cents and $1.00 per bushel with Yellow Transparent selling at the same prices. Other new cooking apples were offered at 75 and 80 cents per hamper lot.

Egg prices remained steady in the inside market where vendors asked 27 and 28 cents for "A" selects with mediums selling at 24 and 25 cents. A few pullets were quoted at 23 cents with some ungraded stock selling at 26 cents per dozen.

Spring chickens, some of them celophane wrapped were offered at from 65 cents each to as high as $1.00. Other fowl of choice quality sold at from $1.00 to $1.30 each. Farmers' butter prices were firm, two-pound rolls being offered at 65 cents each with one pounds selling at 35 cents in some quarters. Honey was offered at 15 cents per comb, with five-pound tins selling at 45 cents.

Whitefish and fresh lake trout made up a light fish offering with the former moving well at 20 cents per pound and the latter demanding 5 cents more. A few cents additional charge was made for slicing and filleting.

More Howlers

The recent paragraph of "howlers" prompts a teacher to send the latest additions to his collection:

"Imx is a lady native of the Isle of Man."

"Sundries are those goods that can be bought on the Sabbath."

"Goblet is the name for a wee turkey."

NEWS OF INTEREST TO THE BUSY FARMER

More Good Lamb Required on Market

Farmers are cautioned to exercise greater care in the marketing of lambs at this season of the year. Prices for good early lambs have been very satisfactory until about August 1st when many farmers, no doubt tempted by prevailing prices during the last week in July, began to market lambs that should have been held on pastures for at least a month, and in many cases two months. An oversupply of poor lambs resulted in a serious drop on all lamb markets, and while the situation has partly corrected itself, the market is still sensitive to weaknesses if producers continue to market undesirable lambs.

As a rule lambs from the more common domestic breeds of sheep do not finish for market at farm weights under 90 pounds to 100 pounds (80 to 90 lbs. at the market). Before selling lambs it is always wise to use the scales. This is particularly important at the present time so that the sale of underweight lambs may be avoided.

Good early lambs are in demand at all stockyard centres, packing plants and city markets. Lamb meat is an especial favourite in the home, at tourist centres, and in hotels and restaurants. When it is said that lamb is a popular meat this means good choice lamb from well finished carcasses. Light, unfinished lambs do not produce the kind of meat that is relished by tourists or by the Canadian people. Poor lambs are not good sellers and are unsatisfactory to all sections of the trade, including the consumer. This year pastures are excellent all over Canada and there is no farm animal that puts on cheaper gains than the growing lamb on good grass. All farmers can increase the value of their lambs by a closer check-up in weights and marketing at the right time.

Rogueing Potato Fields

Rogueing is a valuable method for the control of certain degeneration or "running out" diseases of potatoes of virus origin. Rogueing implies the detection, lifting, removal and destruction of virus infected plants. As a control measure the practice is particularly valuable against the three common potato diseases, mosaic, leaf-roll and spindle tuber. These three diseases produce characteristic symptoms on the potato plant. Mosaic diseases produce a mottling effect in the foliage. Leafroll causes a slight, general yellowing of the foliage, and an upward rolling of the leaves. Spindle tuber intensifies the green colour of the leaves, imparts an upright, staring appearance to the plant, and causes the production of spindly or misshapen tubers with bulging eyes.

It has been shown that rogueing should be timely and systematic. Usually mosaic and leafroll can be detected in the field when the plants are about four inches high. At this stage of development the field should be systematically examined row by row for the presence of virus infected plants. Rogueing should be done preferably on dark or dull days as the light conditions are then best for the detection of mosaic. On bright days the operator should carry an umbrella or traverse the potato rows in such a manner that his shadow is cast over the plants immediately before him. The operator should carry some type of closed container, and when a diseased plant is detected, it should be lifted in its entirety with as little disturbance as possible and deposited in the container. Under no circumstances should diseased plants be pulled and left in the rows, nor should they be carried out and deposited on the headland. Diseased plants should always be carried from the field and then immediately destroyed by burning. Rogueing should be systematically practised at weekly intervals until the potato vines begin to mature. For further information write to the nearest Plant Pathological Laboratory.

Current Crop Report

Farmers are well along with the harvesting of splendid graincrops. In Western Ontario practically all grains are now harvested except late oats, while in Central Ontario about 75 per cent of the grain is out and in Eastern Ontario about 50 per cent. In Northern Ontario the harvest is well under way. Stock threshing proceeded rapidly up to August 1st, but was interrupted by frequent and heavy rains during the first two weeks of August.

The average yield of fall wheat for the entire province is now estimated at 27 bushels per acre, as compared with 26 bushels in 1937, and a preceding 15-year average of 25.1 bushels. The harvested acreage of 742,062 acres is the highest since 1927, and compares with 718,813 acres last year. Total production will amount to approximately 20,036,000 bushels, which is the largest crop since 1926. In Eastern Ontario the yield per acre was reduced and the quality considerably lowered by leaf and stem rust. In each of these three sections, the yield was about three bushels per acre less than in 1937, but in Southern Ontario, which comprises the two rows of counties bordering Lake Erie and where half the acreage is located, the yield was almost five bushels higher than a year ago and this more than offset the decline in other sections. Heat and rust reduced the crop most severely in the counties of Grey, Bruce, Huron, Wellington and Perth. Spring grains have matured early this season and reports indicate that the yield per acre will generally range from average to slightly above average in practically all counties. Harvesting is about a week earlier than usual. Damage was caused by the most severe outbreak of army worm in the last fifty years, but for the province as a whole the loss would probably not exceed 2 per cent. Individual fields, however, suffered 10 to 15 per cent injury, and in a few cases much greater. Severe rainstorms resulted in considerable lodging in some parts, making cutting difficult but the loss is not serious, while in Eastern Ontario, grasshoppers caused rather severe damage in several localised areas. Rust is affecting the grain crop in Eastern Ontario, but the yield is expected to be a good average and considerably above the poor yields of 1937.

Precipitation was sufficient for developing crops during July throughout most of the province. Heavy rains fell in early August, lodging standing crops over large areas. The rainfall has been beneficial for the growth of late crops and prospects for these crops, which include corn, late potatoes, buckwheat, sugar beets and turnips are considered quite favourable. Pastures are also showing improvement in all sections, and as a result livestock are in good condition and milk flow is being well maintained.

Prices of farm products have declined recently and are now generally below the level of a year ago. In the case of grain crops the decrease from last August is very considerable and is due to larger world crops. In Ontario farm income is largely determined by the prices of secondary commodities such as cattle, hogs, butter, eggs, etc., all of which are down in price.

WEST HUNTINGDON

The great holiday season is drawing to a close. The school children are making some last-minute visits. The trustees of the Public School are having the school wired for electric lights this week. Special lights will be arranged for blackboard work. Considerable difficulty has been experienced in the past due to the poor arrangements of windows, and it is hoped now this will be eliminated.

All of those who have their buildings wired are enjoying the privileges of electricity. At present there are twenty homes wired, and there are also a number of the public buildings. The extra heavy harvest this year is certainly making it interesting for the men operating the threshing machines. In endeavouring to give his customers better service Mr. Goldie McInroy has purchased another case tractor and separator and has engaged Mr. John Spence, of Moira, to operate same.

For the past two Sundays at the United Church the services have been conducted by the local W.M.S. and the Mission Band. On Sunday, August 14, Mrs. Foster Wilson had charge of the programme, when Mrs. Ed. Pitman gave a solo, "The Old Rugged Cross". Readings were given by Mrs. Sandy McCurdy and Miss Mona Wright. On Sunday, August 21st, the Mission Band put on an interesting service, with Miss Dorothy Tristram as leader. The Misses Phyllis Hammond and Theda Moorcroft assisted with the worship service. Miss Kathleen Moorcroft gave the children's story. The Hammond sisters sang "Where the Gates swing outward never." Miss Hilda Moorcroft gave an interesting reading from the Study Book.

There was no service at St. Andrew's Church on Sunday afternoon. The Standard Church congregation of Ivanhoe held their re-opening service on Sunday. For the past month extensive repairing has been done at the church and those who attended on Sunday found a great improvement in this church. Rev. S. Slingerland, of Toronto, preached a wonderful and inspiring sermon for the re-opening ceremony.

The annual camp meeting of the Standard Church, which are held once each year, at Ivanhoe, will commence on Friday, the 26th inst. The officials in charge this year are Rev. Nussey, Bishop of the Church; Rev. Thompson, chairman, and Mr. Nathan Reid, Sec. Treas. Members from near and far will gather and spend ten days on the camp ground. Services will be held three times daily. The main object of these meetings are two-fold — 1st, that new converts may be won, and second that by thus assembling themselves together the members may be drawn closer to God.

ROAD WORKER KILLED NEAR CASTLETON

Run over by a gravel truck which he tried to catch while it was in motion, Gerald Wilce, 27, son of John K. Wilce and the late Mrs. Wilce, was instantly killed at 11 o'clock Monday morning about a mile south and east of Castleton.

Frank Haynes, of Colborne, was driving the truck which was being used in gravelling operations along the road in front of the Wilce house. It was moving at a slow rate, estimated at six miles an hour, when Wilce ran out to the road in an attempt to hop on to the running board.

According to a report from Castleton Wilce had lost the use of one arm several years ago as an effect of spinal meningitis, and it was said he apparently caught hold of the truck with only one arm to support himself and it was believed he slipped off the side of the truck and under its wheels.

EACH ONE OF US OWES $650

(From the Montreal Star)

Do you owe anybody $650? If you think not, you're wrong. Whether you're under a year or over a hundred male or female, married or single, as long as you are a Canadian you owe that much money.

You owe it to other people in Canada, to people in the United States, and in Great Britain. You owe it because your government borrowed the money. When they borrowed it they did so in the name of the Canadian people, or the people of a Province or town of Canada. It is the Canadian people who have to pay back the loans eventually and have to keep paying the interest on them year by year.

The public debt of the Canadian people on March 31, 1937, is estimated as $7,162,163,113 in a report just published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. That amount includes the total net direct debt of the Dominion of Canada, the guaranteed or indirect debt of the Dominion, the direct and indirect debts of the nine provinces, and the direct debts of the 4,300 municipalities.

That huge total of over seven billion dollars is a straight financial obligation on the people of Canada. From each person in Canada must be exacted tribute to help meet that obligation. It is not a problem affecting a little body of men known as the "government" or the "city hall". It is a load that has to be carried by every man, woman and child feels the weight.

We owe the biggest slice through our Dominion Government. The direct debts contracted through it amount to just over three billion dollars alone. On top of that, there is nearly another billion and a quarter in loans, particularly railway bonds, that have been guaranteed by the Federal Government. The provinces are responsible for well over a billion, and the municipalities for an amount going on to a billion and a half.

Those amounts all are owed by the Canadian people. So far, we have scraped along with only a few of the obligations being defaulted under particular circumstances. But the burden, so big that its size is hard to conceive, cannot be escaped. We must strain every sinew to lighten it if we do not want its weight to crush the economic and social machinery of Canada.

DEATH IN THE AFTERNOON

A momentarily thoughtless motorist, a high-powered car, a playing child, grinding brakes, a crash, a childish scream, a still, twisted little figure, grotesque and terrifying, a life that ended at seven that might have been saved.

There are the elements which enter, too often, into tragedies of the highway; tragedies that might have been prevented. And portraying this drama are grief-stricken, anguished people; parents, brothers and sisters who mourn the loss of a loved one — and, most miserable of all, the hapless motorist whose brain will ever be seared with the torturing knowledge that he has taken a life that might have been saved.

Dramatic, yes, but not exaggerated. True drama revealed by a perusal of accident statistics in any centre of Ontario. The bare figures tell the tale in their own impersonal way, but they not stress the horror, the needlessness of it all, the grief that must follow as long as life lasts.

It is all the more saddening when we know that most of such accidents can be avoided by care on the part of the pedestrian as well as the motorist.

Children should be taught to be careful in crossing the streets or roads, look well to right and left for approaching cars. Better not to play in the streets at all, but if that cannot be avoided — then play carefully. Remember that death may lurk in the roadway.

Motorists, no matter what the circumstances should always watch children in the roadway. A little one playing on the boulevard or sidewalk may run into the road the next second, and flash directly in front of an approaching car. Then it may be too late to avoid a tragedy that can never be paid for — a life ended at seven that could have been saved.

Take care and caution into your car with you every time you put your hand to your steering wheel. These unseen guests will be the most valuable companions you ever had on any drive, and they won't crowd the car.

In fact, you can carry them in your head, but be sure to have them along. Be always careful. Do your part.

Whether motorist or pedestrian, adult or child, to lessen the dreadful toll of accidents the snuff out so many precious lives every year on Ontario's streets and highways. If you are a pedestrian — remember that the motorist has rights, and for your own safety, be watchful of traffic. If you are a motorist — always drive sanely and live to drive longer.

MOIR — ROBERTS

A wedding of much local interest took place in Havelock United Church on Wednesday, August 10th, when Bessie Julia, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Roberts, was united in marriage to Herbert Raymond Moir, of Grimsby, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Moir, of Burk's Falls. Rev. S. A. Kemp officiated at the ceremony, with the wedding party standing against a background of gladioli and ferns. Mrs. R. Campney played the wedding music and Mrs. D. C. Patmore, of Orillia, cousin of the bride sang "My Happy Day", during the signing of the register.

The winsome bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white chantilly lace over satin. It was fashioned on princess lines, a long train of satin lace falling from a Queen Anne collar. A full-length, silk net veil, applied with satin in the corners was arranged with orange blossoms. Her arm bouquet was of Butterfly roses and gypsophylla.

Miss Edith Roberts attended her sister, wearing a gown of dusty pink suede and net over satin. It was fashioned on princess lines, with matching bolero and a pink net veil with a coronet of gardenias. She carried an arm bouquet of Briarcliff roses and cornflower. Mr. Clarence Moir, of Nafra was groomsmen for his brother. The ushers were Mr. Albert Inkster, cousin of the bride, and Mr. Grey Kemp.

After the ceremony a reception for 60 guests was held at the home of the bride's parents. The bride's mother received in a moss green cut velvet over satin, with black accessories and a corsage of Briarcliff roses. The groom's mother was in navy blue triple sheer with matching accessories and a corsage of red premier roses.

The happy couple left on a honeymoon trip east to Kingston and the Thousand Islands, and up the north highway to North Bay, the bride travelling in a grey tailored suit with maroon accessories. On their return they will reside in Grimsby.

Miss Roberts was a teacher in S.S. No. 14, Rawdon, for some years.

THE SECRET OF BEING WELL DRESSED

Every woman wants to be well dressed. The reason many fail is because they believe fads are fashion. "They are not," says Hattie Carnegie, famous fashion designer. The secret of being well dressed is to "be in fashion to a reasonable extent, but never to be extreme or too fanciful in your dress," she advises in September Pictorial Review.

"Smart women know that beautiful clothes must always have an air of simplicity, no matter how intricately they may be cut, stitched and seemed to attain this end," she explains, "and that these simple, beautiful clothes must enhance the charms of the woman who wears them."

"If you have a dress that is too often admired, be suspicious of it," she warns. "If people say your dress is lovely, instead of you are lovely, the dress somehow isn't right. Be yourself, not a mannequin. Don't wear clothes that steal the spotlight, but clothes that subtly and ingratiatingly make you important."

While Miss Carnegie admits that we are addicted to some fashion follies which men often think are ridiculous, it's not the gay silly fashions which men dislike, she states. It's clothes that don't flatter and suit you that, make them say "Why do you women have to wear such crazy hats?" Or shoes or dresses, as the case may be.

"If you want the envy of all the women you know and the admiration of all the men, never buy anything simply because it's amusing or smart or new," she advises. "Wear only clothes that make you amusing, you smart, you new."

"Remember that your own personality and charms are of primary importance and that the simplest, neatest clothes set these off to the best advantage," Miss Carnegie concludes.

ROOSEVELT CONGRATULATES CANADIAN RAILWAY MAN

President Franklin D. Roosevelt is a man with big responsibilities, but he is never too busy to notice small things and observe the amenities of life. Upon his recent visit to Canada to open the new International Bridge across the Thousand Islands, at Ivy Lea, his train, which was officially known as "The President's Special," was taken over at the Niagara Falls border, in the early hours of the morning by the Canadian National Railway, and operated to Kingston, where the President received an honorary degree from Queen's University, prior to officiating at the bridge opening. Toward the end of the journey, President Roosevelt inquired the name of the railway official in charge of the operation and when told that it was James F. Pringle, general superintendent of the Southern Ontario District, invited Mr. Pringle to his private car and warmly congratulated him upon the capable manner in which the train was operated.

BEHIND THE HEADLINES
OTTAWA
(By Dean Wilson)

It was mentioned in last week's column that along Parliament Hill there are two questions being asked about the subject of the Rowell Commission on the Dominion-Provincial Relations. What are the constitutional trends in Canada today which are likely to guide or confront that body in the course of its very important work? What is behind the headlines of the investigations and the presentations? These two questions are vital, essential and of paramount importance to every citizen of this country who is interested in the social progress and economic life of the inhabitants of the various sections of Canada because disunity and discontent have been characteristic qualifications of the trends of our times, with the admission by leading Canadians that present conditions cannot be tolerated much longer without risking the possible destruction of the whole basis of Confederation.

What are the constitutional trends in Canada today? In order to answer the question properly, it must be stated that the history of this question explains the actions of the various governments. When the idea of a united Canada was made in 1864 during the historic Quebec Conference, the Fathers of Confederation had drafted a resolution upon which was based the British North America Act of some years later and in that resolution, which was passed by unanimous vote of the delegates from the various provinces, it was stated that Canada was to be a Federal Union, not a loose legislative union, that the general government of Canada was to have complete charge of matters of common interest to the whole country, with the provincial or local governments handling only local affairs, and that the constitution of Canada was to follow the model of the British Government of that time. In 1867, Confederation came into existence on the basis of this Constitution wherein it was definitely provided that the Dominion Government was to possess all powers which were not specifically granted to any other authority. The Fathers of Confederation deliberately strengthened the Dominion Government.

With the progress of time, history discloses that the Dominion Government did not strengthen itself, but it had steadily been weakened. Then again, provincial governments were given powers which they were unable to carry out because it involved social legislation of an expensive kind which these authorities could not finance. The Dominion Government became more and more a tax-gathering agency and this situation, whereby one agency collects and the other spends, could not be tolerated any longer without resulting in serious friction. Furthermore, the present working of the Canadian Constitution encouraged the exercise of much unlimited powers by politicians through the medium of orders in Council.

All in all, the Constitution of Canada has been modified by about 140 judgments of the Privy Council and it is these decisions which have really brought about this impossible situation in Canada which finds now a serious need of a change of the whole Constitution. Privy Council decisions have given to the Provinces powers of regulation over inter-provincial marketing, trade, production of commodities, prices, wages, and hours of labour, the weekly day of rest, unemployment insurance, workmen's compensation, industrial disputes, security sales, the right to create companies, even those doing business outside of the provincial boundaries, taxes on sales or consumption, and there are laws now concerning a number of certain civil rights and property which override those of the Dominion. It has brought about numerous problems and raised many questions. How can a province deal with unemployment when it cannot regulate the Canadian tariff or control the trade area known as Canada? How can a province meet a crisis when that crisis involves costly responsibilities and the revenue is collected by the Dominion? There are but two of the many questions which cannot be answered at the present time and which explain much of the sectional grievances in this country that lead to disunity and discontent to an extent never witnessed before in the history of this country. The Rowell Commission has been empowered to find the answers to these questions, though it must be emphasized that a royal commission can only recommend and not act or legislate.

When the work of the Rowell Commission is finished, it is quite likely that a national constitutional conference will be attempted and at this historic gathering to amend the British North America Act, a new Confederation will be reborn with all the modern improvements that will permit a lowering of taxes, economies in the collection of the national revenue, a reduction of wastage in governmental expenses, an opportunity to strengthen the central government of the land, and an arrangement whereby the Dominion Government would not act as a collection agency only, but a new system started whereby rights and duties of a government would balance with a greater degree of justice and fairness than is witnessed today in the ordinary functions of governmental services, because it is a bad principal for one agency to collect a fund and the other spend it. The history of the British Parliamentary system is filled with great examples to justify this fundamental truth. — Reproduction Prohibited, 1938, Educational Features Syndicate.

PHILADELPHIA GIRL IS FIRST CUSTOMER FOR NEW BRIDGE

Officials of the New Thousand Islands International bridge between Canada and the United States announced that Miss Mary J. Hodgson, of Philadelphia, Pa., was the first to cross from the Canadian to the American side as a regular toll-paying customer.

The Rev. and Mrs. William Downey of Verona, N.Y., were the first to cross from the American side, shortly after the bridge opened at 7 a.m. E.D.T. on Friday. By noon 600 paying customers passed over.

WITH JOBS SCARCE, WOMEN TAKE COURSE IN AVIATION

With jobs on the ground scarce for women in Britain, many of them are now looking to the skies for work, says a story from London. Two hundred airplane young girls, members of the National Women's Air Reserve, were among the first volunteers for the civil air guard 50c-an-hour flying course which puts them on the government lists. Shop girls, typists, nurses and clerks have clubbed together and welcome the opportunity wholeheartedly. Their instructor is Mrs. C. Paterson, 33-year-old aviatrix who has earned her living as a pilot teacher for six years. None of the girls has much money, she says, but with whist drives, concerts and parties they have made enough to pay for instruction. Cycling more than 30 miles is nothing to these women reservists, who sleep in tents at the air field over the week-ends.

DAIRY GRADERS GIVEN INSTRUCTIONS IN CHEESE GRADING

Dominion dairy graders must in future refuse to grade any cheese in boxes which are not stamped legibly with vat or registered numbers, they have been instructed in a letter received by Mr. J. L. Irwin, Dominion dairy grader, from Mr. J. F. Singleton, Associate Director of Marketing Service, Dairy Products Division.

"All graders will in future be held strictly responsible for the observance of these instructions," Mr. Singleton further warned.

In his communication the Associate Director points out: "Your attention has been on many occasions drawn by Mr. Burgess to the necessity of seeing that boxes containing cheese tendered for grading are clearly marked, and this applies particularly to registered numbers and vat numbers since the type used for these is not large. We are from time receiving from the United Kingdom comments or complaints regarding Canadian cheese, and too frequently we get such reports with a notation that the registered number or vat number was illegible."

"During my own visits to the United Kingdom there were many occasions on which it was impossible to be or vat numbers appearing on boxes containing Canadian cheese. Recently I have seen in Canada, boxes containing cheese graded, or to be graded, on which the registered number was illegible. In some cases not all the figures entering into the registered number were illegible, but if only one figure is illegible, it is impossible to identify the factory of origin except by other means than the box marking."

Apparently this matter has not been graders, and in future all officers grading cheese should examine the markings of the boxes tendered for grading. If the marking is illegible, the cheese must not be graded until the boxes are marked in a manner so as to be clearly legible. All graders will in future be held strictly responsible for this observance."

CANADA WILL PROVIDE ADEQUATE DEFENSE TO U.S.

While the Canadian government appreciates President Roosevelt's assurance of United States aid to repel any invasion of Canada it will not shirk its duty to provide adequate defences of its own account. This was the assurance left by Prime Minister Mackenzie King with his former constituency of North York on a week-end visit.

The government intends to go right ahead with its program of national defence, Mr. King indicated. Canada has responsibilities as a good neighbour as well as the United States and one of them was to take steps to prevent any hostile power attacking the United States from a base on Canadian territory whether by land, sea or air.

This involved no military alliance and was fully in accord with the British Commonwealth defence policy as set by Canada at the last Imperial Conference in London. This policy asserted each dominion was responsible for its own defence but that Canadian defence could best be obtained by co-operation and consultation with other members of the Commonwealth.

President Roosevelt's visit to Canada with his two speeches last week at Queen's University, Kingston, and the new international bridge at Ivy Lea, was described as a historic event by the Prime Minister. He expressed approval of both and replied briefly to Premier Hepburn's renewed opposition to the St. Lawrence waterway, following the President's speech on that subject.

With the President, he believed a day would come when the water of the St. Lawrence River would be dedicated to the lasting and productive use of the peoples on either side of it.

"The new United States draft (St. Lawrence Waterway treaty) affords a practical basis for the discussion of the whole situation," he said. "It opens a new chapter in the consideration of our great waterway problem."

"There are phases of the combined project (power and navigation development) which will require full consideration by the Dominion, and this examination is being given. The co-operation of Hydro-Electric Commission of Ontario and of the Ontario Government would be necessary for the utilization of the power produced both at Niagara and on the St. Lawrence."

It was axiomatic that Canada and the United States respect the right of each other to manage its own affairs, and no solution of the waterway problem would be acceptable which did not leave each government master in its own house.

TO SUCCEED GEO. H. BARR AS CHIEF DAIRY DIRECTOR

Appointment of Clarence Lakner as Director of Dairying for the Ontario Department of Agriculture will be announced officially from Toronto, following the next meeting of the Provincial Cabinet, The Ottawa Journal said Monday in a news-page story.

Mr. Lakner will replace George H. Barr, veteran director of the branch, whose retirement has been expected for some time as he has reached the age limit and now is eligible for superannuation. The Journal added.

Connected with the Provincial Dairy Branch for the past 20 years, Mr. Lakner served as a creamery instructor in Western Ontario during the past year.

TWELVE NEW BOMBERS BOUGHT BY CANADA

Hon. Ian Mackenzie, National Defence Minister, announced Monday twelve new Blackburn bombing planes would arrive in about two weeks from England to augment the present number of planes at Jericho Station of the Royal Canadian Air Force on the Pacific coast. The Blackburn machines are fast seaplanes now in use in the Royal Air Force in Britain. Others are being built by Boeing Aircraft, Vancouver, for the R.C.A.F., Mr. Mackenzie said.

GRASSHOPPERS DIE IN LAKE

Millions of grasshoppers have met death in Lake Ontario the past few days, washing up on the Outlet Beach, Prince Edward County, where they lay in long rows, several inches deep and three feet wide, almost three miles long. Offshore winds Tuesday carried most of them into the lake. It is estimated there were five tons of them and mystery surrounds their coming there. It is suggested that a flight over Lake Ontario might have proved too much for them.

HIGHWAY HISTORY

The building of a modern highway is an engineering project today that compares with some of the great Canadian developments of a few years ago.

Many highways built only 15 years ago are obsolete today and the factor of time has become an even greater one than formerly in meeting the advanced standards of highway services. Ontario's first "super-highway", the double lane Middle Road from Toronto to Hamilton, was seven years in the making.

Because it took a middle course between the heavily travelled Lakeshore and Dundas routes few motorists were even aware of its development, until its incomparable facilities were opened to traffic in 1937.

Compared with the mass production of autos which provides each year an increasing highway traffic problem for the Ontario Department of Highways, its engineers are hampered by the awkward limitations of time and cost in their efforts to keep pace. Nevertheless this province has far outstripped its sister provinces in highway development.

Its 75,000 mile system is perhaps singular among any provincial or state projects on this continent because of the geographic area, virtually national in its physical extent and diversity. Despite the immensity of the system, it boasts today existing highway facilities as modern as any in the world and a programme already launched, which is to extend this type of advanced highway from Quebec to Michigan.

The new method of building highways is the hard way, but it is the means of permanency, greater safety and facility. It is a costlier method of course, but it means greater economies for motorists.

In one project alone now under development, the great North Road which will stretch Northward from Toronto to Timmins, 500 miles, motorists will travel 75 miles less than over existing routes. This great road is becoming a model of the new engineering standards, stretching out — high-graded in railway fashion, levelled for safety, and straightaway for travelling facility and comfort.

TRAVEL REFUND TO AID THE FARMER

The policy will apply to carload shipments billed within the specified time; but trips may be made during August.

Subject to the conditions outlined in the policy itself, farmers from points east of Manitoba may obtain the benefit indicated on the purchase of feeder cattle at the Saskatoon sale, Sept. 28 to 29; Moose Jaw, Oct. 4 to 7, at country points and at any stockyards in the Prairie Provinces. The policy will apply on lambs and ewes bought at the Moose Jaw sale, or at country points; and on lambs purchased at the stockyards in these three provinces.

Prairie Province farmers may buy cattle at either of the sales and at the stockyards. They may also purchase lambs and breeding ewes at the Moose Jaw sale, and lambs at the stockyards. British Columbia farmers, or their agents, may have the benefits of the policy on cattle purchased from a range herd in the interior of British Columbia; at the Moose Jaw and Saskatoon feeder sales, and at country points or stockyards, in Alberta and Saskatchewan. Lambs purchased at stockyards and both lambs and ewes purchased at the Moose Jaw sale, or at country points in these two provinces, will be eligible.

BEAUTY PROBLEMS

DISCUSSED BY

Barbara Lynn

Eminent Beauty Authority and Adviser, who writes weekly articles on Beauty Problems for many Canadian Newspapers.

WRINKLES AND HOW TO ELIMINATE THEM

The greatest enemies to beauty are time and responsibilities, especially those involving worry. Those tell-tale lines at the corners of the eyes and mouth, the furrowed brow, the warning wrinkles on the forehead, are all signs that these foes are on the warpath.

Many women add yet a third enemy when they neglect to give proper care and attention to themselves. Even a rose, delightful and glamorous as it is, needs careful tending to appear at its best.

Do not wait until you are old to try and eradicate wrinkles. It is desirable to start precautions when you are young chiefly with lubricating oils in cream form, when the first wrinkles make their appearance, it is an easy matter to dispose of them completely.

What causes wrinkles? They are due to the shrinkage of the tissue beneath the skin's surface. The skin which envelopes the tissues becomes too large for that which it covers, and it sags, causing wrinkles and furrows.

Any remedy, therefore, must aim at restoring the tissues. Massage and nourishing cream are the remedies. For the tiny lines beneath the eyes and on the temples, take a good skin food, preferably one containing Vitamin F, and pat it very gently in with the finger tips.

The brows can stand a more vigorous massage. Let the finger tips follow the lines of the wrinkles, smooth a course from the centre of the brow to the temples.

This action, regularly repeated, together with the regular application of a good skin cream, will quickly remove those depressing signs of age.

Don't Forget the Neck

Do not overlook the neck, either. A saggy, furrowed neck will give you away sooner than anything else. Use the same method prescribed above.

In addition I strongly advise the occasional use of a lemon-magnesia pack. You can make this yourself by pouring about a tablespoon of milk or magnesia into a saucer and stirring in a teaspoonful of lemon juice. Apply this thickly all over the face and throat, and leave on for half an hour. Wash off with tepid water, finally rinsing with cold water.

I have prepared a special leaflet on "The Face — and its Care", which goes thoroughly into methods for caring for the face. You'd like to have it and can obtain it and any of the following leaflets by sending a 3c stamp for each one required: How to Slim; Underweight; Superfluous Hair; Bust Development; Reducing in Spots, Hips, Thighs, Arms, etc.; Hand Beauty; Care of the Feet; Your Hair; Eye Beauty. Don't hesitate to ask about your personal beauty worries when sending for any of these leaflets. I shall be glad to advise you personally, confidentially and without publicity.

Please mention the name of this paper, and address your letters to: Barbara Lynn, P.O. Box 75, Station B, Montreal, Que.
